Leaders Give Views to Legislators.

[illegible] of Chicago's leading bankers upheld the program of the governor's conference at a meeting with legislators yesterday in Mayor Cermak's office. Most of the brisk two-hour exchange of opinion dealt with abolition of the present assessing system and upon that point, the assemblymen were told, there can be no compromise. Despite the emphatic statements to the effect, legislative leaders at the close of the meeting indicated their belief that the situation in regard to the controversial bill is virtually unchanged. They predicted a week of debate upon it at Springfield, so [illegible] minds between party chiefs, and much more jockeying for advantage before an agreement is reached. The bill will pass and the special session will extend into the new year unless this happens, they believe.

Traylor to Springfield Today.

It was learned last night, however, that Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], hopeful of arriving at an early compromise, invited Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, one of yesterday's conferees, to go to Springfield today. Mr. Traylor accepted the invitation, it was said.

Yesterday's conference was brought about so that a joint house and senate committee could learn at first hand what the bankers believe is best for the state's financial future. In particular the legislators wanted to know how the reorganization of the taxing machinery, short of abolition of the present system, would be received by the bankers.

Doing away with the elective boards of assessors and reviewers—eight office holders in all—and substituting a single appelative board of three men, it would involve, would involve a considerable loss of patronage and this presents serious political difficulties.

Traylor Raps Quibbling.

A hint of this political significance was brought out in the meeting when Mr. Traylor arose and said crisply:

"Neither party can stand on the issue to do the best thing. If it is a question of jobs—of maintaining certain men in office—I'll tell you what I did. As a citizen, I'll underwrite the bill right now and you can have their salaries for the rest of their terms in office."

He paused a moment and the room was quiet. Then, speaking slowly, Mr. Traylor added: "It isn't right to haggle and quibble as to whether one vote or another can get 102 votes."

Three Others Give Support.

Mr. Traylor's stand behind the conference program was preceded by similar support for it from three other leading bankers, A. W. Harris, of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, Solomon A. Smith, of the Northern Trust company, and Joseph E. Otis, of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. A fifth banker, George M. Reynolds of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, was somewhat outspoken.

Mr. Reynolds' statement was the last one given to the legislators. Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], the chairman, called on him when the meeting convened. Around the table sat five senators, five representatives, Mayor Cermak, Pat Nash, Sheahan, and city and county officials.

Mr. Reynolds' Statement.

"I am a banker," said Mr. Reynolds. "I don't believe it is my province to influence legislation. Sometimes bankers are misunderstood if they attempt to do that. If you think [illegible] [the tax conference program] will do the business, our bank will go just as far as conservatively possible. That doesn't mean that we will buy tax warrants; we will put that question to our attorneys. The question requires the recommendation of several wise men."

SCHNACKENBERG—Are you sure enough with the situation to say it reorganization of the assessing and reviewing boards will make for restoration of Chicago's credit?

Mr. Reynolds replied that the fault, if [illegible], lies with the system and he didn't know whether the men should be elected or appointed. He is not in politics, he added.

"But what would happen," asked Senator Gerald C. Kessinger [Rep., Aurora], "if the whole program should fail?"

"I'd rather be excused from answering that question," replied Mr. Reynolds.

CERMAK—Do you think.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—[Tuesday, 3 A. M.]—French people will learn over their café au lait later on this morning the stirring news that France has been saved—and the still more stirring news that it needed saving.

PIERRE LAVAL. [A. P. Photo.]

This is the meaning of a vote in the chamber of deputies at 2 o'clock this morning approving the government's plan to make good $100,000,000 which the Bank of France lost through depreciation of its 7,000,000,000 francs' worth of British pound sterling holdings. This loss, and any future losses that might be incurred through a continued drop of the British pound, will be shouldered by the French treasury through a direct advance, repayable in small annuities over a period of years.

Reveal Condition of Bank.

This convention between the state and the privately owned semi-official bank was ratified by a vote of 321 to 249 in the chamber after Premier Laval had made it a question of confidence. The vote ended a furious debate which had been going on since early yesterday afternoon. The plea of Pierre-Etienne Flandin, minister of finance, that the Bank of France is in no condition to shoulder its loss at this time and that upon the equilibrium of the bank depends the stability of the franc was the argument which finally prevailed over the noisy objections of the leftists.

Admission that a mere matter of $100,000,000 might put in jeopardy the stability of the franc was only one of the features of this amazing debate. The dollar fared much worse. If you were to take the word of some of the more rabid Socialist and radical deputies, the dollar does not rate much higher than the ruble.

Assail Hoarding of Gold.

Time after time the directors of the Bank of France, and even Raymond Poincare, former French president and premier and savior of the franc, were assailed for accumulating a hoard of foreign securities and not foreseeing the fall of the pound. Each time the clinching argument was: "Suppose the dollar should go off the gold standard?"

Louis Germain-Martin, former minister of finance and one of the experts who worked out the new charter for the Bank of France in 1917, hinted that there already existed a secret agreement between the Bank of France and the Federal Reserve bank in America to protect the former from loss on dollar holdings in case America joined England in abandoning the gold standard. He said the Bank of France stood to lose between $120,000,000 and $160,000,000 in event of any pronounced depreciation of the dollar.

Statement Juggling Bared.

But the government spokesmen, Flandin and Laval, topped the opposition in sensational revelations. Flandin began by revealing that the Bank of France has been listing the pound at par value in its statements of foreign holdings.

"Our first duty is to put France back in a position where her statements will not be open to attack," he declared.

He explained that while the franc is covered to an extent of 60 per cent by gold lying in the vaults of the bank,

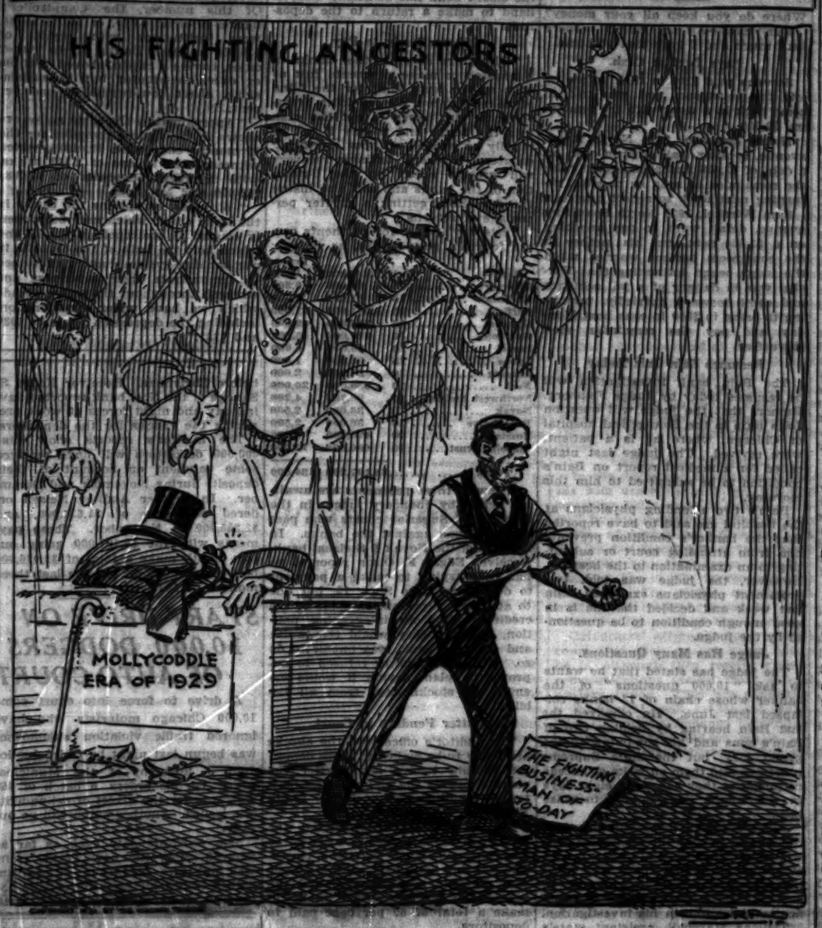
THE BLOOD IS BEGINNING TO TELL



Policeman and Robber Fight Hand to Hand

The battle ended with three men wounded—the policeman, the bandit and a passerby—and the bandit under arrest. Although he had been struck twice by bullets, one of which smacked against his star and knocked him down, the policeman, Olan Wheeler of the Hudson avenue station, overpowered his man and marched him in triumph to the lockup. Both were bleeding from their wounds when they reached the station.

Passerby Seriously Wounded.

Robert R. Miller, 33 years old, 3742 Roscoby street, an automobile salesman, was the most seriously hurt of the trio. He was caught in the crossfire as he passed and a bullet penetrated his abdomen. It was not determined whether Policeman Wheeler or the robber fired the shot that struck Miller.

The bandit identified himself as Thomas Nolan, 31 years old, 3705 Washington boulevard. He was released from the Bridewell only a week ago after serving a term of sixty days for larceny.

Nolan entered the shoe store of Morris Silberberg and Art Bauer, at 427 West Division street, and compelled them to turn over to him the contents of the cash register, about $50. He then fled into the street. Silberberg followed him and pointed him out to Policeman Wheeler, who was just starting his tour of duty after reporting at 4 p. m.

Policeman Chases Robber.

When Wheeler, pistol in hand, took up the chase, Nolan began to run north in Clybourn avenue. When they reached Cleveland avenue, a block away, with the crowd growing as they ran, Nolan whirled about with his pistol and cried that he would shoot.

"Drop that gun," shouted Wheeler, "or I'll kill you."

He continued to advance on the bandit. Nolan fired. His first bullet struck Wheeler's star and glanced off. Although he was hurled to the sidewalk by the force of the bullet, Policeman Wheeler fired and then ran forward and seized the robber.

Each strove to shoot the other as they wrestled. Bystanders, in astonishment, watched the struggle. At arm's length range the two men fired a total of seven shots. Four had been fired before they closed on each other.

Both Shot in Struggle.

Neither man was able to shoot the other in a vital spot. Wheeler was nicked on the left arm and Nolan was struck in the same spot. With both their pistols empty Wheeler wrestled the desperado to the ground and compelled him to admit he was whipped.

At the station Wheeler displayed the dent made by the bandit bullet in his star.

"It saved my life," he said. "If that bullet hadn't killed me I would have been wounded so badly I'd have had to quit fighting and this fellow could have walked over and shot me to death."

Nolan was sent to the Bridewell hospital for treatment. Policeman Wheeler, after his slight wound had been treated at the Alexian Brothers' hospital, announced he was ready again for duty. At the Henrotin hospital, where Miller was taken by a passing motorist, it was said his condition was critical.

West Park Policeman Shot.

Another policeman, August Koch of the west park force, was shot and wounded last night by a motorist whom he attempted to stop at Crawford avenue and Jackson boulevard.

Koch leaped on the running board of the car when the driver went past a red light. A man sitting on the front seat fired at him, striking him in the left arm. Koch fell to the street and another motorist took him to the Garfield Park hospital. His assailant escaped.

Koch is 38 years old and lives at 16 North Raymond street, Brookfield.

Home Brewing Janitor Denied a U. S. Pardon

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The department of justice turned thumbs down today on a petition for the pardon of Boleslaw Lidikewicz, Chicago janitor who was thrown in jail and fined $100 for making a small amount of home brew for a friend. The petition was filed with Federal Pardon Attorney James P. Finch last Friday by Representatives Adolph J. Sabath and Leonard W. Schuetz, Illinois Democrats.

Lidikewicz, whose case has caused widespread indignation throughout the country, was haled into court, sentenced and fined, when prohibition agents discovered him making a small amount of home brew for a party given by a tenant in the apartment house where he was janitor. Charles Wiley, a war veteran and an American Legionnaire, was held for action of the grand jury when he told the court that Lidikewicz made the beer at his request.

No Mercy Recommended.

While no official announcement of the denial of the petition has been made at the department, it was said unofficially that the pardon would be refused because the judge who sentenced Lidikewicz and the district attorney who prosecuted him would not recommend his pardon.

Representative Sabath had not been notified officially late this afternoon that the department had denied his petition. He declared, however, that he would "go over Finch's head" if necessary in his fight to have the janitor freed, adding that he will see Attorney General William D. Mitchell either tomorrow or the next day. Mr. Mitchell has power to take action in the case regardless of the attitude of the judge and district attorney. Should Mr. Mitchell sanction the petition it will be presented to President Hoover for final action.

Injustice, Sabath Says.

Representative Sabath, when informed tonight of the course the department will follow, declared that because they were "prejudiced" he had expected the judge and the prosecutor of Lidikewicz to refuse their recommendations for his pardon.

Mr. Sabath referred to the fine and imprisonment of the janitor as "unfair, unreasonable, and unwarranted."

FEDERAL AGENT QUIZZES SCHIPA ABOUT BRACELET

Fred H. Gardner, United States secret service agent, walked in on Tito Schipa, operatic tenor, in his suite at the Belmont hotel yesterday and requested the tenor's wife and his manager, Harry Cahill, to leave the room.

Forthwith the agent began plying Signor Schipa with questions concerning his nationality, place of residence and jewelry purchases. It developed that Gardner was seeking to learn why Schipa had failed to declare duty on a $4,000 bracelet, brought into the country by Mme. Schipa in the fall of 1928.

The tenor explained that 1928 was the year he had established residence in the United States, having previously avoided duty payments by maintaining legal residence in Italy. The agent insisted that Schipa had established residence "de facto" when he purchased a Florida home in 1927.

The agent took the bracelet for appraisal. If his contention is affirmed Schipa will be assessed a duty of $2,650. The statute of limitations prevents the government from attempting to levy a penalty which, in this case, would amount to $12,000.

Hoover Talks Governorship to Wilkerson

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Among the influences being brought to bear upon United States District Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago to run for governor of Illinois is that of President Hoover, it was reported today.

Judge Wilkerson came to Washington to attend the Gridiron club dinner Saturday night, at which, incidentally, he received the greatest ovation accorded a public man in many years at those dinners when he was introduced as the man who "had found a home for Al Capone."

The judge was a luncheon guest of the President on Saturday. In the course of the conversation Mr. Hoover is said to have urged Mr. Wilkerson to enter the race for the Illinois governorship.

Predicts His Election.

The President pointed out that Illinois rivals Pennsylvania for first place among banner Republican states, and opined that if Judge Wilkerson were to run for governor his popularity in Chicago and over the state would insure his election.

Judge Wilkerson is understood to have told the President that he is disinclined to enter the contest for the Republican nomination for governor and has so informed the group in Illinois that have been urging his candidacy. He would prefer to remain on the bench and to go upon the Circuit Court of Appeals to which the President intends to promote him.

Radicals May Oppose Him.

The appointment of Judge Wilkerson to the higher court was to have been sent to the senate before the holiday recess, but it is learned that it may be withheld pending a definite determination of his intentions with respect to the governorship candidacy.

Some of the senate radicals plan to oppose confirmation of his appointment to the court of appeals because he granted the injunction against the union in the railway shopmen's strike. This opposition has been seriously disarmed, however, by the Wilkerson record in the Capone case.

CHICAGO LEADS FOR REPUBLICAN MEETING IN JUNE

Hoover Group Chief Opponent.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—That Chicago will be selected by the Republican national committee tomorrow as the place for holding the 1932 Republican national convention was the prevailing opinion among the national committeemen trooping into Washington tonight. The date generally favored is the second week of June.

EDW. N. HURLEY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Officers of the committee who had surveyed the situation reported that a majority of the committeemen so far in attendance have expressed a preference for Chicago. Other cities seeking the convention are Cleveland, Detroit, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, and St. Louis.

Delegation Keeps Busy.

A Chicago delegation composed of hotel managers and business men, headed by Edward N. Hurley, is here buttonholing committeemen as they arrive and preparing to present the bid of the city to the committee tomorrow afternoon. The delegation undertakes to pay all the expenses of the convention up to $150,000 and has a certified check for that amount to leader the committee. If the expenses are less than $150,000 the residue is to be returned to the Chicago committee.

A similar bid is to be made to the Democratic national committee next month for the holding of the Democratic national convention in Chicago in the third or fourth week of June and Mr. Hurley is confident of success in that quarter also.

The opposition to holding the Republican national convention in Chicago has centered from the beginning in the administration group of Republican leaders and is still in evidence. From this source came the caution not to take it for granted that Chicago had won, as a last effort is to be made to swing the convention to either Cleveland or Detroit.

Fear Illinois Sentiment.

The administration opposition is attributed to a feeling on the part of the President or of his political advisers or both that Illinois is territory unfriendly to Mr. Hoover, for which reason it would be unwise to hold the convention in an atmosphere by which it might be affected adversely to his interest. Some fear that Hiram Johnson might carry Illinois and other states in the presidential primaries and that a convention held in Chicago under such circumstances might be stampeded into the rejection of Mr. Hoover and the nomination of another.

The administration group prefers Cleveland to any other place for holding the convention and a good deal of proselyting for that choice was done by Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the national committee; J. R. Nutt, the treasurer, and Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, all of whom hail from Ohio. The Cleveland business interests, however, were unable to raise the fund required for the convention expenses and the city will be only nominally in the running tomorrow unless the financial disqualification is removed at the eleventh hour.

Detroit Chief Rival.

The understanding tonight is that if Cleveland appears to be definitely out of the picture when the committee meets tomorrow, the support lined up for that city will be swung to Detroit. The argument being employed in behalf of Detroit is, that the holding of the convention there would help keep Michigan in the Republican column. Illinois is as good as lost, according to this viewpoint, but there is still some chance of saving Michigan.

Fearing Chicago more, administration drys are for Detroit now, who shivered at the thought in 1928 of holding the convention of the dry party just across the river from wet Canada. One of Senator George Moses' famous wisecracks in 1928 was that if the convention were held in Detroit a Republican candidate for president would be nominated for the first time on British soil.

The executive committee of the Republican national committee met today and started the machinery going for the convention. Roy O. West, Illinois committeeman, was made chairman of a committee to draft the call, including the apportionment of delegates.

OCEAN OF WINE FOR SALE; ONLY SICK CAN BUY IT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—There's still plenty of champagne and wine—1,491,756 pints, 607,874 quarts, 12,571 half-pints and 753 magnums (half gallons) of it, all legally salable to sick Americans, but gathering dust in wineries, a drug on the market.

New Apportionment of Delegates.

The tentative plan provides for apportionment based on a compromise between the present apportionment of congress and the new one to go into effect in the 1932 elections. Under this plan there would be 1,154 delegates in the convention. Texas would gain 13, California 12, Virginia 10, Michigan and North Carolina 8 each, and New York 7 delegates. Illinois would neither gain nor lose. Many states would lose representation. The proposed convention apportionment for 1932, compared with 1928, is as follows:

State.	1932.	1928.	State.	1932.	1928.
Alabama	19	12	New Jersey	35	31

A dozen Republican committeemen were the guests of the President at lunch. They said he expressed confidence of Republican victory next year and of improvement in business.

"I think if there is any sort of financial recovery Mr. Hoover will have a good chance of being reelected," said R. B. Creager, committeeman for Texas, which Hoover carried in 1928. "But if there is no such recovery the Republicans will have a big fight on their hands to reelect him. If the Democrats nominate any one other than Roosevelt there will be a big note in Texas. If the Democrats nominate a wet we will make a good fight in Texas, but I cannot say at this time if we can carry the state."

PETERSON AVE. BUS LINE PLEA BACKED BY CITY

Corporation Counsel Barton was directed by the city council committee on local transportation yesterday to appear before the Illinois commerce commission in support of a petition for surface lines feeder bus service on Peterson avenue. He will show that the proposed line was provided for in the new transit ordinance.

Walter F. Cunningham, attorney for the Citizens' North Side Transportation league, told the committee that the line would run approximately five miles from Caldwell avenue on the west to Ridge avenue, then southeast to Bryn Mawr avenue and east to Broadway.

"The proposed line will be operated in a thickly populated territory and will be a profitable venture for the surface lines," said Attorney Cunningham. "The line was included among the improvements to be made by the surface lines under the new transit ordinance."

HEAD OF COUNTY BOARD HUNTING 640 'DRAG' STARS

Emmett Wheelan, president of the county board, is hunting 640 "I gotta drag" stars which were issued from his office, it was learned yesterday. Each star was inscribed "Member of the Personal Staff of the President of the County Board." In all 690 stars were issued by Mayor Cermak while he was president of the county board, records of the office disclose. Letters demanding the return of the stars, threatening drastic action in case of refusal, have been sent out as a result of a resolution passed by the board at a recent meeting. Fifty of the stars have been returned, clerks reported yesterday, and 300 letters have been received from citizens who say that their stars are lost or misplaced or who deny that they ever received the badges.

2 CLOSED BANKS IN WAUKEGAN MAY REORGANIZE

Nelson Trial Hinges on Full Pay Plan.

Plans for a reorganization and merger of the Waukegan State and Waukegan National banks, which failed last June, were reported to have reached a definite stage last night. The plan calls for payment of 100 cents on the dollar to depositors who lost approximately $3,000,000 in the double crash. An announcement of the plans is expected to follow a meeting Thursday or Friday in Chicago.

As a result of such a reorganization and the subsequent reimbursement in full of the depositors, it was said there would be no trial on charges of conspiracy of State Auditor Oscar Nelson, Norman O. Geyer, president of the Waukegan State bank, and George Woodruff, former chairman of the National Bank of the Republic in Chicago, since merged with the Central Trust company as the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Prosecutor Refuses Comment.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county, who is prosecuting the state auditor and the bankers, admitted that the reports had reached his ears. He would have no statement to make on his procedure, he said, until after he had been convinced that the depositors would be paid in full. It was stated by lawyers that most of the charges in the indictments would automatically be canceled if the depositors were paid in full. The trial is scheduled for Jan. 18.

Attorney Charles Weinfeld of the law firm of Schuyler, Dunbar and Weinfeld, which is reported to be handling the legal details of the reorganization, said yesterday that the matter was being considered but that no definite statement could be made for a week at least. Schuyler, Dunbar and Weinfeld represent Geyer in the criminal proceedings.

Gossip concerning the reorganization of the banks has named Melvin B. Ericson, son-in-law of Charles G. Dawes, as the new president of the bank. The new bank would be a national bank, it was rumored, and would be housed in the building which housed the Waukegan National bank.

Judge's Drive Gets Results.

Judge Michael Feinberg continued yesterday to garner in cash from the debtors of the First Humboldt State bank. The substantial amounts which he has been collecting recently are in addition to the $210,000 which, it was announced by State Auditor Oscar Nelson, would be paid shortly to the 15,000 depositors of the closed institution as dividends.

Two directors of the Humboldt bank promised Judge Feinberg that they would repay a total of $26,000. One of them, Jacob Nilsen, an Oak Park contractor, told the judge he would pay the $16,000 debt of his nephew, Hilmer Kolseth, Oak Park automobile dealer. The other, Soren T. Corydon, owner of a department store at 2704 North avenue, promised to pay $10,000 on his general stock liability.

Just what the judge has contended with in arguing with debtors was presented in a typical case, that involving Henry Stevens, 447 North Cicero avenue, a real estate man.

Owes Bank $3,500.

Stevens owes the bank $3,500 on a mortgage. He started the bargaining by proposing to pay $100 a month. The examination proceeded as follows:

THE COURT [curtly]—Many of the depositors would die of starvation if we had to wait that long. Can you raise $3,000?

STEVENS—You're speaking dollars? Make it $2,500. Will you take it? Sure you will.

THE COURT—This is no debating society. Three thousand it stands. Don't you know people need coal and food in that neighborhood? Come back in a week with the $3,000.

PERHAPS WIDOW IS STILL WILLING TO BURY STAR BOARDER

Last Thursday Peter Golmb, 69 years old, disappeared from the home of Mrs. Caroline Meissner, 1106 North Paulina street, where he boarded. The following day South Park Policeman Roy Tussey found an overcoat and cap on the lake front at 11th street. In the coat was Golmb's name and address.

The police telephoned Mrs. Meissner. She examined the garments and shook her head sorrowfully.

"Poor Peter, poor Peter," she cried. "He was such a good man. Lived at my house for two years, and now he's dead. If you find his body let me know. I'll be glad to bury him."

Yesterday Mrs. Meissner telephoned Sergts. Joseph Starshak and Frank Loskill of the missing persons bureau. There was no note of sorrow in her voice.

"Poor Peter nothing," she exclaimed. "He's not drowned. I just found out that when he left last Thursday he stole $450 from my clothes closet."

Where do you keep all your money?

STEVENS—All my money! There isn't much and I keep that at home.

Pays Part in Cash.

Stevens paid $100 in cash before he left the courtroom and was told to come back in a week with the remaining $2,000.

Henry Barkson, 2410 North Avers avenue, a tailor, paid $200 in cash on a debt of $2,416 and promised to raise the remainder as soon as possible, returning next week to report progress.

Sam Wirskel, 1635 North Spaulding avenue, didn't want to pay anything on a $1,900 debt, but his mother in the courtroom became worried when the judge began intimating that Wirskel was in danger of a jail sentence and came forward hurriedly, promising to bring in $500 in cash next Monday and pay the remainder soon thereafter.

Resumes Bain Quiz Today.

The Bain bank investigation will be resumed today by Judge Feinberg. Rumors that the judge will question John Bain in the Evangelical hospital of Chicago, where he is a patient, were revived. The judge last night called for a medical report on Bain's condition to be submitted to him this morning.

Bain's two attending physicians at the hospital are said to have reported that the banker's condition prevents him from attending court or submitting to an examination in the hospital. However, the judge was told, two prominent physicians examined Bain last week and decided that he is in good enough condition to be questioned by the judge.

Judge Has Many Questions.

The judge has stated that he wants to ask "10,000 questions" of the banker whose chain of 13 banks collapsed last June. He climaxed the last Bain hearing by holding two of Bain's sons and his son-in-law to the grand jury, but the state Supreme court released them on writs of habeas corpus after they had spent eight days in the county jail, unable to raise bond.

Judge Feinberg today will announce the names of the three lawyers who will assist him in his efforts to disclose assets of sixty banks. The judge has also been furnished a number of accountants by the state auditor's office to assist him in his investigation.

Thomas Marshall, assistant state's attorney and indictment expert under two former administrations, was appointed yesterday by State's Attorney Swanson as a special prosecutor to aid Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers in his investigation of defunct banks.

$5,000,000 BANK PAYMENTS GO IN CHRISTMAS MAIL

135,000 Depositors to Get Yuletide Cash.

More than $5,000,000 will be paid to 134,800 depositors of closed banks in Cook county this month under an order signed yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson. This makes a total of more than $9,000,000 paid depositors since Oct. 1.

"Practically all of this money will reach its rightful owners before Christmas," said Auditor Nelson, who under the state law directs the payments by receivers appointed by him whenever the closed bank has sufficient cash on hand to make a return to the depositors.

Others Ready to Pay.

"There are several other banks in a position to make payments just as soon as the legal limit for the filing of claims expires. We are doing everything in our power to get the cash into the banks and to pay it out as rapidly as possible without sacrificing collateral. General business recovery will greatly speed up the liquidation of the banks and will also insure the depositors getting a greater percentage of returns."

Bank—	Pct.	Tot. payment.	Depositors.
Diversey	15	$ 96,000	6,300
Exchange	15	81,000	2,700
Garfield	25	1,001,000	21,000
Glencoe	25	148,000	2,000
Humboldt	10	210,000	15,000
Isanel	10	60,000	6,000
Lyons	15	36,000	1,300
Lansing	10	37,500	2,000
Noel	10	280,000	20,000
Northwest Bridal	25	95,700	4,500
Novak	15	30,000	2,500
Progressive	10	36,000	2,500
Roseland	20	450,000	9,000
Lincoln Trust	20	600,000	12,000
Totals		$3,197,200	134,800

A few of these payments are awaiting action by chancery judges in the Circuit and Superior courts who pass on all claims against the banks. In the case of the Novak & Steiskal bank, Receiver Edgar F. Olson reported he has been trying to make a payment to depositors since Sept. 15, but due to attorneys representing some of the creditors filing an intervening petition, claiming they would reorganize and open the bank, was unable to do so. The state auditor refused to approve the plan, saying it would exempt the stockholders from all liability.

Matter Pending in Court.

The auditor's office says the checks are ready to be mailed to those depositors within twelve hours after the court approves the claims. The matter is pending before Judge Philip Finnegan.

The 15 per cent payment at the Exchange bank makes a total of 55 per cent paid since the bank closed. The Lansing bank paid another 10 per cent dividend a month ago and the payment at the Progressive bank will make a total of 60 per cent paid to depositors.

Receiver J. E. Sullivan of the Garfield bank put 10,000 checks in the mail last Saturday, 5,000 yesterday, and 6,000 will be mailed today, he announced. Receiver David E. Shanahan of the Northwestern bank stated that all the 30,000 checks will be delivered before Christmas. Receiver Henry S. Savage of the Noel bank reported having day and night forces at work preparing the checks for the depositors.

The auditor's reports show that 200,000 depositors will have received some payment on account of their deposits during November and December. In October Auditor Nelson ordered payments of $1,634,000, and $2,255,000 in November. These payments with the $5,197,000 going out this month make a total of $9,086,000 paid on account during the last three months of 1931.

BIG CITY BANKS ARE DEPRESSION PROOF, U. S. REPORT SHOWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The big metropolitan banks continued to demonstrate their soundness and strength during the last decade, including the depressions years of 1930 and 1931, Comptroller of the Currency J. W. Pole said today, in commenting on nation-wide banking conditions in his annual report. With few exceptions, he said, the banks in the large cities have stood up under adverse economic conditions.

J. W. POLE. [Harris-Ewing Photo.]

In the period running from Jan. 1, 1921, to Sept. 30, 1931, inclusive, there have been more than 8,000 bank failures, according to the Pole report. Of this number, the comptroller's figures showed, 4,800, or 60 per cent, were institutions with capital of $25,000 or less. Banks in the larger cities, having a capital above $1,000,000 or over, contributed but 27 suspensions, about four-tenths of one per cent.

"Approximately the same ratios are shown in the figures compiled for the 12 months ended Oct. 31, 1931, which witnessed the failure of 2,342 banks, with aggregate deposits of $2,003,729,000 said Mr. Pole.

"With few exceptions the banks in the large cities, which may be properly classed as metropolitan banks and which hold the bulk of the deposits in our banking system, having continued to demonstrate their soundness and strength throughout the entire decade which we have under consideration, including the depression years of 1930 and 1931."

START DRIVE ON 10,000 DODGERS OF AUTO COURT

A drive to force into court some 10,000 Chicago motorists who have ignored traffic violation summonses was begun last night by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court. On his orders a batch of 250 warrants for the arrest of delinquents was issued. Another batch will go out today.

The warrants date back as far as Sept. 8 when the new Traffic court was put into operation. A warrant will be issued for each driver who has ignored a summons since that date.

U. S. SOOTHES PARAGUAYANS' RUFFLED PRIDE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—It was a White House aid, military or naval, and not one of the state department's correct young men whose error touched off the capital's latest social precedence war.

In a statement issued today the state department explained that there had been no intention to slight the Chaco peace delegates from Paraguay as last Thursday night's White House reception for the diplomatic corps.

It was from this reception that Señors Juan Jose Soler and Cesar Vasconcellos, Paraguayan delegates left without waiting to shake President Hoover's hand when they found that the Bolivian delegates had been accorded a more favored position in the reception line, and had apparently been admitted through the main door instead of the east door by which the Paraguayans entered.

"The facts are," the state department statement said, "that both the Paraguayan and Bolivian special delegates were given exactly the same form of invitation and entered through the east door of the White House. A White House aid asked the Bolivian delegates to go into the room where the diplomatic corps was assembled, but unfortunately failed to do the same for the Paraguayan delegates."

POLICEMAN NABS BANDIT FLEEING STORE ROBBERY

Policeman Peter Maguire of the Town Hall station grappled with an armed bandit late last night as the latter fled from the Julia King candy shop at 1239 Wilson avenue, which he and two confederates had just robbed.

Holding the robber's gun hand, Maguire subdued him and took him to the station. He identified himself as Charles Weber, 22 years old, of 1054 Granville avenue, and said he was on parole from the Missouri state prison, where he had served a robbery sentence. He refused to name his companions.

Weber and his accomplices menaced Miss Ellen Noyes, 4940 Winthrop avenue, the clerk, and Julius Merko, 4317 North Ashland avenue, the porter, and started out the door with $54. Meantime Wells Miller of Evanston, the manager, was about to enter. He saw the men and signaled Policeman Maguire, who was near by. The policeman seized Weber, the first man out, and the only one armed. The others got away in a rented car.

...OPE FOR PROFIT ...F HALF MILLION ...TO BRIDGE VICTOR

...lbertson Explains Who Pays the Rent.

BULLETIN.

...York, Dec. 15.—(Special.)—...ing a comeback on the last rub... of the session after they had ... six in a row, Sidney S. Lenz ... Oswald Jacoby were still in the ... at the close of the fortieth ... in their contract bridge ... with Mr. and Mrs. Ely Cul... at the Hotel Chatham when ... ended early this morning. ... margin had been cut from ... points to the slender margin ... 15 points.

The rubber standing became: ... and Jacoby, 21; Culbertsons, ... The points of rubber, 40; Lenz ... Jacoby, 1,150; Culbertsons, 790.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, Dec. 14.—(Special.)—The ... of the century between the ... athletes of the contract ... table goes forward in a quiet ... room of the Hotel Chatham ... the story begins to come out.

"He is going to pick up the tab ... pay for all these rooms in this ... and exclusive hotel?" your ... inquired just before the ... of the thirty-fourth rubber ... a series of 150 between the official ... as practised by Sidney Lenz ... his sparring partner, Oswald ..., and Culbertson system as ... by the Culbertsons, Mr. and ...

"Why, such a question, indeed," ex... one of the authorities on con... bridge. "This is the Culbert... apartment. This is where they ... Their children are asleep in the ... room there. Didn't you see the ... on the door, reading 'do not wake ... children; they are dreaming'? ... is strictly on the level, sir, you ... in a gentleman's home."

Not Like Tex Rickard Days.

"Well, not that it has any bearing ... the contest," the authority on con... bridge said, "the management ... been kind enough to provide the ... room and some other rooms, ... as the press rooms, free of ... Contract bridge is a very ... class game and the management ... really considered that the publicity ... from this contest would at... an amount of desirable trade."

"It was never like that in Tex Rick... days time. When Mr. Rickard wished ... promote the first of his battles of ... century in Jersey City between ... and Carpentier he had to ... his own arena, and by an ex... ordinary coincidence, the firm ... did the work was of the same ... as the governor of the state.

Correspondent Challenged.

"Your correspondent was then intro... to Mr. Culbertson, who is a slim ... of rather nervous manner, with ... pale complexion usually noted in ... who play cards professionally. ... Stone sliding and laughing en... Mr. Culbertson had recently ... your correspondent to a ... contest, he to have Jack Demp... as a partner and your correspond... Gene Tunney.

"Where are you going to accept ... challenge?" Mr. Culbertson asked ... recently.

"That is no challenge," your cor... dent said. "Anybody who plays ... as much as you do ought to be ... to feel them and read them and ... them the bends. But what is ... angle in this contest? Where do ... figure to get yours out of it?"

"Where do I figure to get mine?" Mr. Culbertson repeated, a little aghast. "Why, do you know that I have agreed to pay over the winning on all my bets to charity if I win? I don't stand to win a dime. Charity will get it all. A moving picture theater bid for the rights to put it on and I turned the proposition down. I only want to keep the game on a high plane."

Let's the Secret Out.

"Well, anyway, what is your angle?" your correspondent persisted, never doubting that Mr. Culbertson had an angle, for Mr. Culbertson is a natural showman and a very good one, at that. "It isn't because you love humanity, is it?"

"O, well," Mr. Culbertson confessed, as though he were making a rather dangerous admission to an internal revenue man, "I figure to get mine afterward. I figure to get half a million dollars."

"You do?" your correspondent chirped, brightening. "How? Movies? Show business?"

"No," Mr. Culbertson said. "Nothing like that. Writing. I'll get it on articles and books about contract bridge. Half a million."

At this point, Mr. Shepard Barclay took up the general explanation. Mr. Barclay is an odd one. Twenty years ago he and your correspondent broke into the newspaper business together as cubs in Chicago and, for a first assignment, stood all day on a pile of slippery hams about two stories high, watching the firemen digging in the ruins of a packing plant in the stock yards for the bodies of the fire chief and twenty other firemen who had been killed by a falling wall.

Gets Journalist Viewpoint.

Soon afterward Mr. Barclay left general journalism and specialized in billiards. Then he became interested in bridge. For several years now he has been covering the championship tournaments, also playing in some of them, and now that bridge has passed prize-fighting in the popular interest, he is having a very nice time as one of the foremost experts.

"I don't think he will make any half-million," Mr. Barclay said, "although he might if he wins because he is a very smart fellow. But he ought to make anyway $200,000. Culbertson estimates that there are about thirty million bridge-players in this country, but I think he is way long there. You have to leave out the kids, the ignorant, the insane and a certain number who could play if they wanted to but don't. I would say there are more than ten million, and everybody "who plays wants to read about it, either in some paper or in a book."

Posse Hunts Pair of Negro Bank Robbers in Indiana

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—A sheriff's posse was searching northern Indiana tonight for two Negro gunmen who held up the North Liberty Farmers and Merchants bank near here this afternoon, locked Cashier Clyde Sheneman in a vault and escaped with $3,000.

Holland Hotel in New York Placed in Receivership

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Holland, a 20 story hotel on West 42d street, was placed in receivership today.

FILE BANKRUPTCY CLAIMS AGAINST CHRIS PASCHEN

Creditors Accuse Former Building Commissioner.

Christian P. Paschen, building commissioner under the last city administration, who was indicted last March by a federal grand jury on a charge of income tax evasion, was named defendant in a petition in involuntary bankruptcy filed yesterday in the federal court.

The claims of the three creditors who filed the petition total only about $2,000, but the petition charges that Paschen's total liabilities are about $900,000. Attorney Arnold Kolb of Baker, Holder, Schmidt & Kolb, who filed the petition, stated that he understood that Paschen's assets were not more than $500,000, and that most of these were frozen.

Charges by Creditors.

The petition charges that Paschen recently committed an act of bankruptcy in that he "removed, concealed or caused to be concealed" a part of his property. Attorney Kolb said that his clients filed the petition after they were informed that other creditors had received preferred claims to part of the defendant's assets.

Attorney Kolb said he and his law partners would ask the appointment of a receiver today before Federal Judge George A. Carpenter. The plaintiffs in the petition are W. J. Wyman, a contractor with offices at Ontario street and McClurg court; the Plymouth Cordage company, Plymouth, Mass.; and the Kahn Brothers' Hay and Grain company, 4421 South Halsted street.

Accused of Tax Dodging.

Paschen is charged in the income tax indictment with withholding tax payments totaling $113,000 from the government for the years 1927 and 1928. United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson announced a month ago that his assistants would try to have the case brought to trial next month.

HEAD OF MUSIC SCHOOL INDICTED FOR MAIL FRAUD

Carmen Ferraro Sr., head of the International Grand Opera school, 64 East Jackson boulevard, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on charges of using the mails to defraud. Ferraro, the indictment charged, advertised widely that he could get aliens into the country as nonquota citizens by representing them as students of the opera. He is charged specifically with having swindled Lena Grandinal and Mary Casagrandi of Chicago and Lorenzo Venditti of Chicago Heights in this manner. On Oct. 19 Ferraro was arrested by immigration authorities and released in bonds of $10,000 pending a hearing on his alleged smuggling activities.

ABANDONS HUNTER HE WOUNDED; GARY MAN GETS PRISON

Marquette, Mich., Dec. 14.—(AP)—John Arts of Gary, Ind., must serve one to four years in state prison at Marquette on his plea of guilty to a charge of wounding a man while hunting and then refusing to give aid. The shooting occurred while Arts and his brother were "headlighting" deer. The injured man, since recovered, testified the brothers fled despite his cries for help.

MRS. CARRUTHERS INVOKES A DIARY IN DIVORCE SUIT

Today She'll Tell of Raid on Ranch.

Mrs. Grace Carruthers, great-granddaughter of a lord mayor of London is scheduled to appear today in the court of Superior Judge Harry B. Miller to tell of the raid she made at the Elgin, Ariz., ranch of her husband, Arthur C. Carruthers, capitalist and sportsman, who disappeared three years ago.

Mrs. Carruthers asserts that he fled with his secretary, Pauline Dwyer, and now is living with her. The testimony will be given at a hearing of Mrs. Carruthers' divorce suit.

Husband's Departure Told.

At a previous court session Mrs. Carruthers testified that her husband, whose fortune, she said, totaled more than $500,000 had suddenly liquidated the majority of his holdings and had driven away from Chicago in her automobile, leaving her stranded in their home at 441 St. James place.

On Sept. 5, 1930, she said, her husband departed with Mrs. Dwyer. Evidence that they were living together was discovered at the ranch in the form of a diary which both had kept, Mrs. Carruthers declared.

The diary fell into her hands, according to her testimony, during the ranch raid. Today Attorney Lloyd C. Whitman will read excerpts to Judge Miller.

"Chico" and "Chiquita."

In the document Carruthers, whom his wife describes as 6 feet tall and weighing 200 pounds, is dubbed "Chico" by his companion. She in turn writes of herself as "Chiquita." A day by day description of their "great adventure" as they drove from Chicago to the ranch, is recounted in the diary. The couple, carrying an outfit in a trailer, camped by highways during most of the journey.

Carruthers' attorneys have told the court that they do not know where he is, although they receive regular communications mailed from several western towns. They are contesting a substantial cash settlement which Mrs. Carruthers demands in addition to approximately $40,000 which she says her husband borrowed but did not repay.

Brooklyn Gang Leader Shot; Expected to Die

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Matty Martin, who became boss of the downtown Brooklyn water front gangs a little less than two years ago, after Red Donnelly went the way of twenty other dock invaders—with bullets in his chest and temples—was shot tonight. He was taken to a hospital with two bullets in his right side and was expected to die.

DR. BERKOWITZ QUITS AS HEALTH INSTITUTE CHIEF

Plans Low Cost Clinic to Treat All Diseases.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Possible ending of an old feud, and the opening of a new one, was seen yesterday in the announcement that Dr. J. G. Berkowitz has resigned as director of the Public Health Institute.

The resignation of Dr. Berkowitz and the adoption of a new advertising policy by the trustees of the Institute have ended the long fight which has been waged against the institute by the Chicago Medical society.

Both Dr. Berkowitz made it known that he has resigned only to embark on a new venture, one that he plans to establish a low cost medical clinic in Chicago, at which the public may be served for any ailment at a price within the means of the middle and lower classes.

Plans Low Cost Clinic.

"I had hoped," he said, "that organized medicine in Chicago would assume the task of providing a competent medical service for all citizens, regardless of their income. But they have failed. The middle class sick still fall into the hands of the quacks and charlatans and the patent medicine vendors. I propose to devote the rest of my life toward establishing a low cost clinic at which competent service will be given."

Dr. Berkowitz left last night for New York, where he will speak tonight on the Brenan. He will visit his daughter in Paris and then revisit the leading medical clinics in the French capital, in Vienna, Berlin and London. Upon his return he says he will take steps immediately to open a general clinic.

The dissolution of opposition is expected to be announced today by the executive committee, which framed plans for the merger, when it meets at the home of the Public Health institute.

Dr. King said the institute had no agreement with the Chicago Medical society, and that its services had been approved upon the appointment of a medical advisory board a year and a half ago, composed of prominent practicing members of the medical society. At a recent meeting of the council of the medical society a demand was made that the physicians on the advisory board resign unless the advertising policies of the institute were changed.

Dr. Berkowitz has done a splendid job," said Mr. King last night, referring to the fact that in the eleven years since the clinic first conceived the idea of fighting the venereal disease evil through the public clinic, Dr. Berkowitz has provided a low cost service and at the same time has operated a profit in management. The institute has created a surplus fund in excess of a million dollars, even though it is operated on a non-profit making basis.

Institute's Work Limited.

"The doctor resigned," Mr. King went on, "because his ambitions and his ideals are for a great and general clinic, treating all diseases of humanity. Our purpose at the institute is to restrict our work entirely to the treatment of venereal diseases.

"The general clinic is bound to be established sooner or later to meet the problems in a wide field which we feel we have met in our limited field. It is either that or state medicine."

Mr. King denied statements made at a recent meeting of the council of the medical society to the effect that the Public Health institute was in opposition.

Pleased by Resignation.

Dr. John H. Harper, president of the Chicago Medical society, when informed of Dr. Berkowitz's resignation, said he was happy to hear of it, and that "it might iron out some of our difficulties."

"I understand the institute has retained two high class clinic chiefs, and has modified its advertising policy," Dr. Harper added. "I should like to see the two new doctors join the medical society. Our quarrel has been with the flagrant type of advertising, the inferior quality of treatment at the institute, and the fact that the institute has violated the ethics of the profession in setting up unfair competition against reputable physicians."

Dr. Schmidt's Statement.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, noted physician and surgeon, whose stand in support of the Public Health institute and his fight to amend the ethical code of the medical society so that low cost clinics for the middle classes might be organized caused the society to oust him from membership in a celebrated case, was asked to comment on Dr. Berkowitz's resignation.

"It was demonstrated at the institute," he replied, "that medical services can be given to people of moderate or low means at a price they are able to pay. Dr. Berkowitz's stated aim to broaden the narrow field covered by the institute to include the treatment of many other human ailments is certainly a worthy and imperatively necessary one. The great majority of the public today is still without means to obtain proper medical treatment without forcing themselves into debt and assuming overwhelming financial burdens. In these days of depression the necessity of providing adequate medical services at a low cost is all the more important.

"It is unfortunate, however, that the organized medical profession cannot lead the way toward accomplishing this need, and must leave it to individuals outside their organizations to solve it instead."

SIXTY WIN DIVORCE DECREES IN ONE DAY IN COURTS OF RENO

Reno, Nev., Dec. 14.—(AP)—More than 60 divorce decrees were granted by the courts here today in a pre-Christmas rush, some of them to persons prominent in the motion picture and society world.

Kenneth Harlan, former Hollywood movie actor, was granted a decree from Doris Harlan, New York artist's model, while Mrs. Jennie Burgard, prominent in San Francisco society, obtained a divorce from John Clark Burgard, stock broker of that city.

Mrs. Burgard denied reports she and Lawrence Tibbett, opera star, will marry. She was granted custody of her three children. Today marked the second time Mrs. Burgard, the former wife of Robert J. Adams, son of the chewing gum manufacturer, obtained a Reno divorce. She was divorced from Adams here twelve years ago.

Katherine Clark du Pont was granted a divorce from Francis Victor du Pont, of the prominent Delaware family. Francis Hendricks, Denver composer, was divorced from Kathleen Wheeler Hendricks, his bride of less than five months.

Stewart McKee Morgan, socially prominent resident of Pittsburgh, Pa., was granted a decree from Margaret Elizabeth Morgan, who is justice of the peace at Sewickley, Pa., Pittsburgh suburb.

CUNARD DECIDES TO RENEW WORK ON GIANT LINER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The Cunard Steamship company has decided to complete the building of the 73,000 ton liner on which work was discontinued Saturday within six months. Directors of the line will meet Wednesday to discuss the matter, and it is probable that plans will be made then to persuade the government to assist in financing the vessel's construction.

But, with or without government help, the company will complete the ship and the work will not be delayed more than six months. What the Cunard company desires is a guarantee from the government enabling it to raise the necessary money on favorable terms.

All Clydeside, meanwhile, is striving to get work resumed at once at the shipyard, where 5,000 men were laid off Saturday.

Youth Shot While Trying to Catch Auto Thief

Stanley Lock, 24 years old, 1015 West Division street, was in the county hospital last night suffering from a bullet wound in the thigh, which he received early in the day when he surprised a youth trying to steal his car. As the thief started to drive away from 1345 Augusta street, where Lock was attending a party, Lock and his friends, Peter Trogan, 23 years old, 948 Elston avenue, and Stanley Grabowski, 22 years old, 1431 Emma street, followed in Trogan's car. At Rose and Cornell streets the stolen car was spotted, but the thief was joined by two accomplices, one of whom shot Lock. Then the three thieves fled in Trogan's car.

INDIA UNIVERSITY GIRLS MURDER BRITISH OFFICIAL

Two Gandhi Followers Shoot Magistrate.

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Two Bengal university girls cast aside Mahatma Gandhi's admonitions against violence today and killed their district magistrate. British authorities said the girls, both of whom were arrested, had been motivated by the desire to strike a blow for India's independence.

Pretending that they wanted to present Magistrate Charles Geoffrey Buckland Stevens of Tippera with a petition asking that a swimming competition be held in their school, the girls obtained an audience with him. Then, when he pointed out that their head mistress was the proper authority to deal with their plea, one or both of them drew guns.

Girls Shoot Orderly.

The bullets lodged in the magistrate's chest and he was dead when aid reached him. An orderly attempted to save him, and was wounded in the arm.

Police said the girls were Miss Santi Ghose, daughter of the late Prof. Dezendra Ghose, who taught at the Comilla college, and Miss Sunity Chowdhuri.

Although women have been accused of serving as accomplices in previous terrorist outbreaks in India, this is the first time they have been involved in a major role.

The United Provinces government published a statement saying that women were being urged to take a stronger lead in politics. The statement quoted a circular, reported to have been taken from a member of the all-India national congress, saying that "all should try to turn their women into leaders so that when men are arrested in the next war, women may become leaders. The English will not arrest women."

Government offices and schools at Comilla, where today's shooting occurred, were closed, as were those at Chandpur and Chittagong.

Police made an extensive search of houses in the vicinity of the office in which the magistrate was killed and took into custody Kanuni Datta, an attorney accused of terrorism in connection with raids at Chittagong last year.

Gandhi Sails for Home.

BRINDISI, Italy, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, closing another chapter in his battle for India's liberty, sailed for home today prepared "for whatever ordeal may be in store for my country and me."

After ninety days in Europe, most of which was spent at the second round table conference in London, he stood at the rail of the third class deck on the Italian steamer Pilsna and gazed sorrowfully at the receding shores of the continent—perhaps for the last time. Then he scribbled with his left hand the following message:

"Upon saying farewell to Europe I cannot help expressing my sorrow that my stay has been all too brief.

"But the peremptory call of duty upset my plans. I must hurry back to India. But I am carrying the richest treasure of memories.

"My contact with English statesmen, their unfailing courtesy, the deep affection of the English poor in whose midst I was privileged to live, the warm reception given me by the citizens of Paris, the sublime beauty of Switzerland, the simple manner in which the Swiss adopted me as one of their own, the sacred intimacy with Poet Romain Rolland and two busy days in ancient Rome are memories I shall never forget."

BURMA ENVOYS SPURN BRITAIN'S DOMINION PLAN; BOLT PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The round table conference on Burma, which started so auspiciously a couple of weeks ago, struck a snag today when three delegates, representing advanced elements of Burma, proved much less amenable than the British had expected and walked out of the conference. They are U Chitkaing, Tharawaddy U Pu, and U Tun Aung Hyaw.

The cause of the withdrawals was dissatisfaction with the British statement of intentions regarding Burma, in which Great Britain declared her intention to give Burma a constitution inside of which to grow to become a self-governing dominion.

Before withdrawing, the three delegates presented a statement saying they came to London under instructions from their priests to return to Burma immediately if anything less than a full, immediate and responsible government was offered.

"TONIC" SALES IN EVANSTON IRK AN ALDERMAN

Ald. Peter N. Jans of Evanston arose in council meeting last night and announced he had been making a survey of Christmas trade in Evanston during the last few days. His survey covered drug stores principally and a certain product they sold.

"This product should not be sold for the simple reason that mere boys may purchase it, and because it doesn't live up to the law," declared the alderman. "I refer to wine tonics. The labels on the bottles do not state the alcoholic contents are less than one half of one per cent. They state emphatically the contents are not less than 12 per cent. The price has been reduced from $1.50 to $1.15, and they're selling it by the case. And they're selling it right in our faces, and Evanston, gentlemen, is known as the home of the Women's Christian Temperance union."

Ald. Jans' request was referred to several committees.

Burglars Raid 16th Floor Apartment of Grain Broker

Burglars broke into the apartment of Lyman A. Stanton, member of the Board of Trade, at 5810 Sheridan road late yesterday afternoon and escaped with $13 and jewelry valued at $5,500. Mrs. Stanton told the police that she had left her home, which is on the sixteenth floor of the building, to go to a neighborhood store and that the theft occurred during the 20 minutes she was absent. The police said the burglars entered by leaping from a fire escape to a bedroom window.

FILIPINO LEADER FROWNS ON FREE STATE PROPOSAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 14.—Commenting on the free state plan for the Philippines, which is reported to have circulated anonymously in the congress as the latest proposal to solve the Philippine problem, Manuel Quezon, president of the senate, today said the scheme is not acceptable to the Filipinos because it does not offer a permanent solution.

Quezon added that while this plan may propose a government better than the one existing now, it is only a palliative and will not end the independence agitation in the island. He disclaimed knowledge of the origin of the proposal.

Quezon insisted that his plan involving autonomy with free trade extending for a certain period, probably ten years, is the best solution.

The attorneys and the judges hearing the case spoke sharply to him several times to make him raise his voice sufficiently so that his testimony could be heard. He was questioned by Prosecutor Northup as follows:

Q.—What was your salary and how long did you work for the sanitary district? A.—Two hundred and fifty dollars per month and I was on the pay roll about 18 months altogether. I was assigned to the miscellaneous law department.

Q.—Did you do any actual work for the sanitary district? A.—No, I don't think I did. I ran errands two or three times a month.

Q.—How did you subsequently go on the expense account pay roll. A.—Yes, in May, 1928. I was allowed an expense account.

Asks Crowe for Job.

Q.—Whom did you speak to about going on the sanitary district pay roll? A.—Crowe; he is a neighbor.

Q.—How long have you known him? A.—A good many years.

Q.—Now before you went on the expense accounts did you talk to any one? A.—Yes, I asked Crowe to do something about getting me on an expense account and he said all right.

Q.—This first expense account is about a trip to Peoria, how about that? A.—I made one trip to Peoria, but I did not do any investigating.

Q.—Well, you have lodging down for $3.50, and auto hire for $6, and meals, $5, and railroad fare and other items; how did you get those figures? A.—Well, it was an expense account. I was told I could get about $50 per week and I just figured it up.

By stipulation the state then produced all the expense accounts showing $1,448 for twenty-nine supposed trips to Peoria. The questioning continued.

Q.—What did you do in May, 1928? A.—I was in Europe. I sailed in the early part of April.

Q.—Was some arrangement made so that during your absence the money would be put in your bank account? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was with you in Europe and when did you return? A.—My wife was with me. I returned early in September.

Q.—Did you do any political work when you returned from Europe? A.—Yes, I talked with Crowe and then opened up a political headquarters in the Hartford building.

Q.—Who paid the rent and other expenses? A.—The Democratic party. Crowe said he would arrange for it.

Tells Crowe of Trip.

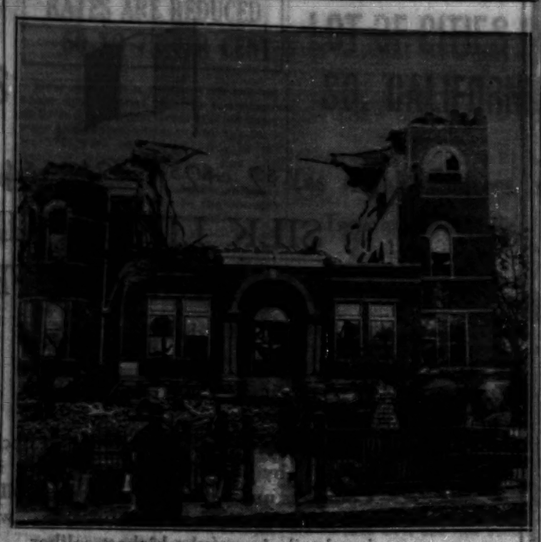
Q.—Now getting back to your European trip, did you let Crowe know you were going? A.—Yes, he said it would be all right.

Q.—Did you write him while in Europe? A.—I probably wrote him a letter.

Q.—Did you talk to any one outside of Crowe about getting an expense account? A.—I don't think so.

The witness could not remember the name of his political league. Prosecutor Northup refreshed his memory. It was the Republican Liberty league.

Southern Storm Leaves Many Homeless



Ruins of the Cuachita courthouse at Camden, Ark., one of the towns that suffered most severely from Sunday's tornado. Fifty families are homeless at Camden and Waldo and the death list has reached six in the storm stricken district. [Associated Press Photo.]

Death List Grows

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Tornado winds and cloudbursts have caused six deaths, injuries to a score or more, extensive property damage, and the inundation of wide areas in southwestern Arkansas and northern Louisiana.

Meanwhile, streams in the northern part of Missouri were rising tonight from heavy rains of the past 36 hours. Flood conditions likewise prevailed in a limited area of north Georgia.

At Camden and Waldo, Ark., relief for more than fifty homeless families and the work of clearing away storm wreckage were expedited today and streets were virtually open by night-fall.

THE MORNING SESSION

Robert G. Seelze, a barber in the Hotel Sherman, who was a witness at the morning session, traced some of the sanitary district pay roll money to the pocket of Martin Edelstein, former real estate expert for the district and one of the defendants in the case. Under the conspiracy law liability for the act of any one of the defendants may be imputed to all of them. Seelze was questioned by Prosecutor Northup as a "special witness." His testimony follows:

Q. When did you first get on the sanitary district pay roll? A.—March 1, 1927.

Q.—Who was your sponsor? A.—The late George E. Brennan. I talked to him in his office.

Q.—What was said? A.—I told him that I wanted work; that I was entitled to something in exchange for my activities for the Democratic party.

Reports to Chief Clerk.

Q.—Did you report to any one at the district after your talk with Brennan? A.—Yes, to Brodie, the chief clerk in the law department. I reported every day.

Q.—Did you ever have any talk with any one about expense accounts? A.—Yes, about six months after I went to work. I was in the office of Jim Brennan, the chief investigator for the law department, and a man around there, in an official capacity—a dark complexioned man—talked with me.

Q.—Following your talk with this man, what happened? A.—I was put on the expense account for Beardstown.

Q.—Did you ever go to Beardstown? A.—I was never there in my life.

Q.—Did you ever talk to the defendant, Martin Edelstein, about getting on the expense accounts? A.—Yes, I told him right after my talk with this other man. I had a chance to go on the expense account list, and he said: "All right, but, you know, you can't keep all that money you get—that some of it has to go for campaign purposes."

Q. Was anything said about how much you could keep? A. I was told I could keep about one third and that I would have to turn over two thirds to Edelstein.

Q. Was anything said about sharing your salary of $300 per month? A. No, just the expense accounts.

Q. How much was mentioned about putting in for expenses? A. At first I was told to put in not to exceed about $98 and later something was said about cutting down expenses and I was told not to exceed $53.

"They must have been running out of money about that time," interjected Defense Attorney Fink.

Prosecutor Northup then produced a little black book in which Seelze kept a record of his sanitary district employment. The book showed that he collected $2,398 in expenses and paid back two thirds of the money to Edelstein. He also said that many of his vouchers were signed for him by some other person, but that he always got the checks personally.

Seelze's expense accounts, which were exhibited in court, showed that even though he didn't actually spend any of the money, he submitted charges for the best of everything. Meals cost $3 and $4 and taxicabs cost $7 and $8 a day.

Another important development of the morning session was the announcement that two true bills have been voted by the grand jury against Fred Froelich, 2917 Monroe street, charging him with perjury. He was a prosecution witness last week. He said that he was kept busy with work all the time he was taking money from the public treasury. The grand jury decided that he either committed perjury while testifying before a grand jury during the original investigation or that he committed perjury when testifying before Judge Fisher. He took $2,200 in salary.

Among the forty payrollers testifying at the morning session was Mary Quill, 2918 Giddings street, who said that Crowe put her to work.

Paul W. Herbst, 4426 North Sacramento avenue, testified that he was sent by a Deneen ward committeeman to August W. Miller, one of the defendants, for a job. He said that he stuffed campaign lithographs of Al Smith into tubes for mailing.

"Let us get this straight," said Attorney Fink. "You were sent by a Republican to a Republican trustee and you say you were working in behalf of the Democratic candidate for President. What were you doing with Smith literature?"

"I was doing what I was told by my superiors," replied the witness.

Seize Berwyn Constable on a Charge of Assault

Arthur Fredericks, Berwyn constable, who is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 250 pounds, was arrested yesterday on the charge of assaulting Joseph F. Ghiar, 6442 Roosevelt road, Berwyn. The assault, Ghiar told Police Magistrate Martin McGrath of Oak Park, took place outside the courtroom of Justice of the Peace Fred J. Lorda in Cicero.

PLAN TO WORK IDLE MONEY FOR RELIEF FAVORED

Rochester Idea Praised by Chicagoans.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Consideration of the Rochester plan of emergency employment stimulation was taken up yesterday for discussion as to its adoption in Chicago.

Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the Joint Emergency Relief fund; E. M. Craig, secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association, and Patrick J. Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council were among those who expressed approval of this method of releasing new purchasing power through the combined pledges of citizens.

Mr. Ryerson said that he would present the question of organized support of the plan at the meeting of the governor's commission next Friday.

Ryerson Tells His Stand.

"We have been informed of the Rochester plan for some time," he said. "It is good so far as it goes, but, of course, it does not solve the problem of immediate relief. I do not know that this commission could complicate its work by taking up a new pledge card drive, particularly as we are asking the legislature for a $10,000,000 appropriation, much of which, if it is granted, will be devoted to some sort of work plan. The Rochester plan, contemplating individual expenditures for private improvements, might well be taken up by a civic or commercial organization. I am in doubt just now as to just what ought to be done about it by this organization, and we will take the matter under consideration. Strictly speaking, it is not a relief job, but a new business job, and no doubt would have an immensely good effect upon the community."

Mr. Sullivan said: "This plan to encourage spending and buying is splendid. Anything that will put money into circulation will help to bring back better times. I have just paid out $1,200 for improvements on my home that might have been deferred. I had the house painted and the basement remodeled."

What Plan Contemplates.

This is what the Rochester plan, through which $1,000,000 in new expenditures has been pledged in that city, contemplates. It merely means the immediate expenditure of money by those able to do so, the straining of individual resources to create employment. It is an expenditure, however, which has an immediate return in value to the spender and sends the dollars rolling through the hands of the workers into the regular channels of trade.

Mr. Craig pointed out that this movement is in line with the work of the American Construction council, which long has been promoting home modernization and programs to rehabilitate slum districts.

"During the last 10 to 20 years," he said, "architectural designs and mechanical methods have undergone much change, along with new materials and appliances. Changing a structure's original design is a large expense item, but interior improvements and appointments will make it as serviceable, economical and as comfortable as a new building.

Help to Building Owner.

"The owner of a modernized building has less worries about keeping his tenants than one holding aloof. Modernizing together with beautifying the surroundings attracts new tenants and retains old ones. Furthermore, when times are good the property will command a better purchase price."

If there is no house or apartment to remodel or refurnish there is the possibility of a new overcoat, a new car, new tires, new radio. The Rochester plan, in answering the question if such purchases stimulates employment gives this illustration:

"When you buy an overcoat, the salesman who makes the sales, the clothing worker who cuts the garment, the employes who shared in the task of weaving and dyeing the cloth, the farmer whose sheep supplied the wool, the railroad employes who moved the wool from the farm to the mill, and those who moved the cloth from the mill to the shop and from the shop to the store, all receive a share of the purchase price in wages. If you fail to buy a coat, if you make an outworn coat do for another season, you are helping to deprive all these employes of a living wage."

Teter Cites Low Costs.

Lucius Teter, vice president of the Central Republic bank, said:

"The labor and material supply interests should work together on a rehabilitation plan. Repairs and replacements can be made at a minimum cost now and such a plan would afford the best kind of relief for the unemployed. We need repairs and improvements more than we need new buildings."

Mrs. Joseph B. Long, wealthy patron of the dramatic arts, said:

"Now is the time to buy. There is a shortage of ready money, but great bargains await those who have it. I am making improvements in my home, replacing furniture with new articles."

D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair and member of the unemployment relief commission, said that he believed as firmly in the Rochester plan that he had decided to go ahead with a lot of repairs and alterations at the store, at a cost of from $8,000 to $10,000, a job that might have been deferred.

Kidnap Jeweler and Rob Him of $10,000 in Gems

Lawrence Lasan, secretary of the Hart Jewelry company at 27 East Monroe street, was sitting in the automobile of David E. Felsenthal in front of Felsenthal's home at 6825 Paxton avenue yesterday when two robbers climbed in beside him. They took from him watches, rings and other jewelry valued at $10,000 and compelled him to drive them to 31st street and Stony Island avenue where they tossed him out of the car. The automobile later was found at 31st street and Cottage Grove avenue. Lasan and Felsenthal had been about to start for La Porte to show the gems to a jeweler there.

WARNS CRITICS

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

After nineteen years, Mary Garden, opera prima donna, plans to get even with the music critics. She made known her plan last night in a talk at a meeting of the Woman's Club of Evanston, held under the auspices of the University Guild of Evanston.

"The critics have said for nineteen year that I couldn't sing," said Miss Garden. "However, I have had a fair amount of success.

"By the way, I'm writing a book on my life. And I'm devoting one whole chapter of it to critics. They're funny people."

Miss Garden did not mention what she expects to include in that particular chapter, but intimated that it would be stimulating. In her talk, she told of her life, discussed opera, and the Chicago Civic Opera company in general.

RABBIT PACKING CONCERN CLOSES; PELTS DISAPPEAR

County highway policemen found themselves the keepers of 150 white rabbits yesterday, as a result of the sudden cessation of business by the Associated Rabbit Packers, a concern which had its headquarters at Cicero avenue and the Lincoln highway.

The company, which sold pedigreed rabbits at $50 a pair, customers claimed, on the promise to purchase all of their offspring for their fur and meat, failed to open its doors yesterday morning. None of the officers appeared, but Miss Helen Sokowlowski, a bookkeeper, called in the police.

During the week-end, she discovered, the place had been entered and a valuable store of pelts and equipment carried away. All day yesterday a stream of customers called at the building, charging that they had paid for rabbits which had not been delivered to them.

Last evening the police found a rabbit breeder in Tinley Park who agreed to care for the stock of the company.

EASTERN ROADS WILL MEET MEN IN WAGE PARLEY

Executives Demand Slash of 10 Per Cent.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The eastern presidents' conference, which, in company with other regional management organizations, seeks a 10 per cent reduction in railway labor costs, made a conciliatory gesture today by acceding to the request of the union forces for a committee empowered to "negotiate to a conclusion" on wages and employment.

The decison of the heads of the eastern railroads, reached after six hours of wrangling, means that this group is continuing its efforts to solve an admittedly serious problem by friendly negotiation. While hoping that the labor forces will agree to a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent, the eastern managements have prepared the machinery for bringing about a 15 per cent reduction under the procedure required by the railway labor act.

An element among the managements which wished to end negotiation and take immediate action, modified its attitude for the time being to make today's announcement possible.

Willard Brings Action.

The results of the meeting represented success for the group led by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, who has sought conciliatory policies ever since the managements decided on a 10 per cent wage reduction. Mr. Willard was in Chicago during the meeting of the 1,500 general union chairman the last week. It was at this meeting that the unions asked for the appointment of a committee empowered to negotiate on wages and employment. Mr. Willard reported on his observations at the Chicago meeting at the gathering of the eastern presidents' conference.

The presidents met in the Bankers' club at noon and remained in session until nearly 7 o'clock. F. W. Leamy, vice president of the Delaware and Hudson railroad and secretary of the eastern presidents' conference, then issued the following statement:

"The eastern presidents' conference today, after considering the invitation extended by the Railway Labor Executives' association to negotiate the pending issues concerning unemployment and wages, reappointed Messrs Willard, Pelley, and Denney to serve on a committee to negotiate to a conclusion with the labor representatives.

Hopes for Settlement.

"It is understood that the western and southeastern railroads will meet this week to consider the request of the Railway Labor Executives' association.

"It is hoped taht this action will result in an early and amicable adjustment of the matters involved."

J. J. Pelley is president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and Charles E. Denney is president of the Erie railroad. These three men represented the east on a committee of nine presidents representing all regions which met here a month ago and discussed wages and employment with the Railway Labor Executives' association. This committee was empowered only to discuss policies. Mr. Leamy's announcements mean that the eastern managements are prepared to reassemble this committee and confer on it fully powers of negotiation.

It was ascertained that, in so far as the east is concerned, there will be no attempt to apply for a wage reduction under the 30 day clause in the contracts with the unions at least until the western and southeastern organizations are heard from.

MEET HERE TODAY.

Western railroad executives will meet in the Union League club at noon today to consider the proposal, made by the rail unions, that management and labor come together in conference to seek an agreement on wage reductions. John W. Higgins, chairman of the Association of Western Railways, will preside.

It was indicated by rail heads yesterday that the action of the western roads probably would follow that taken by the eastern carriers' executives in New York yesterday. The easterners agreed to meet the union representatives.

Victim of Gilday's Gun to Leave Hospital Today

Herman Knol, 17 years old, 6938 South May street, wounded by a bullet fired by Daniel Gilday, 65 years old, 6731 Perry avenue, dry reformer, will leave the Englewood hospital today. Gilday has been indicted and will be tried when the boy is able to testify. Knol has been promised a job at the hospital by H. E. Paul, superintendent there.

TWO RAILROADS ARE CITED UNDER ANTI-SMOKE LAW

Two railroads were among the nine persons and business concerns cited yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, for smoke ordinance violations. Those named have been summoned to appear at Chambers' office in the city hall today for a hearing. They are:

Chicago and Western Indiana, Dearborn Street station.

Strassheim & Co., 606 York place.

M. Wolkowanski, 1407 North Campbell avenue.

Joseph Urbas, 3310 Potomac avenue.

W. P. Haines, 509 Briar place.

American Can company, 9005 South Western avenue.

At the hearing Chambers will lecture on the proper methods of firing furnaces and warn against any violations of the city's smoke abatement ordinance.

BETHLEHEM CO. COMES TO AID OF ITS IDLE HANDS

Guarantees Living Wage in Steel Town.

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Bethlehem Steel corporation has volunteered to "give work relief to all employes on its Lackawanna pay roll who are receiving less than a living wage," Jesse Isidor Straus, chairman of the temporary emergency relief administration, announced today.

Mr. Straus said that Eugene Grace, president, and the entire Bethlehem management had cooperated in relieving the situation in Lackawanna, one of the so-called "black spots," where unemployment suffering was most serious.

"I only hope," said Mr. Straus, "that other industrial organizations will see fit, whenever they are financially able, to follow this lead.

Has Double Value.

"It not only is to be praised from a humanitarian viewpoint, but, in my judgment, this type of endeavor will also do much to stimulate and encourage the revival of purchasing power and in this way, perhaps, assist in the general economic recovery."

Of Lackawanna's total population of 41,061, the last census listed 8,943 as gainfully employed. More than 7,000 of them were on the Bethlehem pay roll, which includes all employes, whether receiving wages or not, who have been employed by the corporation and have not been specifically discharged or otherwise removed.

"Stagger Plan" Inadequate.

The statement asserts the "stagger system," inaugurated early in the year, has failed to spread possible work as widely as possible, and about reached the limit of its usefulness.

"It has been found," it said, "that a large number of men are now getting less than is necessary to sustain life. The Bethlehem corporation realizes that it has an obligation towards its employes to keep them from becoming relief charges upon the city of Lackawanna. It therefore voluntarily is giving work relief to all employes on its Lackawanna pay roll who are receiving less than a living wage."

It was said that the company has appropriated $100,000 for a start on its new program. The city of Lackawanna has appropriated $100,000.

AIR-RAIL EXPRESS RATES ARE REDUCED 50 TO 75 PER CENT

New rates on a national air-rail express system that include reductions of 50 to 75 per cent from the old rates were announced yesterday by the Railway Express agency and five of the nation's largest air lines. The new rates take effect immediately. The air express may be used by shippers from any town or city in the country where there is an express office.

The five air lines over which the express will be handled are United Air Lines, Western Air Express, Northwest Airways, American Airways and the National Parks Airways. The United, Northwest and American airways operate out of Chicago, and this city will be the hub of the air express system.

Under the new rates a ten pound express package moving between New York and Chicago costs $4.40 whereas the former cost was $10. Between New York and San Francisco the same weight package formerly cost $26, and now costs $13.80. Similar reductions have been made between all cities on the network of national airlines, which touch 117 airports.

Any article may be sent by air express except inflammables, acids, live freight and extremely fragile articles. The maximum weight per package is 300 pounds, and the maximum value $5,000.

HER FEET HURT, BUT WHAT'S THAT TO DO WITH LOVE?

In the Jovial ballroom at Calumet City a few weary couples are still dancing a marathon which has gone into its twentieth day. Among those who are slapping each other now and then to keep awake are Lenore Kretlow, 24 years old, of Milwaukee, and William Monroe, also 24, of Montreal.

Romance, which can happen anywhere, has come to Lenore and William. They want to get married. But they can't be wed, as they planned, on the dance floor Thursday. There's an injunction.

It was obtained yesterday by Lenore's mother, Mrs. Sadie Kretlow. She appeared before Judge Martin Finneran of Calumet City and declared that her daughter was too "mentally fatigued" to weigh properly the hazards connected with matrimony. The judge agreed.

Lenore, still pushing one foot in front of the other, was interviewed at the dance hall.

"Well," she asked sleepily, "who wouldn't be mentally fatigued? But I am going to marry William [wake up, honey, you're walking on my dog's]! I love him, and we will get married and ma can't stop us [gosh, how my feet hurt]."

SNOW AND COLD LOT OF CITIES IN SO. CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles Shivers as Temperature Falls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Snow, which fell to a depth of 9 inches at Saugus and 8 inches at Newhall, and came in flurries in outlying portions of Los Angeles, accompanied one of southern California's coldest days in a long time.

In Hollywood and central portions of Los Angeles the precipitation took the form of a cold, penetrating all day rain.

A mile or two west of Hollywood in the Beverly Hills section, in Santa Monica, and in the upland section of Pasadena, the rain again changed to snow which heaped an unusual burden on palm trees and rose bushes.

Ridge Highway Closed.

County and state officials sent out notices of the closing of the Ridge Route highway leading north from Los Angeles to Bakersfield, Fresno, and Oakland because of snow. Snow plows were ordered out.

Within the limits of Los Angeles two persons were killed and 160 injured in traffic accidents blamed on the storm.

The cold weather, which in its effect on householders compares with near zero blasts in other sections of the country, because of southern California's lack of house furnaces, was responsible for a wave of fires and crimes by itinerants.

Child Dies of Burns.

Martha Beebe, 4 year old child, died of burns when her dress caught fire from a log in an open fireplace. A motorman and conductor of an interurban train saved all but two passengers from burns and several from possible death by their hasty action when a car heater in a San Gabriel to Los Angeles trolley set fire to the car which was carrying twenty-one persons.

The lowest temperature in this area, 18 degrees, was recorded from San Gabriel cañon. Readings in the twenties were reported from all nearby communities, requiring the firing of tens of thousands of smudge pots in the orange orchard belt of 300 miles surrounding Los Angeles.

Floods in Southern Ohio.

Columbus, O., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Floods menaced southern Ohio today as streams broke their banks after two days of intermittent rain.

The inundations indirectly caused one death. Trapped in his automobile, Thomas Carole, 43, a miner, was asphyxiated by fumes from the motor of his machine near Martin's Ferry. The coroner, starting for the scene, was forced to climb to the roof of the car because of rising water.

Swirling waters swept eight to ten inches deep over state route 161 between New Albany and Granville, sections of the Scioto trail between Columbus and Portsmouth, and state route 11 between Chillicothe and Jackson. State route 146 was impassable for some distance near Cumberland.

Scores of motorists were forced to abandon their cars. Reports from Manchester said some motorists were trapped in their cars overnight by flood waters, but the reports were unconfirmed.

Flying Forecasts

Special flying route forecasts for the period from 9 p. m., Dec. 14, to noon, Dec. 15:

CHURCHILL GETS PLEURISY FROM AUTO INJURIES

[Copyright, 1931, By the New York Times.]

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—A bulletin issued at 10 o'clock tonight at Lenox hall hospital said that Winston Churchill, British statesman and author, who arrived here last Friday for a lecture tour and was struck and injured by an automobile last night, was suffering from an uncomplicated pleurisy in the right chest.

WINSTON CHURCHILL.

The bulletin, signed jointly by Drs. Pickhardt and Foster Kennedy, said:

"Winston Churchill is progressing favorably. Pulse and respiration satisfactory. There is an uncomplicated pleurisy of the right chest produced by the blow. A good night is expected."

Accident His Fault.

It was ascertained that Mr. Churchill's accident, for which he assumed all the blame, had been caused by the difference between traffic regulations in the United States and England, where traffic keeps to the left.

A 3,000 unit dose of anti-tetanus serum was administered to Mr. Churchill. A Scotland yard operative remained on guard outside his door and no visitors were admitted except the patient's wife and daughter, B. M. Baruch and George Eustice Corcoran, an old friend. Thousands of inquiries and messages of sympathy were received at the hospital and there were several radiophone calls from England.

Lecture Tour Postponed.

Mr. Churchill is visiting this country on a lecture tour which originally was scheduled to last until Feb. 14.

The lectures have been postponed, but Mr. Churchill's managers made it clear that none had been canceled. The date of the one schedule for Town hall here has now been set for Jan. 15.

ASK KANE COUNTY OFFICIALS TO CUT OWN PAY 10 PCT.

The Kane county board of supervisors, meeting yesterday at Geneva, unanimously adopted a resolution recommending that all officials of the county, elected or appointed, take a voluntary 10 per cent cut in salary next year. Most of the salaries are fixed by state law, and the supervisors could do no more than recommend the economy move. The resolution was introduced by Supervisor Marcus Damisch of Rutland.

STRICKEN ON STREET, DIES.

Samuel Scaiole, 60 years old, 1423 Rosemont avenue, a printing salesman, was overcome by heart disease yesterday in front of 3765 Lincoln avenue and died a short time later.

BANKERS UPHOLD REVENUE BOARD'S RELIEF PROGRAM

Traylor Assails Quibbling in Legislature.

Mr. Reynolds, that if the 1930 tax levy was funded [the program of the Chicago Real Estate board] you could sell the bonds?

MR. REYNOLDS—It's difficult to say but I don't believe they could be sold.

Representative Michael L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago], the house minority leader, asked next if Mr. Reynolds didn't think it better for the committee to direct its attention to learning why taxes haven't been paid, defining that as the "crux" of the situation.

MR. REYNOLDS [nodding]—We must pay taxes.

Urgency of the Situation.

MAYOR CERMAK—Isn't that what this bill is trying to do—by simplifying the assessing machinery? Something must be done so that we can pay our employes; we owe the school teachers $19,000,000 now. We can't pay anybody and there isn't a dollar in sight. The tax spending bodies must live within their revenue. We want to show you bankers that we are not spending more than we receive.

Mr. Reynolds gave way to Mr. Otis, who reviewed the situation leading to the appointment of the tax conference in a brief statement.

"All I can say," Mr. Otis told the committee, "is that we are behind the program and will support it to the fullest of our ability."

"We are trying to get some plan for the legislators to vote for," said Representative James P. Boyle [Dem., Chicago]. "We are trying to get something through by Jan. 1, because Chicago has $12,000,000 in bonds that will be defaulted on that date if something isn't done. It isn't the personnel of the board that is in dispute; we only want some measure which will draw 102 votes in the house."

Harris Gives His View.

After a short interlude during which committee members argued among themselves, Mr. Harris succeeded Mr. Otis, saying:

"If we have to start over again, gentlemen, the boat may be sunk. We must proceed, and if the tax conference thinks their recommendations are good, I am for them."

Mr. Smith echoed this stand, saying that the conference recommendations "have to be followed."

MR. SCHNACKENBERG—Have the banks lost confidence in the assessing and reviewing machinery?

MR. SMITH—I'm not able to say; but the taxes are not coming in.

SENATOR JAMES J. BARBOUR [Rep., Evanston]—This is Dec. 14. Do you think credit can be restored by Jan. 1?

MR. OTIS—That will take years. We are not going to be in a position of saying, "We will lend more money if you pass this legislation."

Mr. Traylor spoke next.

"You have witnessed this morning that there is no bankers' plan," he told the committee. "The bankers are declaring no ultimatum; they have no program; they are merely trying to state facts. This tax conference program is calculated but not guaranteed to keep us out of difficulties.

"I personally believe the first step is the adoption, in toto, of the entire program. I don't know if it will work; I do believe it is the best answer to those who are not paying their taxes. It will remove the objections and leave them without further defense.

"I can't say if these bills will get 102 votes or not but I'd rather be defeated trying to do something that will help than to compromise on something we know will not help."

He Opposes Compromise.

MR. SCHNACKENBERG — What changes can be made in the program which would make the bills likely to pass?

MR. TRAYLOR—There can be no compromise that doesn't lead to the same thing.

MR. SCHNACKENBERG — These bills have a rough and rugged road to travel if they should pass. I have a bill here which provides that the assessors be abolished and one assessor appointed by the governor and the president of the county board. The reviewers would be left intact but their powers curtailed so that they could only revise assessments when complaints were made. This system would hold until November, 1932, when the assessor would be elected.

MR. TRAYLOR—The trouble is that we are now in a quadrennial assessment. I have serious doubts if any assessor can complete the work as he should by Dec. 1, 1932.

SENATOR BARBOUR—How would it be if the appointive official should serve until 1934?

MR. TRAYLOR—Certainly, if you could have the board of review appointed with him.

MAYOR CERMAK (to Schnackenberg)—Do you expect 102 votes for your bill? Why don't you submit something both parties will vote for? You are willing to wipe out all the Democrats (the assessors) and leave the Republicans (the reviewers).

SENATOR BARR [smiling at the mayor]—The only difference is that you want to wipe out the Republicans and we want to wipe out the Democrats.

MAYOR CERMAK—Oh no, you can't get away with that. You can't pass a bill like that.

MR. SCHNACKENBERG—Mayor Cermak, do you think the abolition bill would pass the house with 102 votes?

It was at this point that Mr. Traylor arose and offered to pay half the salaries of the present members of the taxing boards, "if it was a question of jobs."

Traylor Speaks Again.

After a few moments of discussion on other points, Mr. Traylor arose again, saying that he wanted "to apologize to the committee for showing my feelings."

"I am not in politics," he said, "and often I cannot understand the difficulties you gentlemen face. But as the mayor said, I do believe the bankers, if anybody, should be concerned here. The bankers carry the community's money; they carry the funds of the municipality, when there are any, and they do have an interest a bit deeper than any one else.

"Nothing will hurt the community's property values or its good name like a wholesale defaulting. The fault is with the assessing machinery, not the personnel. If you take the assessing bill as it stands now and limit its operations to the election of 1934, you will at least give a trial of what I honestly believe will work."

Plans Receivership Bill.

Senator Kessinger then informed the meeting that receivers had been appointed for municipalities in distress and added that he will introduce a bill this week to care for such an emergency for Chicago, if it arises.

The meeting closed shortly after this. Mayor Cermak made a flying trip from Washington to attend the session. He was in the capital with other Chicagoans to urge that the Republican national convention be held in Chicago.

2,000 WOMEN CALL ON LEGISLATURE TO REVISE TAX SYSTEM

Two thousand women, representing forty women's organizations in the city and county, gathered in the council chambers at the city hall yesterday and adopted a resolution calling on the legislature to pass the bill for revision of the county tax assessment system which provides that two reviewers and a single assessor be appointed by the county board.

The resolution also urged the legislators to broaden the tax basis so as to take some of the present tax burden off real estate, and to "lay aside all personal and party prejudice." The action was taken after Mayor Cermak, President Myers of the school board, President Whealan of the county board, and other speakers had explained the revenue crisis to the women.

Mayor Cermak asserted that the legislature would refuse to pass the bill authorizing the president of the county board to appoint all three members of the reviewing and assessing board, and that passage of the so-called committee measure, allowing the governor to appoint one reviewer, the county board president the other, and the two appointees to select the assessor, was the only one which has hope of passage.

In the discussion which followed, Mrs. Harvey Tyler, chairman of the educational committee of the Woman's City club, demanded:

"But if the governor appoints Reviewer Charles V. Barrett, and the president of the county board appoints Reviewer Edward H. Hughes, and they appoint Assessor John E. Conroy, then where would we be?"

DRIVE TO SELL TAX PAPER WAITS ON LEGISLATURE

The drive to sell 1930 tax anticipation warrants to the general public to provide funds for the payment of city and school salaries and to provide for the retirement of bonds falling due on Jan. 1, apparently was at a standstill yesterday. No sales or pledges were reported yesterday.

After a meeting between D. F. Kelly, chairman of the citizen's committee in charge of the drive to sell the warrants, and the executive committee of the Association of Commerce, it was announced that no further plans would be made pending legislative action.

"It is hopeless to try to sell any warrants until we know just what relief the legislature is going to give us," Mr. Kelly said. "We have had inquiries from interested business men and are ready to start the drive in earnest as soon as we find just where we stand."

DRUGGIST ROBBED OF CASH.

Two youthful bandits, armed with revolvers, robbed Jack Sage, owner of a drug store at 1501 West Harrison street, of $95, locked him in a rear room, and escaped yesterday afternoon.

COUNTY FORESTS FACE DEFAULT ON $131,500 DEBT

No Buyers for Warrants; Payment Due Today.

The forest preserve board will default today on $100,000 of bonds and $31,500 of interest unless unexpected buyers appear to purchase tax anticipation warrants equalling the total of these obligations. County officials conferred with bankers throughout the day. Last night a committee of bankers refused to purchase warrants.

For a time officials expressed hope that the wolf in the forest preserves would be caged by the Chicago Zoological society, which is building a zoo on preserve property at Riverside. It was believed the zoo officials might be induced to loan enough money to tide the preserve over, but late in the afternoon negotiations ended with a curt refusal from the society.

No Warrants Outstanding.

The forest preserves have been considered the soundest of the local governments. There is not a dollar of tax anticipation warrants standing against the forest preserve board. Eighteen months ago $17,500 worth of warrants was sold to meet an emergency, but these were retired in three months. The board conducted its affairs without further sale by operating on surpluses of previous years and tax revenue.

Emmett Whealan, president of the board, and Charles G. Sauers, superintendent, attributed the preserves' present difficulty to their efforts to save funds. Last January the board sold $500,000 worth of bonds when it might have sold $2,500,000. The balance, which would meet present and future obligations, was not sold because the board believed sale and interest charges might be saved. This brought on the difficulty when anticipated tax collections failed to materialize.

If further efforts to meet the bonds and interest due today are successful, the district is not out of difficulty. On Jan. 1, bonds and interest totaling $653,000 will be due. On Jan. 15, $397,000 falls due and again on Feb. 1, $65,500 will be due. The district now has approximately $60,000 in cash. Employes have not received their last pay checks due the first of the month.

County Defaults On Bonds.

If the district defaults it will join the county and west park board in the ranks of defaulters. The county technically defaulted on bonds and interest of $1,868,400 on June 1 and the west park board defaulted on $268,500 in bonds and interest on Nov. 1.

In the next two months the principal local governments are obligated to pay more than $15,000,000 in bonds and interest. The city, with $11,779,432 due Jan. 1, has the major obligations. The county has $1,186,250 due on Feb. 1, and the sanitary district $1,123,965 at the first of the year.

MYERS PROPOSES $12,391,000 CUT IN SCHOOL COSTS

Trustees Start Task of Pruning Budget.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

President Lewis E. Myers urged [illegible] cut yesterday in the 1932 school budget. His written recommendations were presented to the board members as they started formulating the appropriations in the morning. When they adjourned for the day after six hours of pruning, the trustees had tentatively trimmed $125,000 from the budget of more than $100,000,000. The proposed slash of $12,391,838 appeared to impress the trustees, although it did not propose the elimination of any of the so called "fads and frills" of the system. It is unprecedented and few presidents have had the courage in the last 25 years to even suggest any cut.

More Cutting Is Necessary.

But if the president's recommendations are adopted in their entirety, it will still be necessary to trim $8,641,000 more from the budget in order to keep the outgo within the estimated income of the schools. The excess of proposed appropriations over resources in the educational fund totals $8,156,000. Mr. Myers' recommendations involve a reduction of the educational expenses amounting to only $3,115,000. So a cut of $8,041,000 more is required to get a balanced budget for this fund.

The major part of Mr. Myers' proposed savings is in the building fund. No new buildings and sites the president reports that Supt. Bogan says that a $7,000,000 decrease in this appropriation will not greatly interfere with the 1932 building program. Another reduction of $2,376,838 is proposed in the appropriations for maintenance and permanent improvements. These two savings are $9,376,838, both in the building fund.

Other Savings Recommended.

Another saving of $350,000 was recommended in the playground fund and $50,000 in the free text book fund. The savings in these funds, according to the school attorney, cannot be transferred to the operating assets of the schools, called the educational fund.

The $3,115,000 savings in the educational fund, which Mr. Myers reported has the indorsement of Supt. Bogan, attracted unusual interest. One item of an estimated saving of $700,000 is to be gained by adding about two more pupils to each teacher. This will shelve an estimated 301 teachers. The following table shows the number of pupils at present and the proposed number per teacher, together with the estimated saving in each group of schools:

Schools—	Pupils per teacher Now.	Proposed.	Estimated Savings.
Elementary	42.2	43	$273,065
Junior High	30.7	32	319,479
Technical High ..	27.8	29	136,358
Senior High	24.2	26	115,981

Another saving of $400,000 a year is proposed by reducing the compensation allowance given sick teachers. Under the present system, the president asserted, "it is possible for teachers to absent themselves and still receive $7 to $9 a day." He surmised that the present system is abused.

The auto maintenance paid by the board is to be reduced $10,000, a reduction of instructors in the Normal school is to save $65,000, the elimination of dental instruction is credited with another saving of $14,500; $230,000 is to be cut from educational supplies, the library service is pointed for a cut of $25,000, and $250,000 is suggested as a saving from the vacation schools for high school students and $150,000 from the elementary vacation schools.

Board Considers Small Items.

None of these proposals was reached by the trustees in yesterday's consideration of the budget. Most of the day's discussion was of various suggestions on relatively small items. On few of them was there affirmative action.

The business departments submitted recommendations for cuts totaling $142,775 in a written communication. Later in oral consideration of various items they suggested still other reductions. The trustees said that they had just scratched the surface when the day was ended.

TEACHERS NEAR AN AGREEMENT ON BOND ISSUES

The first indications of unanimity among the organized teacher groups regarding legislation for their relief appeared last night. At a meeting in the City club, the joint conference of principals and teachers adopted a resolution asking the 25 constituent organizations to approve a $35,000,000 bond issue for the working cash fund of the school board and a $26,000,000 bond issue for buildings.

In principle the conference approved the school board's program, according to President Charles B. Stillman, but cut the board's demand for $125,000,000 in bond issues to a figure deemed absolutely essential.

Meanwhile, in the office of Allen J. Carter, 120 South La Salle street, attorneys representing five of the larger teachers' groups, met in a further effort to agree, disapproved of a few measures that have been proposed and announced another meeting.

LAWYERS BEGIN FINAL PLEAS IN TAX TEST CASE

Final arguments were started yesterday before County Judge Jarecki in the Cloar tax case, which officials and tax authorities regard as the most dangerous among the many taxpayers' suits launched in the last two years to attack the validity of Cook county assessments.

JUDGE E. K. JARECKI.

The opposing counsel, Attorneys Morris Schaeffer and Roy D. Keehn for Mrs. Lillian Cloar of Oak Park, the plaintiff, and County Attorney Hayden N. Bell, who is defending the assessments, have informed Judge Jarecki that they will finish their arguments by tomorrow evening. He may give his ruling at that time, and will surely give it before Saturday, he said.

The suit is a test case for some 2,000 similar actions organized by the Oak Park Real Estate board. It asks that the 1928 and 1929 assessments be declared invalid on grounds of fraud. The principal contention for the plaintiff is that by failure to assess enormous amounts of personal property the board of assessors and board of review placed inequitable burdens on real estate taxpayers.

Judge Jarecki has three possible rulings in mind, it was indicated when he instructed attorneys in the case to consider such possibilities in their final arguments.

The first possibility, as indicated by those instructions, is that he will sustain the objections to the assessments made on behalf of the plaintiff, and throw out the 1928 and 1929 assessments entirely. That, it has been pointed out, would throw tax collections, on which rest the hope of financial relief for the county's local governments, into even worse confusion than exists now.

The second possibility is that Judge Jarecki would rule that the assessment of personal property in 1928 and 1929 was fraudulent; that he would order a personal property reassessment for 1930 to apply retroactively to the two previous years; and that he would order the real estate taxpayers be granted rebates on their 1928 and 1929 taxes in proportion to the increased revenue gained by the new personal property assessments. Such rebates would apply on 1930 taxes.

The third possibility is that Judge Jarecki will sustain the technical objections made by County Attorney Bell and hold that he lacks jurisdiction in the case to declare the assessments invalid in any part.

Real Estate Owners Ask Reassessing of Personalty

Members of the property owners' division of the Chicago Real Estate board, meeting with active members of the board last night at the Morrison hotel, adopted a resolution urging a reassessment of personal property as a means of lifting the burden of taxation from realty owners. A resolution indorsing the financial relief program of the board, which calls for a funding of the 1930 taxes over 20 years, was also adopted.

SOCIALISTS VOTE TO STAND BEHIND GERMAN CABINET

Pledge Support if Price Cuts Are Made.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—The Socialist party caucus today decided to back Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and his cabinet until January. They will give the chancellor a chance to enforce the price reductions he promised in his last emergency decree. But they warned him that if he fails to lower prices, labor will not accept the wage cuts provided in the decree and that the Socialists will then join the opposition communists and Hitlerites in a move to overthrow the government.

The Bruening government is confident that the Socialist decision will prevent the opposition ranks from enforcing a convocation of the reichstag when the party elders convene this week and that thus the government will have time to demonstrate the curative power of its decrees.

Police Raid Castle.

Meantime authorities are busily probing clews of the "Fascist plot against the republic." Tuesday police raided the castle of Rothenberg in Baden. It belongs to the 75 year old E. von Reichenau, German ambassador to Sweden in the day of the Kaiser. Forty-five guests were attending a tea party when the police broke in. Even the women were searched for "incriminating" papers.

Von Reichenau's private mail, including letters from President von Hindenburg and Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists [Fascists], was seized, but the former ambassador insisted there was nothing to implicate the Fascists. The 45 aristocrats, including several counts and countesses, threatened to sue the police, who are studying the correspondence they seized. The owner of the castle indignantly threatens to call the matter to the President's attention.

Urges Reparations Abolished.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Dec. 14.—Hendryk Colijn, Holland's outspoken member of the Young plan advisory committee, today frankly declared that the time had come to make a clean sweep of the reparations problem and permit world economy to escape imminent disaster. By implication he urged complete and final abolition of reparations.

His statement regarding the effect of German reparations payments on international trade was followed by statements by all members of the committee, including the American delegate, Walter W. Stewart. The purpose was to get each nation's point of view.

R. G. Bindschedler of Switzerland expressed the hope that the reparations problem would be settled in such a manner as not to encumber world business. Mr. Stewart's talk, as well as most of the other addresses, was shrouded in secrecy.

The committee, which is investigating Germany's ability to pay, met informally again tonight. Chairman Alberto Beneduce of Italy, Sir Walter Layton of England, and Mr. Stewart, it is learned, attempted to break down the stiff French and Belgian attitude regarding the scope of the committee's authority and how far its report can go.

The French insist the committee can only determine Germany's financial condition and possibly recommend a moratorium on conditional payments.

Switzerland Abrogates Treaty.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The federal council decided today to abrogate, as of February 4, 1932, the special commercial treaty with Germany. Exportations from Germany to Switzerland have more than doubled while Swiss exportations to Germany have decreased by half. Some Swiss business men have charged Germany "dumping."

BRITISH SPECULATORS CLEAN UP MILLIONS ON HOOVER DEBT ACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Because of the action taken by President Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in the direction of reducing war debts, thousands of British speculators are richer today by millions of dollars than they were at the end of last week. At the opening of the market today the value of the pound sterling was up eight cents over last week's closing, and all British government securities, as well as some industrials, registered gains of two or three points. These securities dropped off in the afternoon because of profit taking, but sterling held steady.

British bankers agreed that the chief factor was Mellon's statement, but also attributed some influence to Japan's dropping of the gold standard and to signs of a somewhat easier attitude on the part of the French.

Secretary Mellon's statements were hailed by all London papers today as a "generous gesture." None, however, explained that any cutting down of the British debt means the transfer of the burden from the shoulders of the European to those of the American taxpayers.

PREMIER DENIES CANADA WILL QUIT GOLD STANDARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 14.—Despite the expectations of business men and at least some Canadian financiers to the contrary, today's meeting of the Canadian cabinet was productive not of announcement that Canada is abandoning the gold standard, but of official denial by the prime minister that the dominion contemplates such step.

"Some enemy hath done this or some newspaperman," the premier jokingly commented when persistent rumors concerning gold standard abandonment were put to him.

"Please say this: The cabinet has not considered or discussed the question, either collectively or individually."

Wife to Get Divorce from Eddie Foy Jr., Judge Hints

Judge Joseph Sabath indicated yesterday in the Superior court that he would grant Mrs. Barbara Newberry Foy, 20 years old, a divorce from Eddie Foy Jr., stage comedian, provided she can prove she is a legal resident of Chicago. She testified yesterday that Foy struck her on two occasions during the last year, and was told to return tomorrow with proofs of residence. Mrs. Foy, a daughter of the late Max Newberry, advertising man, is staying with friends at the Standard club, she testified.

U. S. LETS DEBTOR COUNTRIES STOP PAYING INTEREST

Rankin Calls Moratorium Financial Buccaneering.

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A spokesman for Premier Laval said tonight that, in accordance with Secretary Mellon's verbal communication, France would not make her war debt payments due the United States tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Despite the refusal of Democratic and radical leaders in congress to sanction the giving of informal notice to the European debtor nations that tomorrow's interest payments might be postponed the administration took it upon itself today to assure the foreign governments concerned that they would not be held in default if the interest money was not handed over.

J. E. RANKIN.

Great Britain was one nation which asked and was so informed, it was announced at the state department. There were other nations, but their names were not made public.

Debate, characterized by several vehement attacks on the moratorium, broke out in both house and senate.

Mills Appears Today.

In the house members seized on the pause before tomorrow's appearance of Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills before the ways and means committee, which will signal the start of hearings on the moratorium legislation, to attack and to defend the proposed year of grace.

"The facts developed relative to the so-called moratorium on foreign debts to the United States reveal one of the boldest schemes of financial buccaneering ever attempted against the unsuspecting people of the United States," declared Representative John E. Rankin [Dem., Miss.].

Mr. Rankin was the most ardent of the attackers. Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.] was the most assiduous defender.

In the senate Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.], speaking for a bill calling for a conference to put the world's nations on a bimetallic basis, told how he would allow nations recognizing silver as the basis for currency to pay their debt in silver. Then he went on:

"The President advised a revival of the world war debt funding commission. Never was any proposal so definitely turned down. It is dead as Julius Caesar. Mr. Mellon tried to explain the proposal. He succeeded in showing that what it amounted to was a plan so that Great Britain could balance her budget.

"Mr. Mellon—who was compared to Hamilton, that is, before the depression, and who has been called 'the man who stayed too long'—tried to tell us it would not mean cancellation."

On Deposit in New York Banks.

The sums due tomorrow from the debtor countries, in particular Great Britain, France, and Italy, are already on deposit in New York banks, Mr. Rankin declared, and he pointed out that none of these three nations had asked for the moratorium. And as for the moratorium being aimed at Germany's relief he asserted:

"Germany has recently loaned 800 million dollars to Red Russia. As for the other eight nations involved, none of whom asked for this moratorium, it is now shown that Germany does not owe them one cent. But they all owe the international bankers who are back of this movement."

Terming Undersecretary Mills "Wall street's representative in the treasury department," Mr. Rankin said that President Hoover's proposal to recreate the world war debt funding commission was a sure step toward a reduction and eventual cancellation of the debts. Should the moratorium go into effect, he alleged, the money the debtor nations had ready to pay the government would be turned over to the private bankers.

Beck Defends Hoover.

Representative Beck defended President Hoover's course, drew precedents from constitutional history for the executive's dominion over the foreign relations of the United States and predicted political chaos if congress should fail to support the President. Recalling the saying proverbially ascribed to President Coolidge—"Well, they hired the money, didn't they?"—Mr. Beck went on:

"Yes, they hired the money, but that is no answer to it. If that had been an answer when Shylock was challenged on the validity of his bond he could have said, 'Well, Antonio hired the money, didn't he?'"

Mr. Beck warned the country against taking a "harsh and repellant attitude" toward the debtor nations. He declared the international bankers had revived Europe with loans, but admitted that a certain class of bankers had peddled American money abroad, virtually had forced it on Europe, in the greed to get high interest rates. He closed with Portia's appeal to the "quality of mercy."

BANK OF FRANCE SHAKEN BY FALL OF BRITISH POUND

the foreign currency holdings constitute a supplementary coverage and no currency is safe from attack when doubt is felt about the accuracy of statements which the bank issues.

Despite some $2,500,000,000 worth of gold lying in the vaults of the official French bank, Flandin managed to paint a highly alarming picture of the institution's exposed condition.

Tells of Bank's Difficulties.

Deputies of all political complexions sat breathless when the finance minister flatly declared the bank could not be allowed to stand a loss of $100,000,000 and revealed that it is having certain difficulties in covering its own administrative expenses.

But the most curious revelation came when Germain-Martin demanded to know if the $50,000,000 profit the bank had made on its initial pound investments is not being carried under a "miscellaneous" heading in statements. Flandin refused to divulge the meaning of the "miscellaneous" heading, which he admitted accounted for some $90,000,000.

This brought a howl from the left, and further dueling brought out the fact that the directors of the bank have never been persuaded to make an analysis of that mysterious item in their statements. Even Poincare yielded to their touchiness on this subject.

Laval Defends Bank.

The question seemed on the point of developing into a little Teapot Dome investigation when Laval jumped to the defense of the bank. He explained that the "miscellaneous" heading included, among other things, reserves against banking losses.

"The bank does not wish to publish the exact figures of its reserves against banking loss," the premier said. "For a long time there has been a violent, perfidious campaign against even the soundest French concerns. Flandin revealed to you that even the Bank of France has not been spared."

By that time the deputies thought enough financial skeletons had been taken out of the closet and the vote followed.

300 KILLED WHEN STEAMER BLOWS UP ON YANGTZE

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Three hundred Chinese were estimated to have been killed today when the small 40 year old steamer Tats blew up and burned in the Yangtze river.

News of the disaster was brought here by survivors, who said the vessel, carrying 600 passengers to a small port on the Yangtze estuary, was rocked by an explosion in the engine room and burst into flames. Some jumped into the icy waters and drowned, and others were trapped below decks and burned alive without a chance to escape.

One Japanese steamer and several native boats gathered around the blazing vessel. When an opportunity occurred they drew alongside, enabling many passengers to leap aboard and evade the flames.

DRINKS GASOLINE ON A BET; LIGHTS FAG; BLAST FATAL

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, Dec. 14.—An explosion of gasoline fumes in his mouth after he had taken a drink of the fuel on a wager killed a 21 year old peasant named Pieczerak in Malczew, near Lods, yesterday.

A group of young villagers were engaged in a drinking bout in a local saloon when a chauffeur entered and told Pieczerak he would buy him a drink of vodka if he would drink some gasoline first. Boasting that he could down the explosive without harm, Pieczerak accepted the wager.

After he had gulped the gasoline, Pieczerak lit a cigaret. Flames immediately burst from his mouth and he died in a few minutes.

HEIRESS AND HER MATE APPEAR TO HAVE DAD BEATEN

Leave Court Happy with Charges Dismissed.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Trouble seem to be ended for Beatrice Barclay Pickerell, 15 year old heiress, and her truck driver husband, Bert.

John C. Barclay, retired vice president of the Western Union, today withdrew the statutory charges he had preferred against Pickerell and the married couple left the Recorder's court hand in hand to live happily ever after.

MRS. BEATRICE PICKERELL. [News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am terribly happy to have it settled," Mrs. Pickerell, a tall, pretty girl in a Kelly green cape frock trimmed with white wool, told reporters. She wore a long ermine coat and black turban with a white pompon. She seems older than 15, as her husband looks younger than 21.

Not Unfriendly to Father.

"I hope there will be no more misunderstanding between my father and my husband. I am not unfriendly to my father and never have been."

Recently the Barclays took the girl away from her husband forcibly, and locked her in her bedroom. She escaped on Monday of last week by using down a rope of sheets tied together, and since then has been with her husband.

The pair were subsequently traced to a friend's house in Essex Falls, but they vanished from there overnight.

Warrant Dismissed.

About this time the bride's father appeared at a police station and obtained a warrant for the arrest of his truckman son-in-law. Pickerell later appeared at the police station here and surrendered. He was held under $2,000 bail which was dismissed today.

Mr. Barclay, wealthy director in several corporations, declined to give out the reason for withdrawing his charges. It was said here that he was persuaded when he observed the publicity his family received. He was not in court.

FIRED CONTROLLER ASKS IMPEACHMENT OF SOUTH BEND MAYOR

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Rudolph Ackermann, one of the chief sponsors of Secretary of State Frank Mayr, Jr. for governor of Indiana, tonight appeared before the city council with charges of misconduct against Mayor W. R. Hinkle, Democrat, and A. M. Long of the board of safety, Republican, demanding their impeachment.

Mayor Hinkle discharged Ackermann as city controller two weeks ago. Ackermann then charged that his opposition to gambling precipitated his ouster. Tonight he charged that the mayor neglected to act on gambling house complaints. He also charged that Hinkle and Long, who are business partners in private life, endeavored to trade some tractors they owned to the T. W. Mielkeljohn company, Fond du Lac, Wis., in exchange for getting the Wisconsin firm several city equipment contracts.

Ackermann also told the council that Hinkle and Long conspired to make Hinkle's brother, Harry, assistant fire chief and that Hinkle used city employés to groom his residence lawn and bury his winter apples. Hinkle and Long will answer the charges after Christmas.

Ackerman today filed a libel suit against the South Bend Tribune asking $100,000 damages for stories and editorials he claimed were defamatory to his character during the development of his fight with the mayor.

NEW TOKIO CHIEF TO MAINTAIN FIRM CHINESE POLICY

Insists Ousted War Lord Must Quit Manchuria.

BULLETIN.

NANKING, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A crowd of 600 Chinese students from Peiping stormed and wrecked the foreign office of the government today and then attacked the headquarters of the Kuomintang (Nationalist party), where government leaders, including President Chiang Kai-Shek, were meeting.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 15.—(Tuesday.)—Premier Inukai announced today the appointment of Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese ambassador to Paris, as foreign minister.

[Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.]

TOKIO, Dec. 14.—Tsuyoshi Inukai declared today in the first interview he has granted since becoming premier that Japan does not covet one inch of ground in Manchuria.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, ousted Manchurian governor, must remove his army from the Chinchow district, the premier said, and as soon as he does "Japan will evacuate occupied points outside the South Manchuria railway zone and peace will be restored to Manchuria.

"I don't see any other way out of the difficulty. Chang himself must realize that."

Confers with Emperor.

The premier gave the interview in his official residence at the conclusion of a four hour cabinet meeting. Previously he had lunched with the emperor.

He had to convey his ideas through an interpreter, but he made up for this handicap by graphic gestures. At one time during the interview he drew with his finger an imaginary map of Manchuria and China on the jade green plush cover of the table behind which he sat.

At another time he set down a teacup which he called Asia, an ash tray to represent America, and a matchbox to serve as Europe.

"No War With U. S. A."

Waving a hand at these symbols of the continent, he declared:

"America is the most powerful nation on the face of the earth. No country would be so foolish as to think even for a moment of attempting war against America in her isolated position. You are too far away.

"If America took the lead, all the other nations, including Japan, would follow suit. America, with her splendid army and navy, reminds me of a young lady with an enormous diamond necklace—it's all show; pure luxury."

Outlines Manchurian Policy.

He set forth the Japanese-Manchurian policy in these words:

"All we insist on is that China respect our treaty rights, under which Japan has acquired vast interests approximating 2,000,000,000 yen [normally $1,000,000,000], and that there be guarantees of the safety of the Japanese and the nearly 800,000 Koreans, who are Japanese subjects, so that they may live in peace and carry on their respective enterprises.

"Why, we wouldn't take Manchuria as a gift. We would have to look after and protect all those 30,000,000 Chinese—and feed them.

"Nor, does Japan want any part of China proper. Nobody but a fool would have any such thought. Any one who knows China's long history, the characteristics of the race, the vastness of the country must realize that for Japan or any other nation to try to wrest from them any part of their territory would be a simply impossible task. Their greatest weapon is the economic boycott, and they are also masters at passive resistance."

In Favor of Disarmament.

In response to a question regarding disarmament, the premier said, "I favor it. One of the most absurd ideas in the world is the insistence upon maintaining large armies and navies."

He concluded the interview with the hope that the United States would soon get over its streak of thrift and "buy more silk—Japan needs the money."

Stock exchanges throughout Japan were closed today following upon increases of as much as $30 in share prices as a result of the suspension of the gold standard. It was expected the exchanges would stay closed at least until the middle of the week.

Report Chiang Resigns.

NANKING, Dec. 15.—[Tuesday]—(AP)—A statement credited as emanating from the foreign office of the Nationalist government today said President Chiang Kai-Shek had resigned, although a portion of the government itself was ignorant of the resignation.

Considerable confusion has arisen over the situation. Last night the resignation of Chiang within two weeks was forecast. Earlier in the day reports were widely circulated that the president already had decided to withdraw, and in Shanghai, the other seat of the Nationalist government, it was said he had submitted his resignation.

Official denials were issued and a spokesman for the president asserted Chiang had not indicated in any way he had decided to give up his post.

Feeling against Chiang has been strong since the league of nations failed to secure the evacuation of Japanese troops from Manchuria by a specified time.

Report French Invasion.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HONGKONG, Dec. 14.—According to Canton newspapers, much anxiety has arisen concerning military movements on the southern frontiers of China. It is alleged French troops from Indo-China have entered Chinese territory at several points, ostensibly to pursue bandits. Canton is reported to be sending troops, but it is believed here that this is merely a plan to remove from the Canton area certain doubtful troops.

Paris Issues a Denial.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—The French foreign office tonight denied reports that French troops from Indo-China had entered Chinese territory.

Let's have JUSTICE for once with our Christmas giving

COMB BACK WINDSOR, $39.50

One-piece tulipwood seat hand shaped with posts coming clear through and wedged from the top. Spindles are hand-split hickory coming clear through and wedged from above. All spindles are fashioned as carefully as are fine golf club shafts. A hand made heirloom Windsor at the lowest price ever offered. Height of back, 45 inches.

COBBLER'S BENCH . . . $33.00

For fireside festivities. One-piece solid pine top with posts coming clear through, hand-wedged from above. The two-way drawer may be worked from either side of the bench. Wrought iron nails are used and edges are antiqued and softened. In mellow amber toned pine. Dimensions: 43" long x 16" wide x 13" to top of seat.

THERE has been so much flagrant injustice in this business of Christmas giving that we feel the time has come for some practical reform—so we offer a sensible solution to an age-old problem.

We have determined (by exhaustive research) that there are just two (2) classes of people for whom one buys presents:

1. People we like
2. People we cordially do not like

By a fortunate coincidence there are also just two classes of Christmas presents:

1. Presents people cherish—fondly
2. Presents people dislike—passionately

What then could be more reasonable, just, and equitable, than our solution—which is merely that we confine the giving of book-ends, department store etchings, cacti, and unwearable articles of apparel to members of Class 2.

For those Class 1 persons whom we really care a lot about we submit here 14 handsome Danersk "heirlooms of tomorrow."

Each of these lovely pieces is the kind of thing people hope for at Christmas time, but too seldom receive. The prices are so modest that they cause practically no pain to the giver—and unalloyed bliss and lifelong satisfaction to the recipient.

In our showroom you will find countless other distinguished Danersk pieces at prices ranging from the frugally modest to the lavishly ostentatious.

Come in and see them now.

All Danersk Furniture is built by the famous craftsmen of the Danersk Colony and is sold direct to the purchaser. It may be seen and purchased only in our own showrooms.

DEERFIELD SECRETARY . . $128.00
Base only $96.00

A small, thoroughly efficient secretary for the guest room, living room, or library.

A sumptuous gift—especially for a son or daughter of college age. In cherry and other fruit woods.

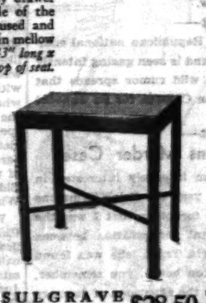
WESTOVER SIDE CHAIR $36.00

Solid Cuban mahogany and curly maple attractively combined. The upholstered seat is covered with jet haircloth with a center design in colorful embroidery. Useful almost anywhere in the house—as occasional chairs—for bridge—or for the breakfast room.



SULGRAVE LAMP TABLE $28.50

A simple Chippendale lamp table with hand-fitted flush construction, chamfered corner legs and stretchers.

Dimensions: 24" long x 17" wide x 27" high

HARLEQUIN TABLES . . . $27.00

Mahogany and Walnut

Clever fold-up construction—wonderfully convenient for entertaining.

BREWSTER BOOK-SHELF $12.00

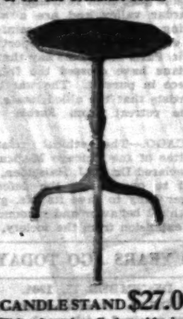
Built of selected native pine of lovely texture and color.

The shelves are housed in solid pine sides—not nailed and glued as is usually the case in mass-production furniture.

TRESTLE TABLE . $24.00

In this Danersk table, each interesting detail of graceful turning, softened edges and hand construction found in the original is preserved. Useful as an end table, for tea, or to hold a reading lamp.



CANDLE STAND $27.00

This charming little table is a flawless example of 18th Century American design . . . a lovely piece for any living room or library.

The laminated top is of curly satinwood, with a border of holly, ebony, and satinwood cross-banded. The dais and legs are of choicest solid mahogany. Legs hand dovetailed to the shaft.

Size of top, 16" in diameter x 20" high

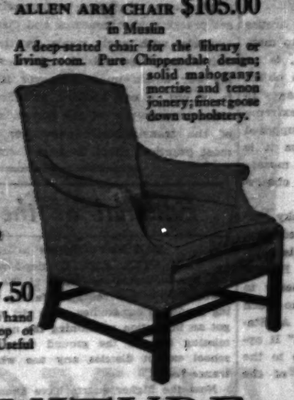
MINIATURE HUTCH . . $90.00

A reproduction piece—Queen Anne design. Imported walnut, with burled top, drawers, and doors. Convenient in any room in the house.

Dimensions: 19" long x 11" wide x 30" high

LAMP STAND . $17.50

Of imported walnut—legs hand dovetailed into base—top of one solid piece of wood. Useful in a hundred ways.



ALLEN ARM CHAIR $105.00

in Muslin

A deep-seated chair for the library or living-room. Pure Chippendale design; solid mahogany; mortise and tenon joinery; finest goose down upholstery.

DORSET END TABLE $16.50

Of solid knotty pine and maple, edges subtly antiqued by hand. Design inspired by a dutch table of the Pilgrim Century. Dimensions: 23" long x 13" wide x 20" high.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE CRITICAL PERIOD IN RAILROAD HISTORY.

The proposals of the railway unions are being considered this week at meetings of the railroad presidents. The unions have said they would agree to a consideration of a 10 per cent wage reduction provided other questions, notably that of a stabilization of employment through shorter working hours, could be taken up at the same time. It is those conditions which the railroad executives are now weighing.

Certain general observations are offered here in advance of any decision which is reached.

It is now fairly clear that the railroads cannot continue to do business much longer on the basis which has prevailed in recent months. The loss of earning power has resulted in the collapse of security prices which are simply the measure of the railroads' credit. If railroad stocks and bonds are an unattractive investment today, the railroads tomorrow will be unable to obtain the money to maintain their properties in a condition to give work to their employés. Inevitably, then, some of the business which the railroads now have will be lost to competitors, never to be regained.

It is idle to pretend that the situation can be saved through governmental action in raising rates. The interstate commerce commission is a powerful agency, but though it can fix the charges which the railroads may make for their services it cannot compel any one to use those services. There are good highways now, running from everywhere to everywhere in this country, and to supplement the highways there is, or soon will be, a splendid system of internal waterways.

The railway unions have been reluctant to admit the force of these facts. Their attitude presents a striking parallel to that prevailing in the coal industry under pressure from the miners' union. The miners thought they had a strangle hold on a commodity for which the demand would grow indefinitely, year after year. The result was that the miners forced an increase in the industry's wage bill and the cost of coal at the moment when competing fuels were making a bid for the markets. Today the coal industry in the regions once dominated by the union is flat. New mines have been opened in rival fields and competing fuels are firmly entrenched.

It is the old story of killing the goose which laid the golden eggs. If the railroads and their employés look to the government to rescue them from their difficulties by increasing rates, the loss of business to competitors and the destruction of business will be hastened. The salvation of the railroads and the welfare of their employés lie in winning more business through a lowering of the costs of transportation.

The industry seems destined to set its course for the future within the next few weeks and perhaps within the next few days. It is to be hoped that the lesson of coal will not be wasted.

THE DEIFICATION OF M. LENIN.

Dictator Stalin's eye fell on a piece written by a young professor in which the point was made that in his youth Lenin was not as intolerant of moderate Socialists as he later came to be. This so enraged the dictator that he had the young professor sent to the academic sticks, and the editors of the paper which printed the objectionable article were publicly censured.

Lenin's body, embalmed in a manner to arouse the envy of the Selected Morticians, not to mention the Institute of Mortuary Research, is on display in its shrine in Moscow. It is an object of veneration. The faithful make pilgrimages to it. It is a curious practice in view of the extreme rationalism which good bolsheviks are supposed to employ in their thinking, but perhaps it is justified by the conviction that the Russian masses cannot be won away from all religious observances in a moment.

But the punishment of young Prof. Slutsky cannot be explained by similar appeals to expediency. His banishment means simply that there is nothing resembling free inquiry permitted in Russia. The late M. Lenin is god. It is blasphemy to suggest that he ever could have varied by so much as a hair's breadth from the true doctrine. As Stalin said, "Lenin's bolshevism is an axiom." It appears that Lenin worship is no mere sop to the superstitious millions; it is the religion of the communist leaders as well.

Naturally and inevitably, men living under a government which they like will glorify the founders of that government. The other day a gentleman from California expressed indignation that Prof. Albert B. Hart had given currency and credence to the statement that George Washington on occasion had been heard to swear. Considering the stupidity, the jealousy and the cussedness which Washington encountered in his public career, it would be remarkable, indeed, if on at least a few occasions he did not lose his self-control. However, that is another matter. Washington was greatly revered in his day and afterward, but there never has been a time in this country, during Washington's life or later, when he was officially regarded as a divinity, a time when any one could not have written or said anything he pleased about Washington's political opinions. In his own day they did say that he wanted to be king and they did accuse him of devotion to monarchical principles.

Fortunately for Prof. Hart he is not a Russian writing of Lenin. If he were, he could expect a one way ticket to Great Falls, Mont., and an appointment as assistant professor of free-hand drawing in the high school.

MURDEROUS YOUTH.

The usual drive by misdirected humanitarianism is now under way, this time to save the youth McWilliams. His appeal is pending and comment upon the legal aspects of his case would be improper. But the effort to affect public opinion and thus reach official clemency has nothing to do with the court proceedings, which are now the responsibility solely of the Supreme court. The preparation for an appeal for clemency should be resisted. It is based mainly, if not entirely, upon the youth of the killer. It shirks the fact that he is quite old enough to distinguish between right and wrong and to know the consequences of his acts. It shirks the fact that an appalling proportion of our crimes of violence is committed by youth, by many as young as he.

Whatever the causes of this undisciplined and ruthless character, and whatever the theories advanced for its prevention or cure, there is as yet no substantial reason for discarding the restraining influence of punishment. The youth in question was governed by vicious and violent impulses and motives. He was a persistent lawbreaker and willing, as he proved, to take life. There are too many like him, and to permit him to escape the lawful penalty for a ruthless murder is to disparage all adequate restraint upon youthful recklessness and criminal tendency. To procure clemency, though the court may find that his conviction was lawful, is not only to deprive the community of an important restraint upon violence, but also to deprive youth itself of protection from its own vicious impulses. It is false humanitarianism and bad public policy.

THE WAY OF TAXES.

Hal Foust, TRIBUNE touring in the south, found that Florida is trying to run the state government on revenue from motorists. Both the gasoline and vehicle taxes have been raised and the officers of the American Automobile association estimate that 71 per cent of the state's income will be derived from such taxes and fees. And, what will not be unfamiliar to Illinois taxpayers, the revenue is not distributed proportionately to the regions of its origin nor is it converted to the improvement of roads.

Florida evidently is taking what the traffic will bear in the way decided upon as the easiest to get an income without levying on depleted values. For the tourist it is a tax on the climate and the pleasures Florida bountifully offers to citizens escaping from winter bound states and the tourist traffic can determine for itself what it will bear. If the state overdoes its levies the traveler will try to find a substitute climate in Alabama, Louisiana or Texas. There is a point where taxation begins to defeat itself. It either produces evasions, the hiding of sources or the bootlegging of contraband or it kills the thing upon which it endeavors to live. The cure is always painful and frequently disastrous and there are now plenty of illustrations the world over of the difficulty of recovery.

Unbalanced and inconsiderate taxation always knocks itself in the head. The more painful thing is that usually it knocks the prosperity of the community in the head first.

THE TRANS-ATLANTIC RACE.

A dispatch from Washington the other day reports of measures designed to encourage the construction of fast trans-Atlantic vessels for the American marine. Which is all very fine in the way of ambition, but if we are not going to waste more of our money on well meant but inexpert enterprises, we had better get German designers, since no really fast passenger ships or even warships have been designed in the United States. We advise also that the Pullman company be invited to build the passenger quarters, for no passenger ships are really fireproof and the Pullman company would bring a fresh mind and much skill and experience in such construction and in the convenient employment of available space.

Finally, the hand of Volstead should be kept off, for passengers will not travel on dry ships and are not obliged to. If we propose to enter trans-Atlantic competition of the first rating we would better face the conditions which control success. Our government cannot dictate these conditions, but must respect them if it proposes to compete successfully. If it is willing to give free play to American enterprise, in due time we can hope for some respectable place in the race, but it must begin by understanding what it must meet and by making the best use of all available resources without obstruction from bureaucratic interests or prejudices, and without irrelevant considerations. National pride and ambition, admirable as they are in themselves, cannot offset practical shortcomings and disadvantages. To compete with such rivals as the German and British marines calls for the best skill we can lay our hands upon wherever it is to be had, in or out of our borders, and first of all it requires recognition of the demands and standards of the trans-Atlantic passenger trade and the most practical effort to meet them.

Editorial of the Day

TAX SUPPORTED SCHOOLS.

(The Elgin Courier-News.)

A tax supported university in the middle west recently dismissed a co-ed for failing to keep up passing grades in her studies. The girl went to court and got an injunction restraining the university from dismissing her, on the ground that a tax supported school cannot dismiss any one who pays the entrance fees.

Now the higher courts have knocked out this injunction; and the step ought to lead to a saner viewpoint on the function of the state university.

Even if such an institution is supported by the taxpayers, it has a right to say who may and who may not enjoy its privileges. Each of its students is, in a very real sense, getting help from the state treasury. In dismissing students who fail to study, the university is simply protecting the taxpayers' interests.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gods fall where they may. W. M.

If They Had Only Thought of It.

I.

"You must die," exclaimed the enraged peasants as they began to belabor the old Wolf with clubs, hoes, and spades; "you ate our little Red Riding Hood!"

"But hold," said the mean old Wolf, "just a minute! I ate the funny little brat, 'tis true. But all around the world wolves eat all sorts of things from fat old hens to funny faced little brats. I can't help world conditions."

So the peasants said that after all the Wolf was right and they turned him loose.

II.

"Nero, Rome is burning," yelled the highly excited Roman Citizen, "and yet you sit there in your window as you contemplate the dreadful scene and play on your fiddle. And you're a rotten fiddler."

"Listen, friend," said Nero as he started up "Turkey in the Straw" on his fiddle, "towns have been burning down all over the world since people commenced building the dam things. Rome is burning, true, but there's probably a couple of towns over in Britain and three in Abyssinia, two in Persia, and one up in Transalpine Gaul that are also on fire and burning up, or burning down, whichever you like, right at this very moment. Don't hold me responsible for world conditions."

"You may be right at that, Nero," replied the Roman Citizen, thinking deeply for a few minutes. "Can you play 'Old Folks at Home' on that thing?"

III.

"Stop!" shouted the High Sheriff to Bluebeard as the latter was walking down to the barber's to get 'em dyed. "A word with you, my good man. You've had eight wives, what?"

"Well," yawned Bluebeard, "maybe. Anyhow, I've had quite a lot of women hanging around me."

"You said it," exclaimed the sheriff, "and up in the secret closet, and by the topknot, and they're all dead, and you killed 'em. I arrest you."

"Listen, officer," explained Bluebeard; "men and women have been killing one another since Cain started the thing. It's a world-wide condition. Go on and sell your papers and leave me alone."

IV.

"Little Boy Blue!" shouted his master in great excitement. "Come blow your horn; the sheep's in the meadow, the cow's in the corn!"

"Act your age!" murmured Little Boy Blue as he rolled over on the other side and prepared to go to sleep again. "Don't sheep always get into meadows, and don't cows always jump straight for the corn? It's a world-wide condition. Good night."

"Come to think it over," said the master as he walked away, "the kid's right about that."

IMMUNE.

Aloof madonna, with deep-brooding eyes,
Serene wide brows, and enigmatic smile,
Within whose tenderness has dwelt awhile
God's knowledge of creation, birth-rack wise,
To that enchanted realm that round you lies,
What can I, worldling, bring that may beguile
Or lure you from that love-encircled isle
Fanned by the zephyrs of a baby's sighs?
No rhapsody of music, passion-wild,
No artist's dream in marble, painting rare,
Nor melodies dropped soft from finger-tips
Into the flower-fed distilling air;
She kneels to you and God . . . a gold-haired child
On your white breast . . . your son's rose-velvet lips.

ETHELYN BETANT CHAPMAN.

JAPAN has gone off the gold standard. Wonder what happens when a nation does that? We've been in Japan three or four times, and the only gold we ever saw was in the front teeth of a waiter at the Grand hotel. About all we can see that Japan can do about going off the gold standard is to make that waiter get his teeth pulled.

"WOES CLUSTER; they tread upon each other's heel." For besides the stories of what effect the w. k. depression is having around the world come the pictures of Clara Bow.

AND EVERY TIME a Republican national committeeman stops off here and is seen gazing intently at a telephone booth the wild rumor spreads that the G. O. P. has settled on Chicago for its national convention.

The Caleb Summons Murder Case.

R. H. L.: I have been intensely interested in your revival of the nine year old Caleb Summons case. You perhaps have forgotten that I was the only witness to that fatal conversation between Caleb Summons and Marta Troop (she was found dead in that old Charleston house, you remember, only a few hours later) on the afternoon of January 11, 1922, in St. Michael's churchyard. Unfortunately, it was a smoky, foggy afternoon, and I was looking rather intently for that old tombstone inscribed "Lived in Charleston Sixty-eight Years—Almost a Charlestonian" (and, by the bye, that tombstone is not in St. Michael's churchyard, but in quite another one there), and I paid little attention to the slight, distinguished looking man and rather shabby young woman so intently whispering to one another almost at my side. So my testimony at the trial was of relatively little value. But my interest in the affair was intense, and I have yet a book of yellowed clippings and photographs that I eagerly collected at the time. These I went over exhaustively this evening, and I have come to the conclusion that the man in the sixth row of the crowd on the Linebook cover is really Caleb Summons himself. Of course, Caleb Summons' hair was snow white, and the man on the cover of the Linebook has quite dark hair, but otherwise the resemblance is too startling to be a coincidence.

TRAVERS MODWAY.

STEEL went to a new low of 41¾ yesterday, but the barbers came out with an announcement that shaves would continue at 35 and haircuts at 75 until after Christmas anyhow. This is a contrary world—why couldn't shaves and haircuts go to a new low and Steel go to a new high? But life is like that.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION proposes a cut of $13,000,000 from the Chicago school budget. That's fine; there's $13,000,000 less we'll owe the teachers next year.

GROWTH RATE OF CHILDREN

THE tendency in recent years has been to neglect the weighing and measuring of children. The enthusiasm with which this procedure was welcomed a dozen years ago caused most people to go too far and to expect too much. Weighing was done too frequently and too many conclusions were drawn from slight variations. Not enough attention was paid to differences of build, racial peculiarities, and differences in the size of the bones.

The records were too conspicuously displayed. Awards and demerits, direct and indirect, tangible and intangible, were bestowed without a proper regard for all the facts. Some children were made to feel that there was something wrong with them when there was not, or that they were inferior merely because their weight charts did not show the gains that other weight charts did.

Dr. C. B. Davenport thinks the weight-height movement should have another day in court. He would modify the method of interpretation and make some other changes, and this being accomplished would use it for a new purpose. One consideration, overlooked under the old plan, was variation in rate of growth dependent on season and age. Growth is not steady. It spurts and it slows. It is more rapid in certain seasons than in others. Climate is a factor.

More important than these is the variation due to age. Growth is very rapid in the months that immediately follow birth. The rate is much higher in the first six months of life. It slows year by year until about 4 years of age, but the decline is never as rapid as it is in the first year. At 4 years of age the rate of growth begins to increase. It increases slowly until about 10 years of age. At 10, or thereabouts, there begins a spurt which continues until about 13. After that there is a gradual recession. Growth in stature slows up from 13 on, and finally stops at about 17.

Dr. Davenport says we must take into consideration unevenness of this rate curve, and particularly the spurts. He advocates not only weighing and measuring height, but other bodily measurements. His main point, however, relates to what this all leads up to.

In the old plan emphasis was put on the flats. Dr. Davenport would pretty much disregard the flats. Whenever the weighing and measuring shows the child to be in a spurt, then is the time for care and caution. Rapidly growing children are under great strain. They should be spared all the artificial strain that can be under our social system. Rapidly growing children should not be given hard courses of study, or made to do outside work, or be allowed to play too hard, or to be subjected to great emotional strain.

BODY LICE.

Mrs. M. W. writes: What is the cause of body lice? Will ill health cause them to germinate, or will a skin eruption create them, or must they be taken from some other person? This case cannot be caused from filthiness. Please give treatment to get rid of them.

REPLY.

Lice hatch from lice eggs. When a person has them they have got onto him from some one who is infested. The skin eruption of louse infestation is due to scratching. It is one effect and not a cause. The standard remedy is kerosene; warm vinegar is the remedy used to get rid of the eggs. When treatment is supposed to have failed, the recurrence is generally because of further association with infested people.

IRREGULAR HABITS.

Mrs. L. B. writes: My son, 24 years old, has been idle now for nearly a year and is irritable, miserable, and hard to advise. He has made good money and squandered it and now has nothing. He is very nervous, thin, and not strong. He is a great reader and often, when returning home near midnight, reads until 3 or 4 in the morning. Then, of course, he has to sleep in the daytime. Is this harmful to his system? It has not been yet, only headaches sometimes, and I fear the consequences.

REPLY.

Irregular habits and particularly irregular sleeping habits are unwholesome. The boy's behavior may be indicative of a disordered personality, and that is more important than poor sleeping habits.

OAK TREE TRIMMED.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a lovely old oak tree nearby us which is greatly in need of trimming. We have so few oak trees in Chicago it is a shame to let this one die. I called the city hall but was told they couldn't do anything. Surely they employ tree surgeons in our parks who could spend a few minutes on this oak.

G. E. M.

I ber to advise that the tree in question was trimmed by this department a few days ago.

RIGHT OF REDEMPTION.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the owner of real estate lose the right of redemption when he does not appear in court under a foreclosure proceeding? G. D. S.

The answer is, No.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CANNOT BE BOTH.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a will legal if witnessed by one's brothers? 2. Is it necessary to have a notary seal on same? L. H.

1. Yes, but they cannot be both witnesses and beneficiaries.
2. No.

INTEREST IN DEFAULT.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What can be done to collect interest coupons past due on first 6½ per cent gold bonds on an apartment building. Payment is promised weekly, but upon presentation of coupons we are put off. 2. Can the trustee or [3] signer of the trust deed be held responsible? 4. Could a tenant in this building pay his rent with these coupons? 5. Bonds were sold by a certain bank which later consolidated with another. Do not this case and similar ones hold up the thawing out of the former's assets? G. A. S.

1. The ordinary course is to place such instrument in the hands of an attorney for foreclosure. The trust indenture may contain specific wording as to how long a default must continue before foreclosure.
2. Ordinarily the trustee is not personally liable.
3. The function of the trustee is to pledge assets by way of security. Hence, the signer would be a proper defendant to foreclosure. If your present object is to collect the coupon by a suit at law, then such suit should be brought against the person whose name is signed to the coupon.
4. Not unless the rent is payable to the same person whose name is signed to the coupon.
5. We do not understand your question.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 15, 1915.

CHICAGO.—John J. Halpin is guilty. The one time master of the Chicago detective bureau and most powerful police potentate the city has known for many years was convicted of bribery and conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice by a jury which deliberated more than five hours. It was not a matter of guilt or innocence with the jurors, but there were those who sought a light punishment for the strongest "higher-up" since Inspector McCann. Halpin was convicted of selling protection to the members of the clairvoyant ring, accused of the swindling of Mrs. Hope L. McEldowney, formerly of West Salem, Wis., out of $15,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[By E. O. Phillips.]—Chicago won the Republican national convention on the first ballot in the Republican national committee. The date set is Wednesday, June 7, 1916, one week before the Democratic national convention assembles in St. Louis. Chicago won by this vote: Chicago, 30; San Francisco, 12; St. Louis, 7; Philadelphia, 2.

LONDON.—All Anglo-French troops have been swept from Serbia and the next big battle in all probability will be fought in Greece, despite the efforts of the Hellenic king and government to save their country from the horrors of war. The British and French forces have made good their retirement down the Vardar valley and are now approaching Saloniki, where reinforcements are being landed. Reports received in Paris and Rome say that the Bulgarians have crossed the frontier of Greece in pursuit. The war office here insists that the allied losses during the retreat from Serbia were small.

CHICAGO.—The ethical relations committee of the Chicago Medical society declared Dr. H. J. Halseiden, who refused to operate on the deformed Bollinger baby to save its life, guilty of unethical behavior and recommended his expulsion from the society.

DECEMBER 15, 1901.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland.—Marconi has received a telegraph message from England without the aid of wires. The inventor of the wireless system of telegraphy has accomplished his aims. Standing by an instrument on the top of Signal Hill, the promontory back of this city, and looking down upon the Atlantic ocean, he and those with him heard the ticker repeat time and again the three dots in the Morse system which stand for the letter "S." Marconi announced that there was no doubt they heard the signal which he arranged for his assistant in his laboratory at Poldhu, in Cornwall, England, to send to him.

CHICAGO.—This city rolled up in fur coats and ear-muffs and clung to steam pipes and base burners while a December weather record was being dashed to pieces. The mercury on the Auditorium tower at 6 o'clock in the morning touched 3 degrees below zero, a new mark for the first half of December. Three deaths are attributed to the cold. Below zero weather is predicted for all day today, Sunday.

CHICAGO.—Passenger train No. 4 of the Illinois Central, east bound and two hours late, collided with a west-bound freight two miles east of Perryville, Ill. The second car of the freight train was an oil tank. It exploded and the burning fluid enveloped both trains of overturned cars. Not less than nine persons were killed either by the collision or the flames. The dead were incinerated in the wreck. It is believed four other persons were burned to death.

CHICAGO.—Just to show that the north side and Hyde Park have not cornered the beauty market, the West Division High school announced it has a list of beauties who can make all the others seem plain. It announced three "champion beauties." They are Miss Arline Dux, Miss Myrtle Smith, and Miss Ruth Bergmann.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 15, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Postmaster General James has sent his resignation to President Arthur to take effect about Jan. 1. He assigned pressing private business as the reason for resigning. He will enter on the duties of the presidency of the Lincoln National bank of New York about the first of the year.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Guiteau trial was brought to a sudden halt through the illness of one of the jurors. The atmosphere of the courtroom is very bad and the jurors are rather unused to hotel fare with which they have been supplied since the trial began. The result is considerable indisposition among them. At the short session Guiteau acted more outrageously perhaps than any other time since the trial began. He called the witnesses "liars," "whelps," "thief," "scoundrel," and such other names, made speeches and generally acted only as the ruffian he is could act. George Scoville, his attorney, lectured tonight on "The Guiteau Case." He complained that the press and the pulpit were not disposed to give the defendant a fair trial. He was particularly severe on the ministers.

VIENNA.—The bodies of 23 more victims of the Ring theater fire horror were recovered. The ruins of the burned theater were thoroughly disinfected. It is now certain that the exact loss of life in the holocaust will never be known.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

STURDY INDIVIDUALISM.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—THE TRIBUNE joins the President in advocacy of sturdy individualism as the one means of working us all out of the devastating depression which rules the whole industrial world. The best illustration of the effectiveness of sturdy individualism is revealed in the TRIBUNE reports of the milk situation in Chicago:

Milk is one of the major items of the present food supply. There are many distributors operating in the Chicago area. They have many expensive plants and their wagon drivers compete on every street. They probably have great quantities of stock in the community; let us hope not watered. But since consumption of milk has been declining for a year, although there are hundreds of thousands of underfed people, it seems necessary to reduce the retail price from 13 to 12 cents a quart.

The distributors employ hundreds, perhaps thousands, of drivers. These are all organized. They see the business declining and feel the need of some remedy. They receive $200 a month, with some perquisites, a wage that has held steady through all the recent troubles. They are almost a privileged element of the city.

Finally the farmers, organized in a "pure milk association," have been delivering milk the last two years at 3 to 4 cents a quart. They have been suffering from the depression since 1921. They work from 4 o'clock in the morning to 7 o'clock in the evening every day in the year. For this labor they receive about $30 a month when milk is as low as 4 cents a quart. Moreover, they have suffered so much the last ten years that quite half of them are deeply in debt.

With full knowledge of these facts, the distributors decide the prices must be lowered. The distributors can bear only a fourth of the cost, though they maintain a wasteful system. The wagon drivers refuse to bear any part of the cost and publicly announce that the farmers must take the cut. With these decisions about agreed upon, the distributors meet the farmers in the loop and tell them they must bear three-fourths of the burden.

Thus the representatives of sturdy individualism, which allows no governmental interference, look over the field and decide that those who are least able to pay must bear the cost. They seem not to know that manufacturers of farm machinery who operate in Chicago or salesmen of shoes and clothing cannot sell their output to farmers on $30 a month. And not knowing this, they cannot see that half the unemployment of Chicago today is due to the impoverished condition of the millions of farmers who we id buy from Chicago. So they sit down in their ignorance and decree that farmers must take less than 3 cents a quart for milk which costs the distributors 9 cents to deliver, and thus prolong and intensify the depression they propose to alleviate.

What I have said of milk might be said of stock farming, of fruit growing and wheat raising. The able men who talk of sturdy individualism will, apparently, fix the depression upon us and make these campaigns for the relief of unemployment permanent.

WILLIAM E. DODD.

ALIENS WITH JOBS.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—I should like to suggest that the mayor of Chicago appoint a committee of unprejudiced American citizens to investigate and determine the percentage of noncitizens employed in the various factories and offices in the city of Chicago while thousands of American citizens are idle and unable to procure employment.

Furthermore, I should like to suggest that all foreigners be removed from their jobs and replaced by American citizens during the present business depression, or until such a time that there will be ample work for both. C. A. L.

THE NEW GAS.

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 8.—The gas bill controversy raging in your columns shows the gas company to be correct in its economies and wrong in its psychology.

The housewife who adjusts the air shutters on her burners to admit enough more air for proper combustion of the richer gas and also opens the valves not quite so wide (to compensate for the increased richness of the gas) will find her monthly bill slightly lower than before. The one who pays no attention to the air-fuel ratio, opens the valves as far as they will go, and reads a continued story until she smells smoke will find her gas bill higher than before.

Regarding Mr. Campbell's letter published today it has been true of manufactured gases that BTU's (heating value) can be produced and delivered more economically in a lean than in a rich gas; moreover, in the haphazard fashion that gas is burned in many homes it will give about as much service per cubic foot. Natural gas is another story. It happens to be made by nature, very rich in BTU's per cubic foot, and even after bearing fixed charges on several million dollars' worth of pipe line permits delivery of heat at lower cost than from a lean manufactured gas.

Straight natural gas could hardly be burned in burners designed for manufactured gas, but most of them will handle your blended gas satisfactorily and economically if intelligently adjusted and controlled. W. B. JONES.

A TRAYLOR MAN.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—It is the history of nations in a crisis a leader comes to the surface. It is a coincidence that this future leader of the nation was born and bred not so far from the boyhood homes of Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, and it is also a coincidence that, like Abraham Lincoln, this coming leader eventually came to the great state of Illinois to make his home.

Melvin Traylor of Chicago will be our next President, subservient to no man; able, courageous, a man true to his own convictions. He speaks out what he believes to be true. He is a lawyer and successful business man; from this combination we can look for statesmanship.

JOHN B. HOOD.

FREE MUSIC.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—In the Voice of the People on Dec. 8 appeared a letter captioned "Union Rules," signed by one Joseph Morrison. The matter referred to in Mr. Morrison's letter is one of which I know nothing. My first knowledge concerning it came through Mr. Morrison's letter.

But in reply thereto:

The Chicago Federation of Musicians has let down the bars to an extraordinary extent during the present depression. In most instances where a legitimate charitable entertainment has been promoted in behalf of the needy we have permitted our members to render gratis service, and this gratis service which our members are thus giving is now running close to the hundred thousand dollar mark. But when a function is being promoted which is not for the purpose of raising funds to feed the unemployed and the hungry that function becomes a competitive engagement, an engagement which should be played by professional musicians, the same professional musicians who are now giving so freely of their services in the cause of charity.

The matter to which Mr. Morrison refers was not a charitable entertainment or function; it was what we call a competitive engagement. And when a request is made for the services of a nonfederation band to play for a noncharitable function permission is granted only upon the express stipulation that a federation band of the same size is employed to play also. In other words, we exact man for man under these circumstances. JAMES C. PETRILLO,
President.

Before you spend for 1932, study

ONCE or twice might have been an accident. Three times, four times, might have been a coincidence. But when in 38 cases out of 46—duplicate ads running in Liberty and other mass weeklies stopped more readers in Liberty—when in city after city—in 6 widely scattered parts of the country—when, in issue after issue—for 6 consecutive issues of the four mass weeklies—the average advertising page stopped from 23 per cent to 112 per cent more persons per unit of circulation in Liberty than in any other mass weekly—that, certainly is something to think about. Something to ask about. Something to study, yourself, before you spend for 1932.

Consider The Sources

These facts came from the first attempt to measure "reader-interest" by going beyond traditional personal judgments and self-conscious reader votes. By making last July and August, an actual count of editorial and advertising items magazine readers had SEEN and READ. That's worth pondering.

The facts were found by ringing 15,000 door bells at random in Philadelphia, Pa., Springfield, Mass., Greensboro, N. C., Columbus, Ohio, Topeka, Kansas, Sioux Falls, So. Dakota, one city a week for 6 consecutive weeks. By finding possessors of current issues of the four mass weeklies. By going through their copies with them, page after page, marking with crayon every editorial and advertising item remembered as having been seen or read.

That's worth pondering.

And these facts were collected by the trained research staff of Dr. George Gallup, Professor of Journalism and Advertising at Northwestern University. Collected, in three of the six cities visited, while official observers from the Association of National Advertisers looked on.

And that's worth pondering!

Six Cities, Six Issues in a Row

Complete and independent tabulations of what readers saw and read were made for the four mass weeklies in each of the six cities, using a different issue of the four weeklies in each city.

Yet, see how, city after city, issue after issue, the same facts were found—

The average advertising page in Liberty had stopped

In Philadelphia, 60% more persons than in Weekly A, 35% more persons than in Weekly B, 106% more persons than in Weekly C.

In Springfield, 20% more persons than in Weekly A, 14% more persons than in Weekly B, 63% more persons than in Weekly C.

In Greensboro, 45% more persons than in Weekly A, 26% more persons than in Weekly B, 132% more persons than in Weekly C.

In Columbus, 61% more persons than in Weekly A, 4% more persons than in Weekly B, 104% more persons than in Weekly C.

In Topeka, 43% more persons than in Weekly A, 26% more persons than in Weekly B, 165% more persons than in Weekly C.

What This Means From a Cash Standpoint

48% more persons than in Weekly A
23% more persons than in Weekly B
112% more persons than in Weekly C

But from a dollars-and-cents standpoint, the importance of these findings grows. During these past years of commodity and advertising price fluctuations, Liberty's rate has been pegged at pre-boom levels while its circulation has steadily increased. Today, Liberty's advertising page cost is lower than that of any other major magazine. Dollar for dollar, therefore, on the basis of the Gallup averages, your appropriation in Liberty should stop: 132% more persons than in Weekly A; 64% more persons than in Weekly B; 138% more persons than in Weekly C.

the recommendations of Success

vertising in general must inevitably be looked to for an explanation of Liberty's reader-stopping power: Editorial contents.

People (not advertising people!) buy magazines for the stories and articles, not the advertisements. Advertisers spend their money where editors have done a job of winning the crowd. Now, as we see at the top of these pages, editorial interest may make a 23% to 112% difference in the stopping power of the same advertisement.

For Dr. Gallup checked the reading of editorial pages even as he checked advertising pages. And he found that the average editorial feature in Liberty was read by: 17% more persons than in Weekly A; 6% more persons than in Weekly B; 41% more persons than in Weekly C.

Not because Liberty had some new, heretofore unknown type of editorial contents! (Every one of the other weeklies had some features rating higher than many of Liberty's.) But Liberty contained MORE of the type of editorial item read most widely elsewhere.

More of the human interest articles. More of the dramatic features. More of the humorous features. MORE of the simple, bold, concise write-ups that are the current taste of a post-war public.

And, long before the Gallup tests gave the detailed results of this policy, Liberty's editors gazed upon the spectacle of more men and women asking for Liberty—week after week, fifty-two times a year—than any other magazine in America.

The Ball Is In Your Court

Elsewhere in this advertisement you will find a list of advertisers who have made their dollar work harder by spending it in Liberty.

Elsewhere is a list of typical new business—placed in the past three months—which forecasts a bigger and better year for Liberty in 1932.

Elsewhere also is a chart important to advertisers who think in terms of buying power. A chart showing how Liberty reaches as many actual readers per advertisement in the upper income groups as any other weekly—and far more in the middle groups.

Think these things over. Think over the 38-ads-out-of-46 through which Success points its finger at Liberty. Think over the facts of 6 cities, 6 issues. Then, make sure that your organization has received a personal presentation of the Gallup Report—before you complete your spending plans for 1932!

Write a note on your own letterhead, and a Liberty representative will bring your copy of the Report promptly. Address Liberty, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

Fourteen percent of LIBERTY'S circulation is found in the "Over $5,000" income group (where is only 9% of the country's population.) But this is unforced placement. LIBERTY goes there because it's wanted there. It is bought—voluntarily—week after week on a copy-by-copy basis. No surprise, then, that approximately the same number of persons in this group (per dollar expended) remembered having seen the average page advertisement in LIBERTY as in any of the other mass weeklies which place, largely through solicited subscriptions, from 20% to 30% of their circulation there.

CONSTITUTION IN CONGRESS HANDS IS DRIFTING: BECK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—James M. Beck, nationally known constitutional lawyer and Republican member of the house from Pennsylvania, tonight assailed the growth of the federal bureaucracy in the capital and called for reduction of government expenditures to the limit of its reasonable and legitimate necessities.

JAMES M. BECK. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

The Pennsylvania representative attacked what he termed gross inequalities in the collection of federal taxes and their expenditure, calling attention to instances where small states received more from the federal government "in federal subsidies" than its inhabitants paid out in government taxes. He cited figures showing that only 2 per cent of the American people pay any income taxes at all and that less than 400,000 persons pay 97 per cent of all federal taxes.

Essential Nature Changed.

Mr. Beck charged that the power to tax has been utilized by those in power in Washington during the years since the constitution was ratified to "change the essential nature of our government." He said that the federal government, through the power to tax and to appropriate, "has been able to exercise many governmental powers which were not only never granted to the federal government, but some of which were expressly withheld."

The power to tax, Mr. Beck continued, has enabled the government to exercise many powers "which were not only never granted to the federal government, but some of which were expressly withheld." He added that the power to tax "can be made the power to redistribute property."

"The men who framed our constitution," said Mr. Beck, "expressly provided that taxes could only be imposed for the common defense and the general welfare. This was not a grant of power to exact money for any purpose that congress might regard for the general welfare, but "it was intended as a limitation upon the power to tax the many for the benefit of the few, or for any nonfederal purpose. Unfortunately, the language has been misinterpreted in practice to mean that the federal government has almost unlimited power to tax the property of the citizen and an unlimited power to appropriate the proceeds for the benefit of any class or section.

Trending to Confiscation.

"It not only can confiscate any portion of my income, but by succession taxes it can take any portion of my capital when I die. The theory of the law is that I have no right to dispose of my property after my death, except by the sufferance of the state; and on this profoundly immoral theory it levies a toll, when a man dies, upon his estate, and that toll could conceivably be the entire estate."

Through the power to tax and appropriate, Mr. Beck added, the federal government has been able to exercise many governmental powers never granted to the federal government, some of which were expressly withheld.

"Indeed, this power of appropriation is the vulnerable 'Achilles heel' of our form of government," he said. "Take, for example, some of the more recent departments of government like that of the department of commerce or the department of agriculture. They have grown to gigantic proportions, but many of their bureaucratic activities can find no possible sanction in the constitution. The government has appropriated the money for nonfederal purposes and the supervision of the use of these appropriations by federal bureaus has destroyed many of the reserved rights of the states."

Mr. Beck asserted that the "framers of the constitution failed to distribute political power, including the power to tax and to appropriate equitably."

"I could mention seventeen states, whose combined population is less than that of New York and yet they have thirty-four senators and New York only two," he said. "With this inequitable distribution of political power, which has no counterpart in any other free nation, it is not unnatural that the moneys raised by taxes are appropriated for the principal benefit of the very states which contribute least to the common fund.

"For example, the two senators from Idaho have the same power as the two senators from New York, but Idaho contributed, in 1930, to the federal treasury, less than a million dollars, while New York contributed nine hundred and twenty-eight millions. Idaho, while paying into the treasury the sum of $868,000, drew out of that treasury, in federal securities, $1,315,000; and this illustration could be multiplied by other states, which draw from the federal treasury sums far in excess of their contributions."

HUNTER ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

Moline, Ill., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Ernest Van Dusman, 44, of Moline was killed Tuesday afternoon when his shotgun accidentally discharged while he was hunting near Geneseo.

MAYOR APPROVES SPECIAL POLICE TO GUARD PUPILS

Mayor Cermak gave his support yesterday to a proposal for better policing of the school districts of the northwest side to prevent attacks on children. His offer was in response to a request made in the city council chambers by five hundred mothers and fathers from that section of the city.

The plan provides that the unemployment commission hire men who will be used to replace traffic policemen at some of the crossings in the district. The policemen thus released from traffic duty will be directed to patrol the school neighborhoods.

Cermak Approves Plan.

"I think it a good suggestion," said the mayor, "and I will take it up with the commission immediately. The men must be paid from the relief fund, and they should be men whose families are in urgent need. Besides that, I want you to feel that Commissioner of Police Allman is doing all in his power to provide safety for your children."

The number of men to be used as special policemen will be limited to fifteen until it is determined whether the plan is satisfactory. It is expected that more men will be added later if the plan is pronounced feasible.

Parents Take Action.

The parents in the district north of North avenue and west of Western avenue became aroused over repeated molestation of children going to and from school. Several meetings of the Parent-Teacher associations culminated in yesterday's session at which a resolution was adopted asking the mayor to support the plan.

Besides the mayor, State's Attorney Swanson, Commissioner Allman and Alderman James C. Moreland [41st], Joseph C. Ross [40th], Walter J. Orlikoski [39th], and George W. Robinson [36th], attended. Several leaders of Parent-Teacher and other groups spoke in favor of the plan.

JOHN STONE ENDS LIFE WITH GUN IN LOOP BUILDING

John Stone, 66 years old, an employé of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin at 33 North La Salle street, committed suicide late yesterday afternoon by shooting himself in the head. His body was found by a porter in a storeroom in a subbasement of the loop building.

No motive for his act could be ascribed by his associates, and it is presumed that Mr. Stone became temporarily deranged. Mr. Stone had been with the law firm for 15 years, and prior to that was librarian at the University club. He was learned in literature, and enjoyed a wide acquaintanceship with men in many walks of life. He lived at 69 West Ontario street.

An inquest will be held today at the Kelly Undertaking rooms at 6918 Wentworth avenue, to which the body was taken by the police.

WOMAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

Canton, Ill., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Ellen Sinkens, 71, was killed last night when struck by an automobile while returning from church. A. G. Medden of Farmington was the driver.

DRUGGAN, LAKE SENTENCING IS DELAYED A DAY

The sentencing of Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, former beer barons who have pleaded guilty to income tax evasion, was again postponed yesterday because of the absence of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward continued the cases until 10 o'clock this morning.

Druggan, who has tried to show he pleaded guilty because he understood "the judge would go light on me," appeared yesterday with a new lawyer, Col. Bennett Clark of St. Louis, who is a son of the late Champ Clark, speaker of the house. Capt. William F. Waugh has been ill and the defense will seek another continuance, to give him a chance for recovery and Col. Clark time to learn more about the case. Evidence in mitigation of punishment will be introduced, it was indicated.

Druggan's costly furniture will be sold at auction today in a warehouse at 1750 North Clark street by court order to satisfy his debt to the West Central State bank.

You needn't tell me —I know Camel is the fresh cigarette!

Here's why they're FRESH!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

THERE is of course a sound reason why the Camel Humidor Pack can deliver to Camel smokers a cigarette that is genuinely fresh.

Camels are made fresh to start with, fresh with natural moisture—blended of the choicest, delicately mild, full-mellow, sun-ripened tobaccos that money can buy.

The full natural goodness of these fine tobaccos is safeguarded at every step in their handling—they are never parched or toasted—the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we can say with every assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh—not parched or toasted—and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

The delights of a genuinely fresh cigarette are so rare and desirable that Camel popularity continues to mount daily to new highs.

Test these delights for yourself—see what true freshness means in cool, slow-burning, delicate mildness—switch to Camels for just one day, then leave them—if you can.

CAPITAL OPENS DRIVE ON RING OF GIRL SELLERS

Raids Disclose Ring Covering Three States.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The department of justice and Washington police marshaled forces today for a wholesale drive against "white slavery." A series of preliminary raids conducted this morning, while failing to result in any arrests, were said to have disclosed valuable information regarding prostitution in Washington.

The campaign against organized vice is an outgrowth of the recent shooting in the Old Colonial tea house in Bladensburg, Md., just outside the capital, in which one man was killed and five persons wounded. Investigation into the affair disclosed the alleged tea house to be one of a chain of brothels operating in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey and the District of Columbia.

Local police have been operating under orders from J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the justice department, who assumed direction of the vice crusade following the Bladensburg killing. According to reports received by Mr. Hoover today, Pennsylvania state troopers raided 15 roadhouses near Columbia, Pa., last night and arrested scores of inmates and patrons.

The drive here is understood to be an effort to apprehend the leaders of the tri-state vice ring.

Mr. Hoover stated:

"We are attempting to stop interstate traffic in women. Information we have received indicates the Colonial tea house was one of a number of similar places."

WOMAN SHOOTS HERSELF.

Mrs. Beatrice Hopkins, 28 years old, colored, 359 East 53d street, shot and seriously wounded herself with a revolver in front of her home last night. She told the police she had no money.

HE MARRIES COUPLE 3 TIMES IN 10 DAYS, ALL FOR FEE OF $2

Conway, Ia., Dec. 14.—(AP)—For a two dollar fee—he refused more—the Rev. C. L. Thomas has married Ford Bohan, 19 and Bertha Gunderson, 20, three times within the last ten days and has hauled the wedding party more than 50 miles in his car.

The couple, who reside here, obtained a marriage license Saturday, Dec. 5, at Creston. That evening they returned to Conway and roused the Rev. Mr. Thomas, who married them. After the ceremony he received his fee.

The next morning the minister chanced to look at the license and discovered it had been issued in Union county, whereas Conway is in Taylor county, and so the marriage was null and void. He found the honeymooners that evening, drove north of Lenox, Ia., and performed the ceremony over again in the parked car along the roadside.

Monday morning, Dec. 7, Mr. Thomas, after consulting a map, discovered the marriage still hadn't been performed in Union county. The roadside spot was just over the border, and in Adams county.

So the pastor found the "bride and bridegroom" again, took them safely into Union county and performed the third marriage ceremony Monday.

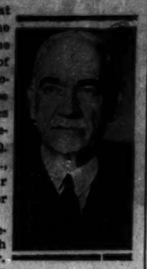
But Asks U. S. to Prohibit Saloons, Speakeasies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—A resolution seeking to rid the country of the speakeasy and at the same time keep the old time saloon out of business was proposed to the house representatives today by Representative John Q. Tilson [Rep., Conn.], former Republican floor leader.



JOHN I. TILSON. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

In suggested revision of the 18th amendment, Mr. Tilson's resolution proposes that when a state shall have passed laws for the regulation of the sale, transportation, and manufacture of liquor—and only when the laws shall include the prohibition of the open saloon—the federal prohibitory laws in the case of that state shall automatically be revoked.

Makes Sure of Revenue.

Mr. Tilson makes sure of the revenues to be derived from the return of beer, wine, and liquor by specifying that congress shall retain its full power of taxing beverages so legalized.

"If the constitutional amendment I have proposed shall be submitted to the states and ratified by the required number, I believe that it will put the prohibition question on the way to a final solution so far as the federal government is concerned," Mr. Tilson declared. "It will forever prohibit the open saloon, the elimination of which is the chief gain claimed as a result of the eighteenth amendment. At the same time, while permitting those states where the people so desire, to retain the benefits of constitutional prohibition, it will allow other states taking a different view of such benefits, to regulate the liquor traffic as the people in these states may desire, the only limitation being that the open saloon cannot be restored.

"The adoption of the proposed amendment would remove from Washington, where it does not belong, the question of dealing with the age-old problem, and bring it back to the states where under our dual system of government, it properly belongs. It will help to save that boon of liberty known as local self government now being destroyed by federal encroachment, and it will help restore faith in the soundness and permanence of our federal system."

Sweeney Smashes Precedent.

The house had a personal interest in prohibition and its violations today because of last week's speech by Representative Martin L. Sweeney [Dem., O.] who broke the tradition of silence imposed on a new member, not only broke it, but completely smashed it, by chiding his dry colleagues who "go to the washroom, take a drink of liquor, and then go back to the floor and vote dry."

Through Representative Charles L. Underhill [Rep., Mass.] the shocked members of the house voiced a scandalized denial of such charges. Mr. Underhill called on veteran members to support his contention that such a thing had ever happened. Mr. Sweeney's statement, said Mr. Underhill, meant that congressmen either must be flask toters or else keep a liquor cache in the cloak room.

LEGAL WHISKY MILLS MADE ACTIVE, DORAN SAYS, BY DEPRESSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The manufacture of whisky, rum, brandy, and wine increased during the 1931 fiscal year despite business depression, James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, announced today in his annual report. Total production was in excess of 12 million gallons. The volume of industrial alcohol manufactured for commercial uses decreased along with the output of most industries, Dr. Doran said.

JAMES M. DORAN. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

The biggest increase was in the production of wines. This amounted to 4,658,854 gallons, an increase of 3,503,000 gallons over the previous year. Part of this increase was attributed to the use of more wine for distilling material in making medicinal brandy and fruit spirits for general non beverage purposes under the tariff act. During the year 2,186,306 gallons of wine were fortified with grape brandy.

Distillers turned out 2,435,631 taxable gallons of medicinal whisky, an increase of 332,000 gallons over 1930. Seven distilleries held permission during the year to manufacture whisky for medicinal purposes.

"Two rum distilleries operated, producing a total of 1,123,977 taxable gallons of rum," Dr. Doran said. "Of this amount 53,258 gallons were produced for medicinal and general non-beverage purposes and 1,070,719 taxable gallons for denaturation and exportation, an increase of 93,762 taxable gallons over the previous year."

The revenue paid on domestic and imported wines amounted to $228,495.

NUDE CULTISTS ARE FREED BY GOTHAM JUDGE

Taken by Police Who Peer Through Skylight.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—New York is hospitable to the old world cult of nudism, privately expressed, however outraged Swiss villagers, Italian mountaineers and nosy old Anglo-Americans on the Riviera may resist calisthenics in the raw.

Magistrate Jonah Goldstein, in Jefferson Market court, today dismissed charges of lewd exposure [section 1,104, penal code] against three women and sixteen men arrested on Dec. 7, in the heart of a New York gymnasium, 553 Seventh avenue, by four policemen who peered through a skylight at the ungarbed athleticism.

Four women and one man failed to appear. The magistrate forfeited their $5 bail, required by Magistrate William Klapp in Night court, and ordered bench warrants issued for their arrest.

Points to Bathing Scenes.

"What is perfectly all right on the bathing beaches today," said the magistrate, "caused an arrest three years ago. It isn't for me to moralize over these people."

He ruled that the exposure had not been lewd, and when Assistant District Attorney Philip Wagner asked for complaints under section 43, forbidding "an act or acts tending to outrage public decency," Magistrate Goldstein cited a Court of Appeals decision, saying:

"The court held that there must be an actual outraging of public decency. Magistrate Klapp couldn't have been very greatly outraged when he set bail at only $5. I wouldn't feel warranted in ordering a complaint under that section."

The magistrate, however, stipulated that his dismissal—made on motion of Charles Dreyfus, counsel for the nudists—did not express an indorsement of the cult, which, starting in Germany as a nature fad, has spread to all western countries.

"I don't want it to be in any manner understood," he said, "that I approve of any form of nudity in the gymnasium or elsewhere."

The police said they broke in a door with a crowbar when admittance was refused. The undraped athletes were running for cover, they said, and many were dressing in a common room divided between the sexes only by a row of lockers.

Hunt Bandit Kidnapers of South Side Cafe Owner

Police are searching for three bandits, armed with revolvers, who kidnaped Charles G. Parker as he entered his home at 1321 Hyde Park boulevard late Sunday night with his wife. Two men held Mrs. Parker captive and the third drove Parker to his restaurant at 1510 Hyde Park boulevard. Parker was compelled to hand over $1,080 from the safe. Then he was driven back to his apartment, and the trio escaped.

EX-BOOKKEEPER SENTENCED FOR $47,436 THEFT

Roy Elward, 36 years old, 8221 Ellis avenue, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the Joliet penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan in the Criminal court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to the embezzlement of $47,436 from the John W. Snyder company, general contractors at 307 North Michigan avenue. Elward worked for the concern for ten years and was an assistant bookkeeper.

The only state's witness was John W. Snyder, president of the contracting concern. Snyder said that the embezzlement was discovered by auditors on April 30. Five blank checks had been missed on April 1, and these later came back showing that Elward had drawn out $21,000. The other thefts were discovered subsequently. Elward had disappeared and was captured in New York on July 6. He said that he had lost the money in the stock market.

If she only had $10 more to spend...

YOUNG American women are the greatest "wanters" the world has ever known.

Give any one of them $10 more each week than she now has, and ask her what she'd do with it.

Give it to the young working girl of 18 years to 22 and on—and it will go for clothes, cosmetics, jewelry, what-nots—all the things to enhance her personal charm, and keep ahead of her rivals.

Give it to the young married woman from 22 years to 35; she still wants all these—and wants besides: furniture, drapes, china, silver, radios, cars, things for baby—all the things to make her home a paradise on earth, and keep her ahead of the "Joneses."

But then consider what happens if you give it to the middle-aged or older woman. She will use it for insurance or investments, or put it in the savings bank; use it to keep the wolf away through the rainy days of old age.

If you have a product to sell to younger women, it will pay you best to direct your advertising message directly to younger women.

And it will pay you better still if you remember that the seed of advertising must first be planted in minds that "want", before their pocketbooks can be expected to yield a harvest.

"Minds that want."

From the age classifications of women listed above, it is an easy matter to determine which of them are most likely to want your goods.

"Youth," of course. Young women at home, in college or business, or younger married women. Youth has always done the generous buying, middle age the careful saving.

And despite all tremors of economic upheaval, "youth" in America today is just as anxious to spend as in any other period of the nation's growth.

If you question whether "youth" still constitutes a market, please remember that since 1929, four million young men and women have come of age.

Every year they march into American markets—two million strong—sure of themselves—sure of their wants—hungry for all the necessities, pleasures, luxuries of life.

And they are spending to get them for the simple reason that, like the youth of any generation, they want them more than money in the bank.

In a word, "Youth's" buying temperature is high!

If you would make your selling effort pay you the fullest of dividends, it is a task merely of finding the best point of contact with young America—with minds that "want."

It is a matter of finding an atmosphere of enthusiasm, a medium which engenders romance—a magazine which inspires its readers with a yearning desire for things which they do not already have.

If you do this, if you tell your story to this ever-increasing crop of new "wanters"—right down through their years of coming of age, of getting married, of building homes, rearing babies—their ever-increasing buying power will make you a first and consistent gainer.

PHOTOPLAY

The News Magazine of the Screen

THE circulation of Photoplay is made up of young women who not only want to buy, but also are able to buy. What they see on the screen they want for themselves. Photoplay not only leads its advertisers to this body of avid wanters but gives them to you under conditions of intense reading interest—their minds keyed to concert pitch. And the entire tone of the magazine tends to build up a spirit of emulation—to make them want things they do not already have.

HE BEGS COFFEE AND FINDS SELF BACK IN PRISON

7th Leavenworth Fugitive Is Captured.

Leavenworth, Kan., Dec. 14.—(AP)—John Short Masterson, 64 year old bachelor, glanced up from his newspaper at lunch today in the house where he lives alone; looked out the window and saw the man about whom he had been reading—Earl Thayer, 65, described as the most desperate of seven convicts who broke out of the federal prison here last Friday.

Within an hour, Thayer was back in prison without having made a show of resistance although when he visited Masterson's home near the west city limits he was armed with a rifle and seven cartridges.

The capture was effected by Masterson, elderly caretaker of a gas station at the city limits, and Roy Daugherty, 35, of Leavenworth, an employé of the state highway commission, who was surreptitiously enlisted by Masterson.

"Kind a Stumbling Along."

"I was eating lunch right there by that window, when I looked up and saw a man go by with a rifle," Masterson said. "He was kind a stumbling along, awkward like, and he appeared awful weak. He went around to the back door of my house and knocked.

"He begged me to let him in and boil up some coffee and I told him I only had a heating stove and didn't have any coffee anyway. I had him pretty well sized up by that time, knew he was the man they were looking for."

Masterson persuaded Thayer to start with him to a neighbor's house with the assurance that there they could boil some coffee.

"About a block up the road," Masterson went on, "the old man said, 'I'm about all in and can't go any farther.' He pulled a small bottle out of his pocket and took a drink."

Neighbor Calls Sheriff.

Masterson hailed Daugherty, at work on the road, and the two of them discussed with Thayer the fugitive's offer to sell his gun. Then they went back to Masterson's place. Meanwhile a neighbor had called the sheriff.

"Well, he was setting in here when the sheriff came," Masterson continued. "He told the officers he was pretty cold and sick.

"The sheriff said, 'Well, we'll take you where it's warm,' and they went to the federal penitentiary. I guess I should have gone along because I'm supposed to get the reward."

Scaffold Falls; Carpenter Killed; Companion Hurt

Ellsworth Stoddard, 55 years old, 3030 North Sayre avenue, a carpenter, was instantly killed yesterday when the scaffolding on a building at 4532 Magnolia avenue gave way and he fell twelve feet to the ground. Charles Hey, 3125 North Nordica avenue, a bricklayer, who was with Stoddard on the scaffolding, escaped with slight injuries.

HUNT SIX KANKAKEE ROBBERS WHO SAW THEIR WAY FROM JAIL

Kankakee, Ill., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Sheriff Albert Goodknecht of Kankakee county and his deputies tonight are searching for six young desperadoes who sawed the bars of their cells and escaped from the county jail early today. The prisoners were awaiting action of the January grand jury.

According to Sheriff Goodknecht, tips had been given him as to the whereabouts of the fugitives but he could not divulge his information.

The men who escaped were: Leslie Wakat, 22; Thomas Mann, 23; Frank Laurix, 25; and Walter Wulff, 21, who have confessed the robbery of 20 gasoline stations; "Red" Jacobs, 20, and J. Clark Bennett, 20, are held for rape and automobile theft.

After leaving the jail the men, who obtained shotguns and revolvers, then held up Francis Fordyce, a farmer living near Chebanse, Ill., ten miles south of Kankakee, who was in Kankakee on business. They took Fordyce's car, which bore the Illinois '31 license, 612-450, and aped away.

The sheriff said the saws had been smuggled in to the prisoners by relatives or friends who visited them.

GARSSON UNABLE TO APPEAR IN BELL'S BEHALF

Hearing of an application for a further stay in the electrocution of Frank H. Bell, who was sentenced to death for the murder of Christ Patras, proceeded yesterday before the pardon board without the appearance of Murray W. Garsson, special assistant secretary of labor, whose intervention last month resulted in Bell being reprieved the night he was to have forfeited his life.

Mr. Grasson sent a telegram to the state board saying official business prevented his being present. He had asked the board and the governor to save Bell's life at the request of Warden David Moneypenny and others, he said, in the belief that mercy should be shown Bell because he informed the jail warden of an escape plot.

Warden Moneypenny and his deputy, George Gibson, were present yesterday before the board to renew their pleas for Bells' life. Attorneys Harold Levy and Emmet Byrne, representing Bell, also repeated previous statements made by them in Bell's behalf. Assistant State's Attorneys Ross Lee Laird and Walker Butler informed the board they had nothing to say, because nothing new was presented to the board yesterday and they had made their arguments a month ago.

The board did not announce its decision at the conclusion of the hearing yesterday, but Chairman W. C. Jones said it would do so later.

Hundreds Watch as Woman Killer Dies on the Gallows

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Fatima Haim, the first woman ever executed in public in Turkey, was hanged at dawn today at the village of Tuzpazar. She killed another woman with an ax and took $100 from the woman's husband, who had incited the murder so he could marry again. Hundreds of peasants camped out all night in bitter cold weather to watch the stolid Fatima go to her death without a whimper.

ITALIANS SHARE JOBS WITH IDLE TO WHIP DISTRESS

Nation Masses to Combat Old Man Depression.

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 14.—Under the urge of Premier Mussolini, the syndicates, the municipalities and the church, Italy is mobilizing all the distress-fighting apparatus in the land to fight unemployment and relieve winter suffering.

Unemployment and hardship is considered a double menace from the fear that it may induce political unrest. Thus there is a Fascist as well as an Italian motive in combating it. The spearhead of the drive is furnished by the Roman central government which in September appropriated about $181,434,764 for public works to provide employment. This did not exclude doles to 326,000 among the 800,000 listed unemployed.

The sums appropriated for public works represent 20 per cent of the ordinary budget for the year, and it is estimated that out of it work will be provided for 268,393 persons until the end of March. Many critics say that this represents a heavy burden of taxation and that many works carried out are unnecessary.

Cities Spend Huge Sums.

The various municipalities have also subscribed large sums for public works. In Milan 148,000,000 lire are to be spent; in Turin, 42,000,000; in Genoa, 1,500,000, and in Rome, several million. All the smaller municipalities are spending lesser sums. In Turin, 7,417 extra men are working for the city, in addition to regular employes, and in Milan, 6,822.

Besides all of this the various institutions and industries have contributed to the unemployment fund. The Milan Savings bank gave 4,000,000 lire. The Fascist cooperatives in Rome are giving 1 per cent of their salaries from now till next March.

The federations of employers voted large sums. Syndicates of workingmen are contributing one hour's work per month or a percentage on wages. The industrial syndicates in Turin voted 1 per cent of wages per month. In Milan 400,000 workers of the province are contributing the equivalent of one hour's work per month. The commercial federations are also offering relief in kind. At Bari, for instance, they gave quantities of rice and cereals.

Share Jobs with Jobless.

Various expedients are also adopted to make what work there is go as far as possible. In Milan, commercial and industrial employers are compelled to lay off their regular employés at the end of the twentieth day of each month to enable the unemployed to earn a few days' pay. At the end of the month the regular employés return.

This system, which amounts to a wage cut in another form, is spreading to other cities. The syndicates are urging employers to give their white collared help vacations in the winter instead of summer so that jobs, however brief, will be created for others.

The syndicates of industry have issued instructions demanding the dismissal of all workers who enjoy civil pensions or who are benefited by small agricultural businesses under the name of their wives. Working overtime is strictly prohibited and the shift system is urged so that as many men as possible may be given at least three days' work per week. Men with families are given the preference in new jobs.

The church's contribution to mitigate the evils of unemployment follow the lines laid down by Pope Pius in his encyclical in which he urged all to make sacrifices and instructed the bishops to organize centers of charity in each diocese.

In Rome some of this work is done by the St. Peter's clubs, lay organizations of the Catholic Action society. These clubs have organized eight soup kitchens in the city and in a recent cold spell distributed blankets and clothing to the poor. It is planned to extend the soup kitchens to the suburbs and outlying districts of Rome. During the past week 10,000 tickets good for a bowl of soup or spaghetti were distributed at a cost of fifty centimes or about two and half cents.

In order to control employment, state employment offices have been established and employers are forbidden to resort to any other agency to hire their help.

Observations indicate that these measures have been temporarily sufficient to keep unemployment and suffering within circumscribed limits in the industrial centers.

Judge Reprimands Police for Raid on Poker Game

Municipal Judge Freeman L. Fairbank yesterday reprimanded Patrolmen Eugene Piggott and Joseph Schoenfeld of the Town Hall station for exceeding their authority by entering a private home and arresting participants in a "friendly" poker game. The host at the party was Arthur E. Moody, 851 Grace street, a barber. The policemen testified that they raided the game after they heard "sounds of gambling" in passing the house.

FRANCE TO EXPEL YANKS WITHOUT PERMITS TO WORK

Police Begin Roundup of All Foreigners.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Thousands of Americans living in France are facing heavy fines and in many cases deportation as the police launched a nation-wide roundup of foreigners on orders direct from Premier Laval, it was learned today.

The new and drastic measures are designed to weed out foreign workers who have neglected to secure labor permits instituted to reduce the heavy unemployment. To carry out the roundup all foreigners receiving summonses must report at the nearest police stations with their identification papers.

U. S. Officials Included.

In their zeal to miss none, police authorities have included high American consular and diplomatic officials in their dragnet. One of the American vice consuls in Paris and at least one embassy attaché received in today's mail curt orders to appear before the police commissars of their respective quarters to show why they should not be expelled from France.

Every American, as well as all other foreigners, will be forced to submit to a police grilling within the next few weeks. Those ignoring the summons will be arrested by gendarmes.

Will Fine the "Careless."

While France is not aiming at the Americans particularly, the Yankees will be the hardest hit because of their traditional inability to comply with police red tape, which compels all foreigners to obtain identification cards and thereafter keep them "en regle" by registering each change of address with the local police commissariats. Out of approximately 30,000 Americans living in France it is estimated that not over 10,000 have their papers in order.

All workers without labor permits will be expelled immediately, it is understood, while those, whose papers show only minor irregularities, will be invited to help meet the budget deficit by paying stiff fines.

YOUTH DIES IN CRASH.

Clinton, Ind., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Wayne Folden, 20, of Rockford, Ill., died today of injuries suffered early this morning in an automobile accident.

WIFE OF BROKER KILLED IN FALL FROM 5TH STORY

An open verdict was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon in its investigation into the death of Mrs. Gale Willard, 27 years old, wife of an investment broker, who a few hours earlier fell through the window of the kitchenette in her fifth floor apartment at 2136 Lincoln Park West. Her body was found on the roof of an adjoining one-story structure.

World's Largest Company Inaugurates New Low Rates For Chicago Test

This City Selected for Experiment of National Finance Organization in Economic Readjustment

HEADS BENEFICIAL MANAGEMENT

Mr. Charles H. Watts, President of the Beneficial Industrial Loan Corporation, largest organization of its kind in the world, expresses his confidence in the integrity of the average American man or woman.

Only a great national organization whose annual business is rapidly approaching the $100,000,000.00 mark could properly afford to take the step announced by Personal Finance Company of Chicago in reducing its rates on loans of up to $300 to 1½% per month on that part of loans of between $100 and $300 and 3% per month on that part less than $100, a step of particular benefit to those who, until now, may not have found it necessary to borrow.

Most companies of necessity must charge the full lawful rate of 3½% on all balances. Otherwise, they could not exist. But Personal Finance Company is a subsidiary of Beneficial Industrial Loan Corporation, with 347 offices in 297 cities, the largest and strongest organization of its kind in the world.

Costs lowered by huge volume

The enormous volume of business done by Beneficial Industrial Loan Corporation and its subsidiary companies has enabled them to make this experiment. For, after all, this lowering of rates for Chicago, is an experiment in economic readjustment. If the volume of business done by Personal Finance Company continues to grow, if the people of Chicago respond to the friendly, confidential, courteous loan service offered them by this great national organization, these low rates will be maintained. We trust they will be.

Service of value to entire community

In times of economic stress it has been our experience that the fundamental American honesty and integrity on which we base the granting of our loans never varies. We recognize the stress of the times. We are also aware of the fact that ours is, in a measure, a public service institution, owing its existence to laws enacted by the state for the benefit of its citizens. Hence, we are glad to announce this reduction in rates, hence, we shall be glad if, through increased volume and, consequently, lowered costs, we can make them permanent and so be of greater service to Chicago.

Loans at new rates in 24 hours or less

The new rates are in effect. Loans at these extremely advantageous terms may be arranged in 24 hours or less. If you need money, see us. Even if that need is not pressing, the establishment of credit with us now will make borrowing easier when the actual need arises. Come to see us; you'll find a friendly, courteous reception awaiting you.

And, remember that all our work is confidential, careful, quick. You get the full amount you borrow without extras, without deductions. We'd like to know you—come in today.

The future of America rests upon he families. Those family groups should never be disrupted. To maintain their purchasing power is to keep them intact.

That we have been of material assistance in maintaining that purchasing power in hundreds of thousands of families during the past year is a source of pride to our entire organization. For thus, we feel, we have been able to make a definite contribution toward relieving a part of the distress caused by the depression.

This, in our estimation, is just as important as aiding those who are unemployed.

Therefore, it is with a sense of deep gratification, that we have been able to announce the lower rates for personal loans now in effect in Chicago.

CHRISTMAS DOLL CARRIES APPEAL TO GOOD FELLOWS

Little Girl in Thin Dress Happy for Moment.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Yesterday a five year old girl quietly entered a shop south of the loop. She had seen the dolls in the window every day on her way home from kindergarten. There was one that she liked in particular. It wasn't the largest or most expensive. It was a pink rag doll, peeking out of a small carriage.

The child wore a coat much too thin for the freezing weather. She was bareheaded and shivering but she didn't pause to warm herself at the store. She took the pink rag doll in her arms, smiled. For a few moments it was hers. Then she put it back in the carriage and marched out into the cold.

School Children in Need.

This little girl attends a school where 150 children are fed by The Tribune hungry school children fund. Most of her 35 classmates in the kindergarten were provided with shoes by the School Children's Aid society.

Good Fellow, don't you feel that you must provide such children as these with a real Christmas dinner, and the toys they so eagerly await on Christmas day? And if you should have a little Christmas money left, could you add some warm clothing?

At The Tribune Public Service bureau, 1 South Dearborn street, yesterday, was new Good Fellow put in an order for five families. His card bore the name of a family of boys and girls now in California and he thought his own Christmas would be much happier if he knew needy families were being well provided for.

Two Fraternities Enroll.

Two fraternities joined the Good Fellows yesterday, Sigma Delta Zeta, and Beta Chi chapter of Alpha Omega Phi. These groups will play Good Fellow to two families. From Oak Park came an order for five families from the Jewish Young Peoples' association. And the Friendship club of the Y. W. C. A. enrolled as a Good Fellow.

Up at W-G-N yesterday the Harold Teen gang had a meeting that had nothing to do with broadcasting, and cast a unanimous vote to play Good Fellow Christmas eve.

The Good Fellows need you, readers. You can enroll by calling Superior 0100, The Tribune Good Fellow headquarters.

J. F. CUNEO FILES $950,000 SUIT AGAINST CITY

John F. Cuneo, president of the Cuneo Press, filed the principe of a suit asking $950,000 damages from the city yesterday in the Superior court. The foreset, it was said by his attorney, Carlton L. Fischer, are claimed because of the raising of sidewalk levels at Randolph street and Michigan avenue in connection with the new viaduct over the Illinois Central tracks at that point. Mr. Cuneo owns a five story building at the northeast corner of the intersection. Two years ago he tried to get a permit for construction of a skyscraper. He charges that the raised sidewalk levels have damaged the approaches to his building.

WAGNER WANTS 2 BILLIONS FOR JOBLESS RELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—In a resolution seeking to set in motion the machinery created by his federal employment stabilization act, passed at the last session and seeking to put that machinery to work on a two billion dollar federal public works program, Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] today listed statistics indicative of the gravity of the depression.

ROBT. F. WAGNER. [Photograph.]

In the resolution's preamble he cited government and private authorities to show: That there were 6,050,000 unemployed last January; that the index of employment in manufactures fell off from 73.1 in January to 57.3 in October; that the index of pay roll totals in manufacturing industries declined from 62.1 in January to 53.7 in October.

That bank suspensions in the first 10 months of 1931 were 1,753 compared to 747 in the first ten months of 1930; that production has declined from an index of 82 in January to 77 in September; that the index of freight car loadings has declined from 83 in January to 69 in September; that the United States foreign commerce declined 48 per cent during the first nine months of 1931 below the level of the first nine months of 1928; that the index of wholesale prices has declined from 77 in January to 69 in September.

That the volume of construction for the third quarter of 1931 was $858,900,000 or 53 per cent less than for the third quarter of 1928; that the volume of building contracts awarded declined $2,447,300,000 in the first nine months of 1931 below the similar period in 1928; that the volume of construction of public works and public utilities has fallen from $1,039,043,000 in the first nine months of 1928 to $982,700,000; that the wholesale prices of building materials declined from an index of 82.9 in January to 74.9 in September. That money spent for relief in the larger American cities was in September, 1931, 142 per cent greater than in September, 1930, and in October, 1931, 113 per cent greater than in October, 1930.

Second Member of Family Dies of Rabbit Fever

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Fred Younger, 39 years old, Boonville, is dead of tularemia, rabbit fever, the second of the family to fall a victim of the disease. His mother, Mrs. Anna Baumhoiser of McCutchanville, died the day before Thanksgiving.

RELIEF FUND DRIVE NEARS GOAL; HOPE TO REACH IT TODAY

Contributions to the Joint Emergency Relief fund last night totaled $74,350, raising the total of the fund to $9,811,973. Officials in charge of the drive said they hoped that the $10,000,000 quota would be reached today.

Despite the nearness of the goal the leaders expressed anxiety about the relief situation throughout Cook county. The necessity for the additional $10,000,000 requested of the state was stressed by Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the relief fund. In addition to the $10,000,000 requested by Cook county another $10,000,000 is estimated to be essential for charity needs in other parts of the state.

Among major contributions reported last night were, a gift of $6,000 from the Kotex company and donations of $5,000 each from Edwin F. Mandel and Preston A. Wells. Henry B. Babson contributed $3,500, and $2,500 each was received from Frederick H. Scott, Edmund A. Russell and Jesse D. Schoinman.

Among other pledges reported were the following:

Henry R. Levy	2,000
William B. McIlvaine	2,000
Leo Mandel	1,500
R. S. Sonnenschein	1,500
George W. Dorr	1,000
Mrs. Stanley Field	1,000
Employes of Borden Ice Cream Co.	1,250
D'Ancona, Pflaum & Kohlsaat	1,000

SHOWMEN OPEN BENEFIT FIESTA IN COLISEUM

The Fiesta opened in the Coliseum last night under the auspices of the Showmen's League of America. Attractions crowded the arena, and theatrical, radio and cabaret talent from places of amusement in Chicago turned to with a will to do their part for the huge benefit staged primarily for professional theatrical people.

The main purpose of the fiesta, which will continue for the next two weeks, is to raise funds for the hospital and cemetery fund of the showmen's league. A part of the receipts, however, will be turned over to other philanthropies. The three opening days have been designated to aid the Hungry School Children's fund of this newspaper. Only 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children is charged for admission to the Mardi Gras scene and the various general features of the carnival.

On behalf of Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling, who was unable to come to Chicago, James Hall of the Jesters, an exclusive organization of showmen, opened the show yesterday. Miss Ruth Ackerman was given credit both by Hall and by Maj. C. F. Rhodes, who is in charge, for having originated the plan of the benefit.

NICHOLAS YIELDS BRIDE, BUT ONLY IN EYES OF LAW

King Carol Patches Up Quarrel with Brother.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Dec. 14.—King Carol of Rumania and his brother, Prince Nicholas, patched up their quarrel today, Bucharest dispatches said. Nicholas, it is stated, agreed to give up his wife, pretty Mme. Jana Deleti, legally, but only legally. The king agreed to welcome his younger brother back into the family with all his royal rights, privileges, and prerogatives.

PRINCE NICHOLAS.
[Acme Photo.]

Prince Nicholas' dismissal from his military commands was also lifted and he will resume his various jobs, the chief of which is inspector general of the army.

Aged Leaders Patch Quarrel.

The conciliation of the two brothers, who have been at swords' points ever since King Carol insisted on having Prince Nicholas' marriage with a commoner annulled, was brought about by the intervention of the patriarch of the Rumanian church and Marshal Constantine Prezan, the war hero.

The two aged leaders brought the quarreling brothers together and finally effected a compromise.

Prince Nicholas' relations with the darling of Bucharest salons will be exactly the same as King Carol's were and are with Mme. Magda Lupescu, the red haired beauty. They will be companions, although there will be no legal bond. Until today Prince Nicholas stubbornly refused to recognize the court's annulment of his marriage.

Couple Will Go Abroad.

Separated legally, but not otherwise, Prince Nicholas and his sweetheart are planning a long trip abroad.

The whereabouts of Prince Nicholas is somewhat of a mystery tonight. According to the Budapest newspaper, Magyarorszag, Nicholas arrived at Budapest today by train and left in a private motor car for Munich to visit his mother, dowager Queen Marie.

The prince is reported to have told newspaper men that he was determined to renounce his title and live with his wife as a simple citizen. This report, however, was officially denied at Bucharest tonight. Court officials said the prince is in Bucharest.

DYNAMITE BOMB WRECKS DRINK PARLOR

BOMB WRECKS RESTAURANT OF WRESTLER

Windows a block around were shattered and hundreds of persons were jarred by a dynamite bomb explosion early this morning at the front entrance of Steve Sabich's restaurant and soft drink parlor at 3025 Wentworth avenue. Damage, mostly to the café, amounted to $2,500. Sabich's sister, Mrs. Rose Curkovich, and her husband, John, who live in the rear, were thrown to the floor by the blast.

Sabich, who wrestles professionally under the name of Steve Savage, told Capt. Charles Larkin of the Pekin station he knew of no reason for the bomb. Police said his café was bombed last August, but little damage was done.

Women's U. S. Made Shoes Sold at 25 Cents a Pair

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Most excellent American made women's shoes may be bought for two bits a pair. Milady will have to go to India to get them, however, and chances are she'll turn up her nose when she gets there. The shoes are the high laced kind of long ago, unloaded cheap to Indian women who value them highly. A commerce department report is authority for the price.

PRIVATE SCHOOL PUPILS ANALYZED IN U. OF C. BOOK

Private school children show a mean intelligence quotient of 113 as compared with an average of 100 in public school children, according to a book, "Growth in Private School Children," just published by the University of Chicago Press.

According to the authors, Horace Gray and J. G. Ayres, an intelligence quotient of 120 is considered "nearing genius," 120 very superior, and 110 superior. In their investigation of a group of 483 private school children only three were found rating above 130.

The Gray-Ayres book records fifteen physical measurements made on 3,110 boys and 1,475 girls from the ages of 1 to 19 years, but mostly of school age. The authors' aim was to find and formulate accurate standards for the study of growth, nutrition, and disease of the ductless glands.

2 GIVEN 7 YEARS IN TRI-CITY RUM CONSPIRACY CASE

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Prison sentences ranging up to seven years and fines to $12,000 were imposed today by Judge Louis Fitzhenry on fourteen defendants in the Tri-Cities liquor conspiracy case in which Edward "Ted" Newberry, Chicago gangster, and a number of other men were acquitted.

Nick J. Coin and Ed Lathrop, Davenport, leaders in the Tri-Cities liquor ring, were sentenced to serve seven years and fined $12,000 each. Coin and Lathrop were found guilty on all counts in the indictment. The others were convicted on one charge, the majority of them for conspiracy.

Mike Blumberg, Clinton, Ia., rum baron was given two years and a $10,000 fine. Judge Fitzhenry expressed regret at his inability to give him more. Mike Polois, and James Stathis, East Moline, were given two years and fined $10,000 each.

John Coin, Rock Island, was fined $1,500 and sentenced to 18 months in prison. Dominic Leonetti, Des Moines, drew two years and $5,000. Sam Karas, East Moline, was given two years and $10,000 fine.

Mike Radovich, Sam Sideris and Harold Reed, three workmen taken in custody when government men seized the still at Carbon Cliff, near Rock Island, were given 18 months and fined $500 each.

Andrew J. Andrews, East Moline, a defendant who pleaded guilty just before the case went to the jury, was fined $1,000 and sentenced to serve a year and a day at Leavenworth.

5TH HUSBAND 2D TO SHOOT OHIO WOMAN AND KILL HIMSELF

Lorain, O., Dec. 14.—(AP)—For the second time, Mrs. Mary Strong, 45, was shot last night, police said, by a husband who committed suicide.

Mrs. Strong was seriously wounded in the abdomen and head when Andrew Strong, believed by police to be her fifth husband, shot her and killed himself.

Annual Report
ELECTRICAL INSURANCE TRUSTEES, CHICAGO
By ARTHUR YOUNG & COMPANY, Accountants and Auditors, One North La Salle St., Chicago

Electrical Insurance Trustees, Chicago.

Dear Sirs: We have audited the books and records of Electrical Insurance Trustees for the year ended August 31, 1931 and now submit herewith our report thereon together with the following statements:

Exhibit A. Balance Sheet, August 31, 1931
" B. Income Account for the year ended August 31, 1931
" C. Pay Roll Premium Deposits Received for the year ended August 31, 1931
Schedule I. Statement of Cash Receipts and Disbursements for the year ended August 31, 1931
" II. Statement of Investment Securities, August 31, 1931

ORGANIZATION

On June 24, 1930 the Electrical Contractors' Association of the City of Chicago and Local No. 134, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of Chicago entered into an agreement for the purpose of providing group life and total disability insurance for certain individuals employed in the Electrical Construction Industry. The trustees named in this agreement are known as the Electrical Insurance Trustees and were appointed to administer the Insurance Fund, to carry out the terms and to interpret the meaning and intent of the agreement and to decide finally all disputes and controversies arising out of same and in the course of its administration.

This agreement provides, among other things, that the Insurance Trustees shall collect from all employers who are members of the Electrical Contractors' Association and other employers who may elect to become parties to the agreement, weekly, an amount equal to (but not more than) 6% (or such less percentage as the Insurance Trustees may from time to time determine to be necessary) of so much of the contractors' pay roll as is paid to members of Local No. 134 who are employed within Cook County. The payments so collected become a part of the Insurance Fund.

This agreement also provides that as soon as the Insurance Fund is adequate for that purpose the Insurance Trustees shall procure and maintain in full force and effect, as long as the Fund is adequate, group life and total disability insurance, in such amounts and on such terms and provisions as the Trustees may determine, such insurance to cover all members of Local No. 134 who are employed by the Electrical Contractors' Association and such other employers as may elect to become parties to the agreement.

It is also provided that the Trustees shall set up a reasonable Reserve Fund over and above the actual premium requirements for insurance carried.

The Trustees had not considered the Fund adequate and no insurance had been procured during the period under review.

With the exception of Mr. J. W. Collins, who is paid a salary as manager, none of the Trustees have received any compensation for their services during the period under review.

BALANCE SHEET

CASH IN BANK	$ 27,936.55
We reconciled the cash in bank per books at August 31, 1931 with the balance certified to by the bank at that date. Freehof Finds Religion Gains as Faiths Clash

Says Prophets and Rebels Avert Its Death.

BY HORACE J. BRIDGES.

"Horizons of Heaven," by Solomon B. Freehof (Harpers).

This book is a gallery of verbal portrait-etchings, done with extraordinary skill, a high level of accuracy, an unfailing catholicity of sympathy, and a limpid clearness of literary style that is masterly.

Its title is an allusion to the Biblical story of the builders of the tower of Babel, whose common purpose was frustrated by the confounding of their tongues, so that they could no longer understand each other. Dr. Freehof's view is that there is a common religious heritage of humanity, contributed to by the prophets, cult founders, and rebels of all ages—including even the atheists, who, in spite of their excellent purposes, have succeeded unable to believe to purity and permanence that which they intended to destroy.

Even if the confusion of tongues seems to have scattered these treasures afar, yet actually they all have shared to building. The radicalism of prophets, the criticisms of freethinkers, and the protests of atheists have contributed to the development of religion; so that, they have been, [illegible] progress. Without its radicals, religion would have died of spiritual apathy.

The first chapters of which the book consists deal with the Founders of religions, divine, semi-divine, heroic, and [illegible]-founders." "The Five Greatest Christians," "Five Famous Atheists"—in which Bertrand Russell seems rather dragged in to complete the quintet—"Creative Prophets," in which Isaiah the nameless Greek of Alexandria, and Jesus are especially treated by Dr. Freehof with literature and discernment; "Royal Makers of Religion," and "Religious Geniuses of the World" (Moses, Zoroaster, Buddha, Jesus, Mohammed).

Now in the one figure to whom two chapters are devoted, which means that in the Table space (of 320 not too closely printed pages, Dr. Freehof has found room for an account of the personalities, sources, and teachings of nearly 2000 different, briefly sparky and interesting, chiefly spiritual religious and religious pathfinders of the race. It is an extraordinary achievement; I would not have believed it possible had it not been done, and quite incredible that it could have been done so well.

I wish the book were larger, for two reasons. One is that there should be more or two giving a bibliography of the writings of those of the figures who were authors, with special references to the works and passages (in English translation) on which Dr. Freehof's summaries of their teachings are based. The other is, that in the generosity of his sympathy he is to [illegible] sparing of criticism, and leaves the reader in doubt of the extent to which he agrees with the contradictory doctrines he analyzes.

It is well to study sympathetically and objectively both Hildebrand and Luther, and to point out the value of the service of each.

It is admirable to appreciate both Simon and St. Francis of Assisi, both St. Paul and Marcus Aurelius, both Socrates the tolerant and Mohammed the intolerant.

I do not say that Dr. Freehof has not succeeded, so far as one reader is able to decide, in subjecting the exact claims of the work attempted and achieved by the men he reviews; on the contrary, I am astounded by the extent to which he has done so; but I think that a later edition will contain a supplementary chapter discussing more of the author's mind as to the merits and defects, the services of Americus, of the personalities and intellect he so fascinatingly surveys.

Human progress is intermittent and [illegible] often interrupted by retrogression, yet real and substantial when we [illegible] our long view. It is usually [illegible] to [illegible] that is intentionally [illegible] the [illegible] of a revolving door in which [illegible] pass pressing in opposite directions. Religious truth is clarified and augmented, just as political compromises are effected, by a strife of minds and wills; the subconscious genius of the race often making building stones of rocks that were meant for missiles. Every religion is the better for the assaults of its would-be annihilators. "The Voltaires may not," destroy the infamous thing," but they move its defenders to purge it of its elements of infamy. Of this strange process of religious creation and purgation Dr. Freehof presents a picture that is in the best sense popular.

A special word of praise is due to the depth of the personality and teaching of Jesus. It is a welcome sign of the times when Jewish scholars like Klausner and Dr. Freehof can write of him with such appreciative sympathy.

Rene Maison Gives Party for Settlement Children

Rene Maison, lyric opera company tenor, and Madame Maison gave a Christmas party for children yesterday in their apartment at the Sherman hotel. The children were selected from the Northwestern University settlement house, Hardin Vittum. This was Maison's first Christmas tide, he said, for when he was a young boy living in Belgium, Santa Claus left toys in his big wooden shoes.

Good Morning!

So beautiful, so domestic, so broad-minded, so modern, so sane she is! Wonderful mother! Wonderful wife! And, withal, the sort of a human who makes a man feel pouter-pigeon-chested with pride as he escorts her across a ritzy café floor. In all ways—WHAT a spouse! Yet, this story's about how the paragon's husband thought he'd like her to get a divorce so that he could wed another [BLONDE] woman. Ah, man, the thoughts, thy words and thy deeds are, truly beyond all comprehension!

Mr. Boyd discovers that he doesn't in the least want what he thought he wanted by the time the tale has ayun its way to a close—but see the film for account of ways, means, etc.

Vivienne Osborne's beautifully sincere portrayal is the big, white light of the production and, really, the only reason for seeing the picture which is summed up, just another "triangle" affair.

Clive Brook is a tepid brother as the husband. Juliette Compton as the home wrecker, is just another blond. Elizabeth Patterson and Charles Winninger give characterizations finely clever performances as other folks.

The director did all that was human-ly possible with the raft of mediocre material loaded on his shoulders.

Defense Attorney ..... Arthur Hoyt
District Attorney ..... Robert Strange

If this picture is to go over, audiences will have to convince themselves that the gentleman named Hardy Livingston in the film, is crazy.

There's no reference in the script to his being either a maniac or a pervert, so far as the story reveals, he's a polished, travelled occidental of great wealth, cordially accepted by society. For such a man to keep ready at hand a branding iron with which to sear the tender flesh of women—and one in particular, who insists on being loyal to her husband—is rather beyond the stretch of the everyday imagination. But, as the screen narrative runs, at the Roosevelt—and it is little short of absurd.

"The Cheat" was once made as a "silent" with Sessue Hayakawa as an oriental brander and Fanny Ward as the brandee; and as such it was more believable, for eastern ways are not always our ways.

The yarn is about a young and happily married society woman who "borrows" milk fund money to gamble with on what she believes to be a sure thing. It isn't. She finds herself on a spot. Cedric Hardwicke, fascinating, who has for some time shown decided interest in Mrs. Carlyle, to offer a loan. All he asks in return, some, is that she will be a little nicer to him—and call at his house the following evening.

The distraught lady at last agrees . . . . . !

Next afternoon, home comes Hubby Carlyle, jovially yodeling:

"Hurray, we are rich, we are rich!"

"O, then please to give me $10,000 at once!" cries his fair mate. He obliges. Nice man!

The lady flies to pay her debt to the waiting Livingston, and, well——

If the story weren't so impossible, one could say kind words for both acting and direction, but what can God's children do when the odds are all against them?

See you tomorrow!

"READ SHAKESPEARE," DRINKWATER SAYS TO BRITAIN'S LEADERS

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Compulsory reading of Shakespeare by statesmen as a means of improving present conditions was suggested today by John Drinkwater, dramatist. He told the British Empire Shakespeare society that those in charge of national affairs should be compelled to read Shakespeare's works every week.

"It would steady their minds and they need steadying," he declared.

Mr. Drinkwater said that people making bold statements that the works of such men as Shakespeare and Walter Scott were never read nowadays spoke only for themselves.

"In towns and villages worldwide, the works of such men are constantly read as a tonic in times of national anxieties," he asserted. "Shelley justly claimed that poets were the acknowledged legislators of the world."

San Joaquin County, California, Is Called Medical Cost Ideal

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—In the "ideal" American rural community medical care costs annually an average of $14.89. That community is San Joaquin county, California.

A survey of that county was issued today by the committee on the costs of medical care, the twelfth survey it has published during a study of nearly five years seeking facts to solve medical expense.

Dr. A. E. Winslow, professor of public health at Yale and vice chairman of the committee, said that before the end of 1932 it will make its recommendations.

"Grave doubts" that legislative measures will be included were voiced by Dr. Winslow, in an address at a luncheon here.

The residents of San Joaquin county divide their medical care expenses annually as follows: For physicians, 24 per cent; hospitals, 24; drug stores, 19; dentists, 16; nurses, 5; other practitioners, 5; public health, 3; optical firms, 3, and commercial laboratories, 1 per cent. One per cent of the entire population is engaged in providing medical care.

"It seems that two measures are most likely to be helpful," Dr. Winslow said. "One is the organization of medicine for adequate service within the profession, to give each patient the benefit of scientific knowledge and apparatus, but also to have each patient in charge of one physician who will regard him as a human being.

"The other is organization of the public for paying for these services, perhaps in some manner like payments of an annual amount."

Duke of York 35; King, Queen Give Him Palace Party

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The duke of York, second son of King George, and who might be the successor on the British throne, celebrated his thirty-fifth birthday today.

The king and queen gave a family birthday party at Buckingham palace. Prince George, youngest of the monarch's sons, and Queen Maud of Norway, who is King George's sister, were among the guests.

On April 26, 1923, the duke of York was married in Westminster abbey to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon. The five-year-old Princess Elizabeth, elder daughter of the duke and duchess, has enjoyed no less popularity than her parents.

Science Takes Movie of Life in Early Stages

Uses Beasts in Seeking Data for Humans.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Another step toward discovering how a new life begins is revealed briefly in the annual report of the Carnegie institution of Washington.

The mothers are animals of various kinds, including monkeys. Without harm to these mothers, the Carnegie scientists have learned how to study their young within a few hours after mating.

The method amounts to a very small beginning of developing life artificially without the mother's aid. While it does not last long, not carry the development far, it reveals some of the processes to the eye of the microscope.

The report is written by Dr. George L. Streeter, director of the department of embryology. He gives credit for the accomplishments to a numerous company of scientists.

The ultimate aim is to understand better the development of human life and health. Already the method has made it possible to make one unusual human study. This was not the development of life such as was observed in animals, but examination of one of the important subjects, a living mother cell.

The importance of these first hand observations lies at present in the fact that the non-living tissues, which hitherto have furnished most of the information, lose some of the essential properties of life, and these properties have had to be guessed at.

The technique which requires no sacrifice of the animal mother, Dr. Streeter states, "marks a new era in primate embryology."

The animals whose young have been observed in the primary egg stage are the mouse, guinea-pig, muskrat, cat, rabbit and the monkey macacus rhesus. In mice the development of young was observed 24 to 30 hours after mating. In the cow 48 hours afterward. In case of the cow the artificial development was recorded for several hours with a motion picture camera.

Another discovery is that the tiny capillaries of the body possess the power to "grate in toto" from their original positions to new ones in the healing of wounds. These capillaries move with a sort of "traction" obtained by use of their growing tips.

Official Contract

By Charles Terse Aldrich

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Night.")

Now you certainly have been told that majors are to be preferred to no-trumps and that no-trumps are a great deal better than minors, and yet there are times when the majesties of the cards give you a game in a minor unattainable at any other declaration.

In yesterday's problem, which was:

NORTH
♠—5,4,3
♥—8,5,4,2
♦—3
♣—6,5,4
WEST (Dealer)	EAST
♠—A,2	♠—7,6,5
♥—A,J,10,7,3	♥—10
♦—A,K,10,8	♦—Q,J,10,7
♣—8,3	♣—K,J,10,9,2
SOUTH
♠—K,Q,J,10,9
♥—K,9
♦—6,5,4
♣—10,4,3

West dealt and opened the bidding with one heart. North passed. East bid two clubs. This was a border line take-out. While the Colonel system recognizes a K-J in an assisting hand as one supporting trick, it does not recognize it as a full trick in the declaring hand, and of course any take-out is a new declaration. However, it is a shade short of a full trick, and East had a strength more than one hand a trick in defense.

Moreover, East was very much worried over the singleton heart, knowing that his partner might well be bidding on a four card suit. True, East could have taken out with a one no-trump, but the better way of the suit rather than the no-trump type of distribution. South bid two spades. West now showed his diamonds, bidding three. North passed. As a diamond assist East had four supporting tricks (1½ for the singleton, 1 for the ♦ Q and ½ for the four diamonds, and in addition 1 for the ♣ K-J). He, therefore, bid four diamonds. South passed.

West could now read East's hand with fair accuracy. He mentally placed the ♣ K in East's hand and at least four diamonds. He further knew East was short in hearts and placed him with either high cards in diamonds or in spades, since no more than one of his high card strength would probably be found in the clubs. West, therefore, bid five diamonds, realizing that he might be set one but probably no more.

North opened the ♠ A. East played the 5, South the K, and declarer the 7. North then led the ♠ 3, dummy played the 8, South the 2, and West the 4. South now led the ♦ 4, declarer played the 8, North the 2, and East the 7. West then led the ♣ A and followed with the ♣ 9, which dummy captured with the 10. Dummy now led his ♣ 5, which cleared that suit. West trumping with the ♦ 2. West now led the ♠ 2 to dummy's 10 and led back the ♣ 7 from dummy, which he trumped in his own hand with the ♦ A. West next led the ♥ A and followed with the ♥ 5, which he trumped with dummy's ♦ J. Dummy then led his ♦ Q, the ♣ J and the ♣ 7 for five odd and the game.

Going back to the bidding again, West might have opened with a bid of two hearts rather than one, as he held six probable tricks of which four were high cards with hearts as trump, and seven probable tricks, four of which were high cards with diamonds as trumps. (The fourth diamond may be counted as a probable trick if diamonds are trumps, but not at a heart declaration.) Such bidding would not have changed the result. The particular West who played this hand preferred not to make a game invitational bid of two holding less than 6½ probable tricks regardless of the high card holding. (As you know, all my hands are taken from actual play and are given as played.)

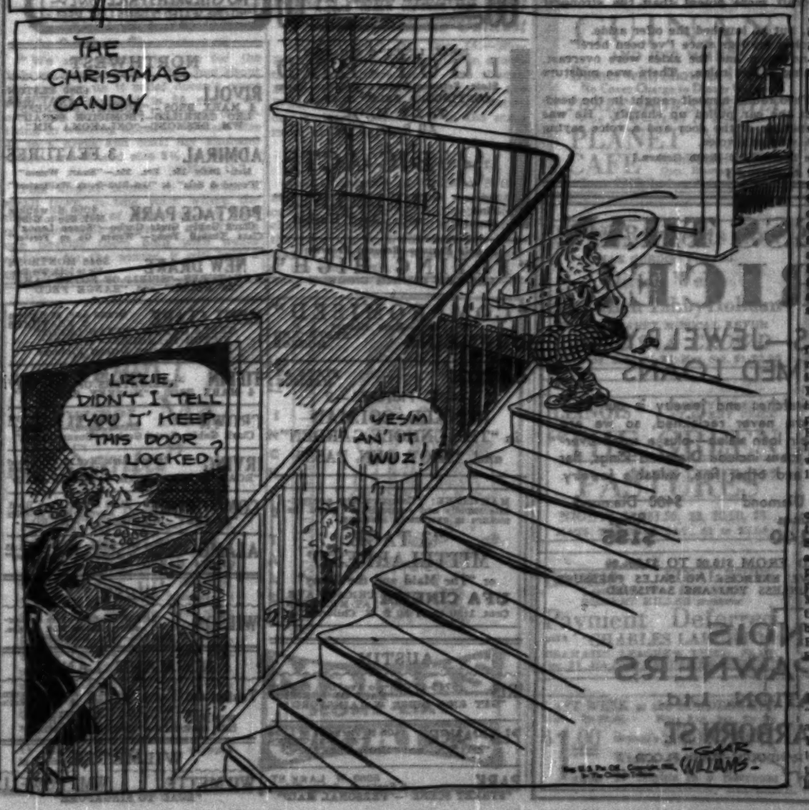
A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE



Golden Cards Finals Tonight; Contest Keen

Winning Four to Receive Tribune Trophies.

Chicagoland is fast on the verge of learning who its bridge champions are. Before midnight tonight, the quartet will have been singled out and identified by their scores, as the finals of the Gold Cards tournament are played to their fascinating end in the [illegible] room of the Palmer house. Awaiting to learn and interest intense as the event which is under the auspices of Charles True Adams, Tribune bridge editor.

Prompt acceptance on the part of those invited to participate indicate the anticipation among the contestants. More than 90 per cent of the 1000 players, exclusively of that [illegible] percentage of players scoring highest in the preliminaries of Dec. 2—had been acknowledged with acceptances reaching the desk of the Golden Cards editor in The Tribune tower, by mail last night. Others phoned regretfully that state conflicts was the cause of the finals, and they had mastered only a section bridge, they would have to practice.

Trophies to be awarded following the play are now on display in the windows of The Tribune public service bureau at 7 South Dearborn street. They include two exquisitely modeled statuettes of a feminine figure, to reward the ranking pairs, both north-south and east-west, and a group of handsome silver loving cups that will signify to the card club of the highest scoring pair in each section.

Tonight's function will be strictly honorary for the contestants. They have not been asked to pay any fee nor make any kind of a contribution. Their high scores in the preliminaries secured their invitations, and the opportunity to match their skill against some of the best contract players in the city and its environs carries no obligation whatever with it. On the contrary, it will confer a distinction on those who take part, especially and particularly the winning pairs.

Prospects are that there will be about fifty tables of players who will be greeted by Mr. Adams in his talk preliminary to giving the starting signal. Each individual is requested to bring his or her invitation with him for identification. A duplicate form of duplicate contract will be played at all of the tables in all of the sections, which will be intelligible, with a few minutes of explanation, even to those who never before have tried duplicate bridge.

Frank A. Tobin and H. C. Tobin, two of the best known bridge players in this part of the country, have been obtained to handle the tallies. Both are sons of Edward J. Tobin, for forty years one of the foremost experts on the game in Chicago, and are considered the best possible persons for the purpose. In case of a tie, which it is considered most unlikely to develop in the twenty-one hands to be played, Charles True Adams will analyze the two score cards and make a decision.

Play is expected to start promptly at eight o'clock. The owners of the trophies should be known soon thereafter.

Old Portage Park Group to Give Benefit Show

A theatrical revue for the benefit of their Christmas basket fund will be given on Friday night by the Old Portage Park association, of which J. A. Arenfeldt is president. The affair will be held at 6303 Lawrence avenue. There will be more than 20 vaudeville acts, including girl dancers, blues singers, quartets, accordion players, and cabaret. The distribution of the baskets will be under the direction of Mrs. Frances J. Bowler, Mrs. Theresa Murphy, and Mr. Arenfeldt.

Rummage Sale Today.

A new supply of wearing apparel and other articles will be available today at the rummage sale being held at 71 East Adams street by the woman's division of the Salvation Army, under the auspices of the Emergency Relief fund. Fur coats, dresses, electrical appliances, and canned goods are among the articles on sale.

THE STAGE

BALIEFF'S "Chauve-Souris," in a new version, will come to the Great-ways theater Jan. 5 for an engagement of 2 weeks. The preserve of this entertainment with such as "The Queen of Spades," a fantasy in seven episodes from a tale by Pushkin, with George Hayes, formerly of the Shubert-Lafayette-Alma Shakespeare company, and Marie Ault in its central roles. Sixteen of the most popular items from the earlier "Chauve-Souris" shows are also presented by the Russian master of ceremonies.

A theater in honor of Annie Russell, former star of the Charles Frohman regime, is being built at Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla., as the gift of Mrs. Edward W. Bok. Miss Russell is expected to return to the stage in a play that will be staged there late in February. She has been in retirement for thirteen years. Her last acting was done in "The Thirteenth Chair," 1917 and 1918.

"The Little Racketeer," a musical comedy which was tried out early in the fall as a vehicle for Queenie Smith and put aside for revision, is again in rehearsal. The Shuberts expect to give the show a Broadway premiere in the week of Dec. 28. Miss Smith's new company will contain Lita Grey Chaplin, Barbara Newberry, Jane Carrick, Wesley Pierce, Hazel Marvis, Jack Good, Hamtree Harrington, and Lorraine Weimar.

Paula Truman replaced Hortense Alden in the role of Flammchen in "Grand Hotel" last night. She is a veteran of the play's run in New York, and before that was one of the [illegible] actors in the several productions called "The Grand Street Follies."

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

Elt Lenoure, who had worked four years in a London family hotel, accepts a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Scrobert, Kenya. Theo Sable had gone there two years before when Elt had broken her engagement to him. But Elt still wanted him more than anything in the world. She sails on the "Bride's Boat." Jess North, her cabin mate, is going out to be married. Lal Crowhurst, the biggest landowner about Scrobert, and a most attractive bachelor, is on the boat. He is attentive to Elt. Jess tells Elt the scandal she hears about the widow who owns him. Scrobert proves to be a paradise with many serpents and terrible powers of demoralization to weak natures. Jess is married on her arrival to Noel Graham, who manages Crowhurst's coffee plantations. Elt learns that Theo has taken up his same hunting. Crowhurst shows her through his home, "Miss Fields." She meets the widow, Ariel Grieve, who lives nearby. Theo Sable arrives in Scrobert with a hunting party. They are both overjoyed to have found each other again. But there are unexplainable changes in Theo that Elt can't understand.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

PRIVATE AFFAIRS.

Elt found the printed programs for the dance and entertainment that was to wind up the season on her table, and began to look through them.

Suddenly she heard Crowhurst's voice. She had not seen him since the picnic. It was the first time he had come to the hotel and it surprised her so that the blood mounted in her cheeks, and she little knew how radiantly beautiful was the face that she lifted to him, as he leaned over the counter.

"How do you do, Miss Lenoure?" he said, and stopped for a few moments to look at her.

"O, Mr. Crowhurst, how do you do? I'm quite well, thanks. It's ever so kind of you to say that you will lend us your jazz band for the dance!"

"I am delighted," he answered, still looking at her, so that she grew uncomfortable under that "hot-cold" gaze, as Jess Graham called it. "It's going to be quite a grand affair, isn't it?"

"Yes. Several of Mrs. Dunbar's friends are coming all the way from Nairobi for it. And heaps of people from Kitale and other nearer places."

"I hope my band won't be too much for them!" he laughed. "The boys play like nothing else you've ever heard, you know. It's real native—primitive—humanity in the raw! They go slightly mad themselves, I think. Blair takes the responsibility. But I came to see Mr. Sable. He is staying here, isn't he?"

"Yes, but he isn't in. He went out this afternoon and hasn't come back yet." Elt's voice was noticeably forced. She was trying to make up her mind what to do.

"You recognized the name, I suppose? I will leave a message for him, then. The storage firm in Nairobi has rung up asking all sorts of questions about the Nightland's kit. Sable was supposed to have telephoned all the information, but he evidently didn't. They don't know even how many trucks to send. May I come in and write the message down, Miss Lenoure?"

She asked him into the inner office, which was really Capt. Blair's, where he could sit down in comfort. As usual, his presence disturbed her.

Crowhurst sat down, but he did not begin writing his message.

"I think perhaps I'd better get him to come up to see me," he said, taking a paper out of his pocketbook. "This chap Sable has not turned out so satisfactorily as Nightland thought he would. Do you remember I said on board that in my experience they were apt to get spoiled?"

Elt opened her mouth, but she could not get anything out. It was ridiculous. She must tell him.

"It seems I was right in this case," he went on. "They thought him the finest white hunter who ever was, but he let them down several times, ta get laid up for debts when they reached Kampala, and Nightland had to advance him nearly all his pay before they could move on. He was all right on safari at first, but in the middle he began to go to pieces. Once, in the jungle, he completely lost his sense of direction and they had the deuce of a difficulty in getting back to their camp. Then he got better towards the end. Nightland was put out, you may imagine, and Lady Nightland almost cried because she'd thought such a lot of him the first time. Nightland was most sporting about it, but, of course, it entirely spoiled most of their trip. And——"

"Mr. Crowhurst, I can't listen to any more!" Kit blurted out indignantly, her eyes glittering with anger. "You mustn't say these things to me! I don't believe them anyhow! There must be some mistake."

"What on earth do you mean?" Crowhurst stared at her in stupefaction. "What do you know about it? About this fellow—anyhow?"

"I—I am engaged to be married to him," she said chokingly.

If she had said that she was engaged to be married to the emperor of Japan, he could not have looked more completely taken aback.

"But how is it possible? He has only been here a day!"

"I know, but I knew him a long time ago—in London. We were practically engaged then."

An angry gloom came into the man's eyes.

"Then, you knew who he was all the time—on the boat—and you said nothing!"

"I did ask Lord Nightland about him, but he could tell me nothing. I don't suppose he remembered it—not afterwards."

"But when I told you they had met him—the other day!"

She flashed at him furiously:

"Why should I have told you? There was not the slightest necessity."

"No," he answered very quietly, "but it would have been friendly, Miss Lenoure. It would have prevented this. I am dreadfully sorry if I have hurt you."

She was convicted of conduct that was peculiarly hateful to her; all the more reason why she must defend herself. She said the most cruel and unkind thing she could think of, loathing herself all the time.

"I do not see how my private affairs can concern you, Mr. Crowhurst. I am a perfect stranger to you."

He looked at her with those appealing, unhappy eyes.

"I thought you and I were friends, Miss Lenoure. I was evidently mistaken. Do not be afraid, I will not annoy you again."

He opened the door and walked out of the office.

"If you will be good enough to ask Mr. Sable to come up to Moon Fields tomorrow morning early, I shall be much obliged."

Kit could not answer. She was suffocating with hurt pride and misery and self-contempt. She saw him greet some of the cocktail drinkers and shake his head in a gesture of refusal as he went out, waving his hand.

Theo Sable found no difficulty in getting some one to put him up for the club. Although his family had originally settled in Rhodesia, they were well known in Kenya. And the club, like all the other houses, in the colony, had an ever open door and an ever ready welcome for any man worth his salt. He came across a man whom he had known fairly well more than two years ago, when he had been running the dairy farm. This was a Capt. Monson, who was growing coffee, and he asked Theo to go back to his bungalow for dinner. He was a bachelor, and they spent a pleasant evening together.

It was about ten o'clock when Theo left the hospitable bungalow, refreshed in mind and body by that draft more potent than the strongest wine—hero worship.

His host offered to drive him back, but he laughed the offer aside.

"Good Lord, man, I haven't stretched my legs since I've been here!"

The road was dark. There was no moon and the skies were overcast. Everybody was talking about the coming of the rains. There was moisture in the air.

Before he had gone many steps, Theo found himself caught in the headlights of a large car. He dodged, but the car pulled up sharply. He was going on his way, but he heard the opening of the door and a voice saying something in Swahili to the driver. A woman's voice.

Poor Santa Claus Is Too Often Held as a Club Over Young

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Santa Claus isn't a club. But you might think he was from the way in which he's brandished over some little boys' and girls' heads for weeks before Christmas.

He's used as a club to get home work done. He's a club to gain obedience with. He's a club to punish with.

"If you're an obedient little girl, Santa Claus will bring you something nice for Christmas."

"If you're going to act like that, I'll write Santa Claus not to bring you the dolly."

Even some of the Santas in the stores, looking into the little, round eyed, trusting, awe struck, exquisitely childish faces ask, "Are you a good little girl—or boy?"

I'm sure it's not befitting the dignity of this department for me to describe just how it makes me feel to hear this, and especially the eternal "good-good-good."

Some parents use anything that is at hand as a weapon in child training. They have not the right to use the Santa Claus idea so. The thing that gives it value is the very character of the little old saint—generous, jolly, and the very special friend, guardian and benefactor of children. What has he to do with goodness or badness? Nothing. You're a little child and he loves you and he gives you things—that's all. Your name is in his book and it stays there. He's no disciplinarian—no old fashioned schoolmarm. He loves all children—good and bad alike.

But avaunt all this being good for a reward, anyhow. Who wants a child to be amiable or obedient because he's going to get a present? Who wants to force little children into having "an eye to the main chance"? All that has nothing to do with the spirit of Christmas.

Smartest New Coats Have Double Crossings

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—A tremendous lot of double crossing is going on in Paris this winter. It is a sign of that mysterious quality, French chic, when a coat or dress fastens with a double crossing collar, and the smartest women here are wearing coats that fasten in this way. Madeleine Vionnet is the dressmaker who brought out the double cross closing for the winter coat, and her way of arriving at this unique fastening is shown in the sketch today. As you see, the collar is brought around the neck, crossed in front like a fichu, and fastened at the waistline in back. That's the fashionable way to do it, and such collars are seldom attached to the coat. They are separate.

The Vionnet coat in our sketch is made of dark blue wool duvetyne and is, itself, collarless, with a wrap-around closing over which the blue duvetyne fichu collar with its gray astrakhan border is placed. This collar fastens with snappers at the waistline in back. The virtue of this arrangement is that it makes the body look slender, and the bust is accentuated. To further this effect, which is extremely fashionable this season, the sleeves of the coat are made large below the elbows, and trimmed with big melon shaped cuffs of gray astrakhan.

This Vionnet coat, with its fichu collar, neatly draped and closed is the Paris ideal of a smart coat this winter, and the pictured velvet beret from Agnès, with its quill standing up toward the back, is the hat the fashionable Parisienne wears with it. The beret is navy blue and the quill is gray.

Smooth, Fine Textured Skin Often Hereditary, Antoinette Explains

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"I have unusually large pores on my face and would like to know the best artringent to use. I am 30 and have used a good, well known soap for many years and follow its use with an ice rub, or cold water plunge.

"I haven't used cleansing creams, as my skin is oily and the cream only accentuates the oiliness, I know. It seems strange that the pores on my nose are a little larger than they used to be, but I believe you have said that from 30 years on women have to take more care of their faces. PAMELA."

I don't hold that all types of skin can be made fine-textured. Certain traits of heredity are as marked in the texture of the skin as in the texture of hair or in bone construction. With some the pores are so fine as to be entirely unnoticeable. With others the pores are mildly noticeable, and again there are skins that exhibit pores of considerable natural distention.

It is true, however, that fine textured skin can become coarse-grained through neglect, through bad eating habits or gross eating habits, and through the faulty disposal of the sweat and fat supposed to pass through the pores.

To understand a little better, consider that the pores are the mouths of the sweat and fat glands, and that the largest pores in the body are those of the fat glands of the face. Under ordinary circumstances the skin is longer preserved if the pores are not too fine grained. There is an easier and better distribution of oil and sweat, both of which play active parts in preserving skin youthfulness. People with extraordinarily dry skin, for instance, have to fight early wrinkling with additional lubricating oils.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Nearly every smart wardrobe has a dress with a jacket like top, and a soft tweed like woolen in black and white favors the crisscross style of neckline in red woolen. Red buttons accent its smart double breasted effect.

The pattern, 3484, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully], for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, New York City.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

Junior League's New Show Is Arduous Job

THE girls who are to take part in "The Runaway Papoose" to be given for the first time Saturday morning, Dec. 26, at the Blackstone theater by the Junior League Theater for Children, are having to sandwich in their Christmas shopping and other activities between rehearsals, for those who take part in the plays put on by the Junior league have to pursue their play-acting seriously and diligently, or the results would not be as worth-while as they are.

Mrs. Sherwood Platt is to have the leading rôle in the new play, that of "Red Wing," and Miss Katherine Dunkle has three rôles while Miss Myra Little, Miss Janet Ayer, Miss Letitia Channon, Miss Judith Walsh, Mrs. Robert J. White, Miss Helen Offutt, Miss Elizabeth Knode and Mrs. Eric Lambert will each play two rôles.

Others in the case are Miss Margaret Quan, Mrs. Leslie Olmsted, Miss Ruth Holloway, Miss Marion McKinlay, Miss Emily Batelle, Miss Lucy Rooks, Miss Jean Milsted, Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Harriet Leonard, Miss Briana Bond and Miss Jane Valentine.

Mrs. James Waller Marshall dramatized the story which is beloved of all little children who know it, and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III. is responsible for the settings.

Swedish Songs Feature of Festival at Casino Club.

The Swedish festival that Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett gave yesterday at the Casino for Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr. was as unique and charming as every one expected it to be. The several hundred guests arrived early so as not to miss any of the delightful program which opened and closed with Swedish folk songs sung by Werner Wennerstrand to Joseph Brasil's accompaniment. In between the musical numbers the hostess showed movies and stereopticon views of the midsummer festival that she attended last summer.

Mrs. Walter Borden, Mrs. Francis B. Dickinson, Mme. Cardelli, Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell, Miss Constance Mackie, and Mrs. Raymond B. Durham, who assisted the hostess, all wore the Swedish peasant costumes. Mrs. Borden wore a blond wig with long braids and a particularly vivid costume of red wool embroidered in red.

And until the program was over did the guests get a chance to inspect the lovely "bonader" hung on the walls of the reception hall, the ballroom and the dining rooms. They'll have a better opportunity to view the hangings at the Antiquarian tea next Tuesday at the Art Institute.

Helen Hardenbergh Guest of Honor at Several Parties.

The festivities to precede Miss Helen Hardenbergh's marriage to Lieut. John F. R. Seitz started yesterday with a luncheon at which Mrs. Frank Baker Jr. was hostess at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Robert T. Ripley, 29 Indian Hill road, Winnetka. Today Miss Eloise ReQua is giving a luncheon for Miss Hardenbergh at her residence, 1242 Lake Shore drive; tomorrow Miss Louise Lackner of Winnetka will be a tea hostess for Miss Hardenbergh.

Tomorrow evening Mrs. Wilbur Calhoun Smith will give a dinner and shower at her Lake Forest residence. Mrs. Frank Fuller of Winnetka will give a luncheon on Thursday at the Arts Club and that night Miss Margaret Quan will give a dinner at her residence, 33 East Elm street. Friday evening the wedding rehearsal will be held and following it there will be a large bridal supper at the residence of the bride-to-be's grandmother, Mrs. Lorenzo M. Johnson, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal, at 911 Sheridan road, Winnetka. The marriage will take place Saturday afternoon at the Johnson-Boal residence.

The Hardenbergh family has come from Fort Hamilton, N. Y., where Maj. Hardenbergh is stationed, for the pre-nuptial parties and the ceremony, and Lieut. Seitz, who is stationed at Fort Snelling, Minn., also is here. His mother, Mrs. George Hilary Seitz of Wilmington, Del., will arrive on Thursday with the other members of his family who are to be here for the ceremony. The out-of-town men of the bridal party arrive on Thursday, too, and the bridesmaids live away, Miss Ruth Redman of Los Angeles and Miss Wilma Koelsch of Dobbs Ferry, arrive today.

Miss McCormick Makes Her Debut at Party Today.

The Misses Betty Brown, Polly Lee, Alice May Dickinson, Jane Valentine, Paula Whitnie, Margaret Chapman, and Audrey Campbell will be among the debutantes assisting this afternoon at Miss Patty McCormick's tea to be given by her mother, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, at her residence, 1240 Astor street. Receiving with Mrs. McCormick and the debutants, whose name is Helen although she always is called Patty, will be Miss Eleanor McCormick, who made her debut about two years ago. Mme. Pacetti, Rosie Marion, and Miss Charles Thomas are expected to sing at the meeting of the Friends of Opera to be held this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Drake. These meetings always are well attended by the artists and their guests and since the artists this time are such popular ones there probably will be an unusually successful affair.

Tonight marks the debut of the new University of Chicago Symphony orchestra, and many of those interested in the university will go to Mandel hall tonight at 8:30 o'clock to attend the concert. Preceding the concert dinners will be given by Prof. and Mrs. Carl Buchner [he is the organizer and conductor of the orchestra], Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mrs. Ernst Freund, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Dr. and Mrs. James M. Stifler, Dr. and Mrs. Franklin McLean, Prof. and Mrs. Quincy Wright, Prof. and Mrs. Gordon Laing, and Prof. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schevill, all of whom are boxholders.

Miss Sage Will Talk at the C. B. Barlands' Tea.

Dr. Pung-Chun Chang will speak at a tea that Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick will give for the Friends of Opera on Thursday at their residence at 3456 Lake View avenue. Dr. Chang, professor of philosophy at Nankai university in Tientsin, and a visitor this fall at the University of Chicago, traveled in Russia last summer, so his subject, "Some Observations on Contrasts: the United States, Russia, and China," is of particular interest to the group of men and women he is to address.

Assisting debutantes at the tea that Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morris Wiley will give to introduce their daughters, Miss Virginia and Miss Margaret Wiley, next Monday at the Woman's Athletic club include Florence Carr, Margaret Chapman, Dorothy Darling, Grace Fitzmorris, Isabel Gordon, Barbara Graf, Margaret Hamill, Welthyan Harmon, Caroline McNair, Eleanor McNally, Jane McMurray, Theodore Shaw, and Virginia Nettleton and Virginia Tracy of Toledo, classmates of Virginia Wiley at Ogontz. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley will give a supper dance at the Drake after the tea for the debutantes and their attendants. Miss Margaret Wiley will arrive home on Saturday from Sarah Lawrence college and will return to school after the holidays. She is to be graduated next June.

Chicago Wellesley Club Gives Christmas Masque Saturday.

The Chicago Wellesley club will give a holiday tea on Saturday afternoon at the Fortnightly. There will be a Christmas masque given under the direction of Mrs. Charles M. Sloan and carols by the organization's Glee club. Mrs. Howard Goodman, Mrs. Robert P. Heald, Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton and Mrs. Alfred H. Taylor will pour.

Mrs. Eddy Rowe of New York is here to visit her brother, Augustus W. Eddy of 1246 North State street until January 15. Miss Betty Rowe, who goes to the French school in New York, and David P. Rowe, who is a student at the Berkshire school, will spend the holidays with their father, Samuel D. Rowe of 1415 State parkway.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, and a party of friends who are on a cruise around the world on their yacht arrived at Piraeus, the port of Athens, last Thursday. The yacht is to continue its leisurely course through the Aegean and Mediterranean seas and across the Atlantic to New York. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt left here on July 7.

Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, Mrs. Charles F. MacLean and Mrs. H. M. Thomas were luncheon guests of Mrs. Benjamin H. Doane at the Canadian club in the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mrs. M. Jackson Crispin returned from Virginia today.

German Prints on Display at Kroch Gallery

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

AN exhibition of modern German prints is the interesting latest offering in the Kroch galleries. It would be more interesting if the German prints were more significantly modern, modern used to mean novel or different. As it is while there are a number of excellent lithographs in the show the sum total leaves us with the sinking sensation that all this is old stuff, pictures we have seen before and before, with mannerisms and techniques already familiar.

The New York modern German show last year of paintings presented a decidedly ugly art. We saw at once where many of our American and French modernists were getting their inspiration. These modern prints at Kroch's, fortunately, are not the essence of ugliness. There are many, in fact, which are charming and others that are merely well done with a sound background of practice and ability to their undertaking.

The answer would seem to be that these artists in black and white are not as imbued with the modernist virus as are their confrères, the painters.

Many of the exhibitors in the present exhibit are well known illustrators. Two or three are very well known sculptors. There is George Kolbe, for instance, known for his sculpture and seen here as the author of several fine drawings of women. Ernst Barlach is famous for his wood sculpture and here in his drawings there is a reflective aroma of soft pine and hard maple.

The most striking group of prints in the gallery is that of a woman, Kaethe Kollwitz. A particularly beautiful print shows a poor woman crouching beside her two tiny sleeping children, woebegone, stricken, miserable yet still with something of pride that will not allow her to confess herself beaten. Again a pathetic note is struck in the family group feeding the baby. George Grosz jumps to an opposite extreme of ribaldry and amusing caricature with his compositions of people, here a crowd and there a man with his dog.

Alexander Kanoldt reminds one immediately of Rockwell Kent by the austere chill-bitten perfection of his landscape. Among the other artists contributing the most interesting prints are Lovis Corinth, Otto Dix, Karl Hofer, Max Kaus, Renée Sintenis, Max Slevogt, Max Unold, Oskar Kokoschka, and Hans Meid. The exhibition was arranged by the Association of German Book Artists. It will continue through the month.

MISS WINIFRED L. WINSHIP.
[Gibson Photo.]

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Winifred Louise Winship, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Winship of 1339 Leland avenue, to Paul Leo Jones, to take place on Saturday, Dec. 26, at 7 o'clock in the evening at the Jefferson Park Congregational church. Miss Winship is a graduate of the Columbia College of Expression and a member of the Thalia sorority and the Altrui Juniors.

Luncheons for Hungry Pupils Win Approval

Cash contributions to the Hungry School Children's fund will be received at the following Tribune offices: 1 South Dearborn street, 1101 East 63d street, and 4152 West Madison street.

Miss Mary McDowell, associated for many years with welfare work in Chicago, warmly approves the plan of providing warm luncheo to undernourished boys and girls in the city schools. Miss McDowell, who is spending some time in Washington in connection with the work of President Hoover's housing conference, was not slow to express her opinion yesterday.

"Certainly the Hungry School Children's fund should have the support of every one," said this former commissioner of public welfare and head resident of the University of Chicago settlement. "I want very much to have these hungry children fed. It is to be hoped that a sufficient amount will be raised to see to it that they have proper food."

"You can't pauperize a child. And any fund that aids in supplying the food so necessary for these undernourished children merits a contribution from every Chicagoan who has the future welfare of the city's school children at heart. Undernourishment stunts children and injures their health and spirits. So I am thoroughly in favor of the fund and I wish it much success."

Through the courtesy of the management of six motion picture theaters throughout the city, at the suggestion of Abram Cohn, manager of the Terminal, boxes were placed in the lobbies a couple of weeks ago to receive donations for the fund. Last night $21.13 was collected from the boxes, which will furnish nourishing meals for more than 400 small boys and girls.

The theaters participating were the Terminal, 3315 Lawrence avenue; the Sheridan, 4038 Sheridan road; the Midwest, Archer and 35th street; the Forest Park, 4050 Milwaukee avenue; Commercial, 92d and Commercial, and the Crown, 1605 West Division street.

Contributions for the Hungry School Children's fund should be mailed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, at Tribune Tower, together with the coupon printed in the adjacent column.

U. OF ILLINOIS ASKS FACTS ON STORIES OF HUNGRY STUDENTS

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—To learn about living and working conditions among University of Illinois students the senate committee on student affairs today sought data from fraternity and sorority heads.

The inquiry followed reports that some students are living on fifteen to twenty cents a day for food.

President Harry Woodburn Chase declared today that students who drop out at this time complicate the unemployment problem in the communities to which they go, while students who stay here mean money for Urbana.

"It seems to me," Dr. Chase said, "that a very important way in which the university can contribute to the general question of relief in the state is by helping to make it possible for as many students as possible to stay in the university.

"We can do this only on the basis of facts about the conditions under which students live and work."

According to Dr. Chase, any measures that can be taken to find where students' need is acute, and to remedy that need, would be proper.

Women Play New England Musical Works

BY EDWARD MOORE.

MARGARET PARK, pianist, was the soloist with the Woman's Symphony orchestra at the Goodman theater last night, an artist in whom one joyfully maintains faith for the future of American music and American musicians. It is true that she set herself a bit of a handicap in playing the less popular of the two concertos composed by MacDowell, the First, in A minor, but she has hands, brains, and temperament, and her performance of the piece continued to make her, as she has made herself before, a notable figure among Chicago pianists.

The program was announced as all-American with special emphasis on New England composers. It therefore included in addition to the MacDowell work the third symphony from the pen of the late George Whitefield Chadwick and a Larghetto by Henry Dike Sleeper [first performance in Chicago], who was a quarter century on the faculty of Smith college. If most of this music seemed to be of the standpat, not to say standstill, category, it is all soundly written and with an accurate eye on European ideals of a generation ago. Mr. Sleeper also was the composer of the Smith college song, "Alma Mater."

But in an all-American program one sometimes wonders what has become of the compositions of John Alden Carpenter, Leo Sowerby, Eric DeLamarter, and Deems Taylor, to name only a few of those whose ideas and deeds are those of the present generation. As a matter of fact the last part of the program contained Four Modern Dances by Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, and two Indian dances by Charles Sanford Skilton, who at one time and another has been represented on the programs of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra continues to improve as a playing body to the same extent that it gains age and experience. Conductor Ebba Sundstrom would seem to have a firm grasp of her problems, and the orchestra's performance show diligent and intelligent rehearsals. The string section in particular has been developed into alert expertness.

Students of Music to Sing Christmas Trio at Northwestern

The Christmas trio for feminine voices composed by Fanny Mendelssohn 100 years ago will be presented at Northwestern university next Thursday night. Students of L. P. Shawe, professor of voice culture in the school of music, will sing the trio at the Christmas meeting of the Deutsche Gesellschaft at Hobart house on the Women's Quadrangle.

Dr. James Taft Hatfield, professor of German language and literature at Northwestern, found the musical composition among some papers of Luise Hensel, the poet.

Dr. Hatfield expressed the belief that it had never been sung outside of family festivals in the Mendelssohn home in Berlin.

Last year the national library of Bavaria forwarded the entire manuscript remains of Luise Hansel to the German department of Northwestern university.

Prof. Threatens Punners with His Best Words

Grinnell, Ia., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Paul Spencer Wood has a large vocabulary, so students in his English classes at Grinnell college won't pun any more. Excessive playing on words led him to post his notice on the bulletin board:

"Henceforth and hereafter there will be no punning in my classes by persons other than myself. Punners will be promptly punished to the full extent of my vocabulary."

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

In Destitute Circumstances.

"We are turning to you for the help we need so badly. It's just about the end for us if relief doesn't come soon. My husband is 50 years old and I am 49, and we both need everything in wearing apparel. I wear size 48 in a dress and coat; my husband wears size 46 and size 8½ in shoes.

"Mrs. O."

This appeal comes to us from a small town in this state where the man's chances of obtaining any kind of employment are simply nil. If you can provide them both with warm clothing for the winter, it will help a great deal.

Food Talk

Did you know that there are more than 2,000 blends of tea? It's rather wonderful to think how little we know about this every-day commodity. For instance, orange pekoe.

Orange pekoe is a term applied only to black teas and it refers, not to the quality of the tea, but to the size of the tea leaf. The leaf used in this tea is the small tip leaf. Orange pekoe and pekoe tea are composed of the smallest leaves and others slightly larger.

Orange pekoe tea usually contains a large proportion of India and Ceylon tea. India teas make a dark brew of strong flavor. They are nearly always blended with other varieties of black tea to secure differing degrees of strength, flavor, and aroma. Ceylon teas of the better grade have a pleasant aroma. Blended with India teas, they are a favorite with many.

Java teas are much like Ceylon. Unless selected with care the quality is not uniformly fine as that of the Ceylon teas.

Formosa oolong is a tea that is neither green nor black. It has a delicate flavor that resembles that of both of the other kinds of tea.

Green tea is not as popular in our country as black. Its flavor is less pronounced than that of black tea, and that is why it does not make satisfactory iced tea. The color of the brew is greenish, as opposed to the golden brown of the black tea.

The better green teas come from Japan and are designated as "pan-fired" or "basket-fired," according to the curing process.

China tea, called "gunpowder" is light in color. It is generally considered inferior to the Japan teas.

A careful blend of black and green teas makes a mixed tea. This sort of tea is widely used because it admits consideration of the taste of the individual, and the sort of water used to make the tea. Mixed tea can usually be used for iced tea, though it is not as pleasant as black tea alone used for this purpose.

Long brewing does not influence the flavor of the tea. It simply increases its strength, and if brewed too long, makes the tea bitter.

To make tea correctly, use water that is boiling briskly. Measure one-half teaspoon of tea for each cup. This careful measurement is what produces the flavor you like. Pour boiling water over the tea in an earthen or china pot that has been heated by filling with boiling water. Brew for five minutes and stir before pouring. If it is to stand longer before serving, pour the liquid off the leaves.

RICE SOUFFLÉ.

1 rounded tablespoon butter.
1 heaping tablespoon flour.
¼ tsp. salt.
2 eggs.
1 cup milk.
1 cup grated cheese.
2 cups cooked rice.

Melt the butter, add the flour, salt, and milk. Cook together and add the cheese. Stir over fire till cheese is melted. Add the rice, beat the eggs well, then fold into rice. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Serve immediately. This will serve four generously.

Girl Who Gives Boy Friend Long Leave of Absence Is Silly

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Dolly" has worked out a scheme to find out the actual status of her young man's feelings. It was hinted by onlookers that said young man and his intentions were neither of the kind that leads to the altar. So "Dolly" puts the young man on a three to four months leave of absence.

She told him to let that much time elapse without any further communication. But if at the end of the probationary period the young man feels the need of her company she'll be waiting at the front door with a welcoming hand.

Now the question in Dolly's mind is, is she taking too large a chance?

Dolly argues: "If he truly cares for me there is no risk of losing him, and time," she adds, "is an element to be disregarded in real love."

"However," womanlike, she adds, "if he cares he'll be back before two months are up."

Well, maybe "Dolly" knows her own friend best. But as a general working policy I should recommend other ways of determining the heart beats. Ways with less danger of ultimate loss attached.

To begin with, if the man cared, the proposition would leave him cold—to Dolly. I can't imagine anything that would tend to deflate a man's ego quite so much as the suggestion that his company can be disposed of for three or four months. Nor, for that matter, would a girl expand proudly under a similar temporary dismissal. There are just some things about human vanity you do not trifle with.

I'm not so sure that absence works its reputed charm of making the heart grow fonder. As worked out so often it's fondness for another that happens. Propinquity has very much to do with our best romances. In the stage of courtship where love is properly established and marriage a fairly well set matter, absence might work their advertised charms. But in the early stages, in the growing-pain days, it's just as well not to introduce the absence idea at all.

As a working idea, frankly, I don't think it's what you'd call a hot one at all. "Dolly."

Church Architecture Show in New York Thursday

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The largest exhibit of ecclesiastical architecture ever shown in the United States will be one of the principal features of the three-day national conference on church building which is to open Thursday morning here in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. LITTLE RESIGNS AS DIRECTOR AT WISCONSIN

WHIFFY COX IS 6 AND 5 VICTOR OVER VON ELM

Wet Handicaps U. S. Match Play Final.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Maintaining a steady although not spectacular race, Whiffy Cox of Brooklyn took the measure of George Von Elm, Los Angeles "business man" golfer, 6 and 5, today to win the 36 hole final of the $7,500 national match play open championship.

The tall campaigner from the east, who the last North and South open and was a member of the American Ryder cup team, started today with a five up lead on the second half of the match postponed from yesterday because of rain.

His lead was never threatened. At the end of the first nine today, the 27th hole of the match, Von Elm had won back a hole to cut his opponent's lead to 4 up. Cox made it 5 up again at the 29th and clinched the match at the 31st with a par 5 to Von Elm's 6.

Weather Bad, Course Slow.

Cox conquered bad weather and a slow course yesterday to turn in 74, two over par. Von Elm played an approximate 80 for the round. Heavy rains flooded the fairways, while water entirely surrounded some greens and hid the cups from view. Faced with such conditions, tournament officials postponed the second half of play until today.

Both Von Elm and Cox had difficulty today with the slow greens and the golf was of practically even caliber. On the 19th hole Von Elm missed a four foot putt for a half, after Cox had left the door open by failing to drop one of the same length.

Cox carried the 6 up lead until the 31st, which Von Elm won with a par 4. The 32d also went to the Los Angeles player, with a par 3. Cox's par 4 on the 24th made the count 5 up in his favor again but Von Elm regained the lead when he sank a 60 foot chip shot for a birdie 3 on the 35th.

Here Are the Cards.

Von Elm was out in 39, four over par, to Cox's 40. Cards:

Von Elm—Out	544	344	434—39
Cox—Out	544	344	444—40
Von Elm—In	453	534	545—37—76
Cox—In	453	534	545—37—77
Von Elm—Out	554	334	535—39
Von Elm—In	443	644	635—41—80
Cox—Out	545	444	444—40
Cox—In	444	5
Von Elm—Out	544	343	643—39
Von Elm—In	454	6

As a result of his victory, Cox received $1,540 while Von Elm received $1,047. Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Mexico, 1930 winner of the tournament, and Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn., national open champion, each received $308 as third round losers.

Of the more prominent entrants, Gene Sarazen of Great Neck, L. I., a former national open title holder, was eliminated in the first round. He drew down $105. Horton Smith, who fractured his wrist in an automobile accident after winning medal honors, was forced to default in the first round.

And Here Are the Figures.

Winner—Whiffy Cox, $1,540.
Runner-up—George von Elm, $1,047.
Losing semi-finalists—$515.50—Ronnie Eastman, San Francisco, and Willie Gogrin, San Francisco.
Losers in quarter-finals—$308—Leo Diegal, Billy Burke, John Golden, Norton, Conn., and Fred Morrison, Beverly Hills.

TWO FAVORITES BEATEN IN U. S. CUE TOURNAMENT

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The upsets radically changed the standings in the National Billiard tournament today. Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, the defending champion, lost to Onofrio Lauri of Brooklyn, 125 to 56, and Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y., fell before Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, 125 to 11.

The Taberski-Ponzi contest lasted only seven innings on account of a tremendous run of 87 by Ponzi in the 7th frame. The cluster was the third best of the tournament. Ponzi closed it with a two ball combination after a safety shot by his opponent.

Lauri apparently blasted Rudolph's hopes of retaining his crown with his 125 to 56 victory. In other matches today Ronnie Allen of Kansas City defeated Spencer Livsey of Los Angeles, 125 to 120, in 21 innings, and Robert Cannon of Seattle defeated Al Miller of Racine, Wis., by the same score in 19 innings.

Joe Greenleaf of New York, champion ten times, still tops the list, but the order of the others as the result of today's play is: George Sutton of Philadelphia; Taberski and Lauri, tied; Ponzi, Lauri, Marcel Camilleri of Detroit; Livsey, Johnny Layton of Saddle, Me.; Miller, and Lindrum.

OFFERS TO STAY UNTIL END OF SCHOOL YEAR

Assembly Takes Hand

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The state assembly tonight took cognizance of the resignation of George Little, director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, when it received a resolution asking the director to reconsider his action.

Action on the measure was forestalled, however, when it was pointed out that a vote would handicap the legislative investigation of the athletic department.

The announcement of Mr. Little's resignation this afternoon will cause the investigating committee to start action tomorrow rather than later in the week as previously planned. The resolution introduced tonight was sponsored by Assemblyman Walter Kapta, Milwaukee.

The measure said the resignation "is regretted by the great majority of the members of this house and all true friends of the university," and asked that the board of regents refuse the resignation.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

George E. Little, director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin since 1925, yesterday resigned his position with the request that the resignation take effect at the end of the academic year. Little's resignation was unexpected, although the athletic council of the university, at its recent meetings, had announced that the department of athletics would be reorganized.

This reorganization primarily is intended to curtail expenditures to conform with the decreased income from football and basketball. Receipts from these sports largely maintain an intercollegiate program of 14 sports and a comprehensive intramural system. The athletic council, at its meeting last Wednesday night, also announced that personnel changes might be expected.

Resignation Sent to Pyre.

Little's letter of resignation was sent to Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, chairman of the athletic council and a copy was forwarded to Glenn Frank, president of the university. The resignation probably will be acted on at the next meeting of the athletic council, the date of which has not been determined. The council is composed of ten men, six of whom are faculty members. Three are alumni and one is a student.

Whatever action the council takes, the board of regents, which will hold its next regular meeting Jan. 30, constitutes the final authority.

Little's letter of resignation follows:

"I hereby tender my resignation as director and professor of physical education, to take effect at the close of the academic year 1931-1932.

"It always has been my endeavor in my purposes, ideals, and administration to advance the best interests of the University of Wisconsin, and I appreciate that this same spirit guides the athletic council, the faculty, the president of the university, and the board of regents.

Offers Future Services.

"I wish to offer my whole-hearted cooperation in the formation of the future athletic policies and to the completion of such existing plans as are consistent with the reorganization and the new policies now being formulated."

Little's resignation, it is believed, was the result of the controversy over retention of Glenn Thistlethwaite, Wisconsin's head football coach. Since the conclusion of the 1930 football season an effort has been made by an alumni faction to secure Thistlethwaite's dismissal. Thistlethwaite, who, as a professor on the faculty, holds no contract, but serves from year to year, remained for the 1931 season when Director Little went before the athletic council with recommendation that he be retained.

It was learned in Madison last week on unquestionable authority that Little, a year ago, had planned to recommend Thistlethwaite's dismissal. In a recent interview Little denied this. He said that in 1930 he believed Thistlethwaite should be retained at least another year.

Recommends Coach's Discharge.

At the end of this football season Little is believed to have prepared a recommendation to the athletic council that Thistlethwaite be dismissed. It is presumed that the athletic council received this recommendation at one of its meetings last week. However, no member of the council or President Frank would admit this fact. Little, himself, also refused to divulge the nature of his recommendation concerning Thistlethwaite. He did say, however, that "football championships are not necessary for the coach to keep his job. But Wisconsin should finish one, two, or three in the Big Ten standings. This is the standard for other sports. If a coach cannot meet such a requirement then it is the province of the director to analyze the situation and present his findings."

This confirmed the opinion Little wished Thistlethwaite's removal.

However, it was reported repeatedly that Prof. Pyre, chairman of the

STADIUM CALLS A HUDDLE TO TEST STRIBLING'S FIST

BY FRENCH LANE.

Young Stribling's left fist, which he will bring to Chicago tomorrow morning, will cause a lot of wise men in the loop to go into a huddle. They will give the fist a most careful examination. And after Doc Nate Lewis makes his final diagnosis it will be determined if Young Stribling's fist is in condition to be tossed at the chin of Ernie Schaaf of Boston as early as Jan. 7 or 15.

If the fist is found to be hale and hearty the Stribling-Schaaf match, first scheduled for the Chicago Stadium nearly a month ago, will be held in that arena, most likely on the night of Jan. 15.

Stribling has advised the Chicago Stadium officials that the fist is as good as ever. Pa Stribling made a personal call last week and gave assurance of the same fact. But old Doc Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, wants to give it his own personal examination.

Brings Along Mr. Bozo.

Along with the rather questionable left hand Stribling is also bringing to Chicago Battling Bozo, the light heavyweight fighter from Birmingham who fills an engagement in the world's light heavyweight championship tournament at the Stadium on Friday night.

Bozo's opponent will be Pettit Ferarrer, who once boxed under the name of Pedlar Palmer. Why he changed his name no one seems to know. But it possibly was a grave mistake. For wouldn't this match, billed as Battling Bozo vs. Pedlar Palmer, stand out as a much more uplifting affair than a match between Battling Bozo and Pettit Ferrarer?

A rather strange situation will develop if Battling Bozo whips this Ferrarer fellow. For Pa Stribling brought Clyde Chastain to the first series of the light heavyweight title bouts last week and was in his corner when the lad from Oklahoma whipped Umberto Curi from the Argentine.

What Might Happen.

If Bozo whips Ferrarer it is possible the draw may bring him in against Chastain in the third round matches. Then the crowd would see Pa Stribling in the Chastain corner peering out across the ring at Young Stribling in Battling Bozo's corner.

Persons of a suspicious nature might not want to speculate on the contest, but I sort of believe it might be an honest-to-goodness socking match with the best man on his feet when it ended.

The arrival of Bozo will find the colony complete for the second series in the light heavyweight tournament. The boys who appear on Friday night have more pulling power at the gate than those which fought last week, the advance sale of tickets indicates.

Here and there—the King Levinsky-Tommy Loughran fight in New York Friday will be 10 rounds instead of 12. Loughran insisted on the shorter route and the agreeable King consented. . . . Jack Dempsey will wind up the early part of his comeback barnstorming trip in Winnipeg tonight, then will go to Salt Lake for the holidays. The old mauler is due to visit old cronies in Chicago soon after Jan. 1. . . . Harry Fierro, Chicago featherweight, signed yesterday for a battle with Kid Francis of New York at St. Louis on Jan. 13. It will be Fierro's first bout in nearly six months.

CARDS TO KEEP HACK WILSON, BREADON SAYS

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 14.—(AP)—President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals announced today he had decided to keep Hack Wilson and the former home run slugger of the Cubs would be given every opportunity to "come back."

"Of course," Breadon said, "if some club were to make a sensational offer for Wilson we would consider it and might accept. But I expect no offer that would make us part with Wilson."

In the WAKE of the NEWS

PLAYER OF GREATEST VALUE.

If a person were asked to name in a general way what players had the best chance of winning THE TRIBUNE's annual Silver Football for the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team, he'd be likely to reply, "Why, one of the members of the championship eleven." That would be a natural answer. Yet that has happened only once during the seven years the trophy has been awarded. It was in 1926 when Michigan and Northwestern were tied at the end of the season with five victories each and Benny Friedman was adjudged the most valuable player to his squad.

The accompanying results. The Wake believes, prove the soundness of the plan for making such an honorary award and the fairness of the manner in which the winner is determined. Let's look them over:

1929—Bill Glassgow, winner. Champion, Purdue. Iowa won two games, lost two and tied two.

1930—Wesley Fesler, winner. Champions, Northwestern and Michigan. Ohio State won two games, lost two and tied one.

Thus, in seven competitions, winner of the Silver Football has been chosen four times from an eleven which won only half or less than half of its conference contests. That, in itself, is a pretty good recommendation for this trophy which rewards sportsmanship, self-sacrifice and team spirit.

SHAMROCKS IDLE; PLA-MORS HAVE CHANCE TO LEAD

With the Shamrocks idle this week, the Kansas City Pla-Mors have an opportunity to assume the leadership of the American Hockey league through their two games with the Buffalo Majors at Buffalo.

Victories for the Pla-Mors tonight and tomorrow night will give them a two-point lead over the Green and White when the two teams meet Saturday night for the second time this season at the Chicago Stadium.

This opportunity for Kansas City occurs as the result of the postponement of the Shamrocks' opening at St. Louis, scheduled for Thursday night. The Fliers' rink will not be ready until Dec. 25, when the Shamrocks are again booked to appear in St. Louis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Butler university's basketball team routed Southern California here tonight, 36 to 16. Tonight's defeat in every way decisive, was the worst Sam Barry's team had suffered on its eastern excursion.

The game was twelve and one-half minutes old before Capps, Southern California guard, finally scored from the field. Pierce, Trojan center, quickly followed, but Butler tightened and led at the half, 20 to 6.

At the three-quarter mark Butler led, 31 to 12, and Coach Tony Hinkle sent in the first string reserves. They played eight minutes and with the score 34 to 14, a number of sophomores were used. Lineup:

MARQUETTE BEATEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 14.—Brigham Young university's basketball captain, Woody Romney, tonight beat Marquette university almost single-handed. He scored seven baskets and six free throws as his team won in the Marquette gymnasium, 39 to 32. A capacity crowd attended.

It was Marquette's second start of the season and its first defeat.

Romney's second and third field goals gave the westerners a 20 to 18 lead as the first half ended. It looked like a Marquette runaway at the start as spectacular shooting by Co-Capt. Walter Budrunas and Ed Mullen, plus accuracy from the free throw line by the others, gave it a 11 to 5 advantage. Lineup:

HERRERA WINS IN TEN ROUNDS FROM MASSEY

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Tony Herrera, Chicago Mexican lightweight, battered Lew Massey of Philadelphia about the ring tonight to win the judges' decision in the feature ten round bout of the arena fight card. The victor held a three and a half pound advantage.

Both battlers mixed head and body blows all the way. Neither gained a knockdown, although on several occasions hefty swings to the jaw had both men groggy.

QUITS WISCONSIN JOB

George Little, athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, resigned yesterday after seven years' service, the first two of which he also coached the football team.

N. Y. U. Puts New Sports Policy in Use

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, in a statement issued late this afternoon, announced a new policy for athletics, and football in particular, at New York university by which the university plans to overturn the "big time" football policy which was in vogue during the seven years John [Chick] Meehan was head coach.

This statement, which features provisions aimed at the elimination of recruiting and subsidizing of football players, as those terms are understood popularly, followed Meehan's resignation last night.

Roberts Mentioned as Coach.

The head coaching position is still open, but the new policy which has already gone into effect will determine the selection of a new coach. Arthur [Archie] Roberts, Violet football, baseball, and basketball star, who was graduated in 1929, has been prominently mentioned to succeed Meehan. Chancellor Brown in his statement outlined the university's policy for the future, in part, as follows:

The minimizing of the importance and the shortening of the duration of spring football practice, looking forward to its possible final elimination.

Shorten Fall Practice.

The shortening of the duration of fall football practice to a period of not more than two weeks prior to the opening of the regular academic year.

The barring of freshmen from all preliminary fall football practice and the shortening of the freshman football season, affecting the period of practice and actual playing schedule.

The elimination of all organized recruiting and subsidizing as such terms have been understood popularly.

Meehan Has No Plans.

Meehan returned to his duties as vice president of a contracting firm today, determined that he will never coach football "on a big-time basis again."

"I'm through with the big gates and high-pressure football," he said. "I have no coaching plans and the only thing I would accept along that line is a part time position where the fun of the game alone was important. I have had no offers to coach anywhere.

"I'm tired of driving boys, cajoling them, berating them, driving them to win, only to see them crack through tiredness late in the season. The grief in that kind of football is too great."

Zeller Awarded Balfour Honor at Indiana U. Again

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Joe Zeller, Indiana football guard and his team mates' choice for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's most valuable player award, has been given the 1931 Balfour award for football. Director of Athletics Z. G. Clevenger announced today that the East Chicago line star has won the honor for the second straight year.

For three years Zeller has been a regular on both the basketball and football teams. His coaches have called him one of Indiana's greatest all-time athletes and a leader and inspiration to his teammates. Both this fall and last he gained numerous all-star awards. He is a senior and concludes his athletic career this year.

The Balfour awards are given each year to the men showing the most ability and best spirit in the major sports.

BOXING STILL IS MILLION DOLLAR A YEAR INDUSTRY

While it still was a million dollar a year industry, boxing in Illinois has suffered in 1931 from the general depression, it was revealed yesterday by Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic commission.

Gen. Clinnin's report which covers the year from Dec. 1, 1930, to Dec. 1, 1931, shows that attendances at boxing shows was off more than 200,000 from the year previous and that receipts were off nearly a quarter of a million dollars. However, the total receipts at bouts in the state during the twelve months was $1,004,352.80. The total attendance for the same period was 424,219. In 1930 total receipts were $1,246,868.20 and the attendance was 643,582.

The state was enriched $104,904.61 in revenue from state tax on gate receipts, license fees and fines.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—R. C. Thatcher's Gaillardia, making his first appearance of the season on southern tracks, scored an easy victory in the Rigolets purse, at a mile and seventy yards, the feature of the racing at Jefferson Park today. Gaillardia made his own pace throughout and won by five lengths from Edward Haughton's Bill Looney, which had been installed favorite as the result of his easy victory last week. Miss Sweeper was third, three lengths further back in the field of six.

Gaillardia was favored by a light impost of 99 pounds and Jockey Lewis took advantage of this to go to the front with the springing of the barrier. He set a fast pace around the first turn and through the back stretch with Bill Looney in hard pursuit more than a length away.

Bill Looney Weakens.

Jockey Riley, on Bill Looney, had not attempted to force the pace and appeared to be waiting for a run through the final furlong but, as the horses swung into the stretch, Riley called on his mount and after a few strides Bill Looney weakened before he had menaced the leader. Gaillardia drew away and won as he pleased. Miss Sweeper was never a factor in the race but managed to hold third safe from the others, which were strung out at the finish.

While favorites fared badly generally, the first real surprise came in the second race when the Louisiana stable's Jargon got home half a length in front of St. Jim, the favorite, paying $66 for a $2 ticket in the mutuals. Lucky Drift was beaten by only a head to be third.

Jargon Makes Fast Start.

Jargon was off alertly and Jockey Hanauer, hugging the rail, saved much ground and was able to withstand the rush of St. Jim in the closing furlong of the six furlong dash. St. Jim straightened out in the stretch, gained rapidly and was cutting down the margin on the winner.

There was a thrill to the finish of the third race, a test at a mile and a sixteenth, when Stop Gap fought it out with Rubberneck and lasted to win by a neck after it appeared that he might be beaten. Tommy got third in this field of ten.

PURDUE FACES NOTRE DAME'S FIVE TONIGHT

Irish Guards Are on Sick List.

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Homer Baldwin, former Eagle high school star and mainstay of the Notre Dame basketball team, will be confined to the university infirmary today and may not be able to play when the Irish meet Purdue's quintet here tomorrow night.

Lee Crowe, second string guard, also injured most of Saturday's Indiana game after Burns went out on fouls, joined Baldwin in the infirmary today. Both are suffering from chest colds. Attending physicians today stressed the possibility that both may not be fit tomorrow night.

In today's drill Burns and Johnson, regulars, were at the guards. If Baldwin and Crowe are unable to play, there will be no experienced players for these positions. Decook was at center with Capt. Norb Crowe and Bill Newbold at forwards today.

Purdue's veteran quintet defeated Washington of St. Louis, 53 to 31, Monday. The team which trimmed Notre Dame, 24 to 22, last year, is intact with Co-Captains Johnny Wolfe, guard, and Harry Kellar, pivot, leading it.

LOYOLA MEETS ARKANSAS

Loyola university meets the Arkansas State college basketball team tonight at Loyola gym in its second game of the season. It will be the fifth probable meeting between the two teams since 1916. Loyola has won all previous games.

Defensive play was stressed yesterday with particular reference to the last half which crushed the Loyola defense for four goals in two minutes. Joe Wagner, regular center, Jim Horan, sophomore forward, and Jim Hay, sophomore center, were drilled smooth the basket.

Bob Fetzer and Don Cavanaugh, early set of guards, led the scoring against Brigham Young but every man in the starting lineup broke into the scoring column. Lineup:

LOYOLA		ARKANSAS STATE
Mahoney	L.F.	Kelso
Horan	R.F.	Thornton
Hayes	C.	Lamb
Cavanaugh	L.G.	Morgan
Fetzer	R.G.	McDaniel

Substitutions: Loyola [De Paul], Omen-Indiana Rankin [Michigan].

DANIELS ON BENCH?

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Possibility that Norm Daniels, captain and center of the Michigan basketball squad, and last year fourth scoring scorer of the Big Ten, will be benched, was indicated today by Coach Cappon. Daniels has failed to show the form he exhibited in his first two years of competition.

Daniels scored nine points against Western State last Monday, but in the contest with Michigan State Saturday night had to be removed. His removal was due in part to the fact that he could not match the reach of his opponent, Boeshost, Spartan center, but his general play was off.

Michigan will play the Ohio conference champion, Mount Union, Saturday night. The Mountmen will bring the season's team intact, with five additional letter men.

3 GAMES FOR N. U.

Three games in five days is the program now confronting Northwestern's basketball team. Thursday night the Wildcats play an all-star Knights of Columbus five in a charity game at the Chicago Stadium. A game with Washington university of St. Louis is slated for Saturday at Patten gym, and on Monday night the Purple will play the first of a two game series with Notre Dame at South Bend.

Last Saturday's two point victory over Southern California disclosed a number of defects in the Wildcat personnel which Coach Dutch Lonborg hopes to eliminate before the big games into action again. The absence of two sophomores in the Northwestern lineup has had a tendency to disrupt the offensive efforts of the five in the two games played so far.

Loss of Capt. Bob McCarnes and Ed Lechner, two regulars, through scholastic has also hampered the team. Lechner is recovering from a sprained ankle received two weeks ago and is expected to be ready to take over his job at center in time for the Notre Dame game.

Meanwhile Chet Perry and Saul Fidler will hold down the jobs of their injured teammates. Perry, a sophomore, played the entire game against Southern California while Fidler appeared for the second half and contributed seven points which were largely instrumental in the Wildcat victory.

PITT AT INDIANA

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Indiana and Pittsburgh basketball teams will play here Wednesday. Indiana has victories over Miami, Ohio, and Notre Dame, 23 to 18.

The Panthers will arrive in Bloomington tomorrow morning intent on taking revenge over the team that last year handed them one of only two defeats.

GAMES OPEN NEW WINDY CITY BASKET LEAGUE

Play season will be played tomorrow night in opening the new Windy City basketball league at the 1326 Regina armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. The circuit is composed of six independent clubs. The opening games:

Bill Bo vs. All-Chicagos.
Tivoli vs. Redwood Reds.
Chatham vs. Essenfeld Big Blues.
U. S. R. vs. Lindstrom All-Stars.

Cleveland Ring Board Fines, Suspends Pirrone for Foul

Cleveland, O., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Paul Pirrone was fined $200 and suspended from Cleveland rings for 90 days by the Cleveland boxing commission today following the beating of Lou Brouillard, welterweight champion, here Thursday night.

MOON MULLINS—THE SHAKE DOWN

YOU MEAN TO TELL ME, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM, THAT MOONSHINE'S UNCLE WILLIE WON $575.00 FROM SOME OF YOUR SWELL FRIEND'S?
OH MY, YES. I WAS NEVER SO DUMBFOUNDED AS WHEN THE BOUNDER BUTTED INTO THE GAME.
SO!
WILLYAM, DO YOU REMEMBER ME ASKING YOU FOR SOME MONEY THIS MORNING?
CERTAINLY, SUGAR, CERTAINLY. AND DO YOU REMEMBER ME TELLING YOU I WAS BROKE?
DON'T YOU STORY TO ME, WILLIE MULLINS. HA!
MY WORD! I'D COMPLETELY FORGOT ALL ABOUT THAT, HONEYBUNCH.
WELL, LET THIS LEARN YOU A LESSON, WILLIAM. ANYBODY WITH SUCH A BAD MEMORY'S GOT NO BUSINESS BECOMING A LIAR!

St. Viator Five to Play De Paul on Charity Bill

De Paul university of Chicago will meet St. Viator college of Bourbonnais, Ill., a member of the Little Nineteen conference, in the third game of the benefit basketball program Thursday night at the Chicago Stadium.

The contest originally was scheduled tonight, but the schools offered to postpone the affair to aid charity. The other two games on the card are Northwestern university vs. an all-star team from the Knights of Columbus Basketball league, and St. Mel High school, Catholic league champion, vs. Crane Tech, city league champion.

St. Viator Wins Last Year.

De Paul opened its season by defeating Southern California. Last year St. Viator upset De Paul twice by one point. "Bucky" Dahman, former Notre Dame star, is coach at the downstate school.

The transfer was made through the efforts of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league, which is sponsoring the benefit program together with the Illinois state council of the Knights of Columbus and the Joint Emergency Relief Fund of Cook county.

Pick K. of C. Team from 600.

Fans are eager to see how the Northwestern team stacks up against the K. of C. stars, who have been selected from the more than 600 players on the 45 teams in the league. Last year a K. of C. team defeated a picked quintet from Notre Dame.

Wood Returns Criticism of Net Captain

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Sidney B. Wood Jr., 19 year old member of the 1931 United States Davis cup squad and Wimbledon champion, today accused Samuel Hardy, Davis cup captain, of berating him instead of encouraging him at a critical point in one of his matches in the intersone final at Paris.

Wood made his charge in a letter to the editor of Tennis, which carried an article by Hardy in its last issue discussing the prospects for next year's team and suggesting Wood was not yet a player of international rank. Sidney's letter was an answer to that article.

Accuses Hardy in Letter.

Wood accused Hardy of making an unfair attack on him, and said:

"Had you been in the locker room of the Roland Garros stadium in Paris during the rest period of my match against Austin [Austin two sets, 1 one] and overheard my captain [Hardy] telling me, with a lack of control surely to be regretted in one supposed to lead and encourage his players, that I was no good, that I looked like a fool on the court and that I had no chance to win—had you heard all this, you would understand why I can employ invective toward my former captain."

Admits He's Goat.

Hardy, in his article, suggested that Wood not be considered for another Davis cup squad until he has reached the finals of a national championship or some similar event. Wood points out that he won the Wimbledon title.

Wood admits he was the "head goat" in this year's Davis cup play, where England eliminated the United States in the internone, with Sidney losing both his matches, and said that at first he read scathing reports of his play "almost sympathetically." But when people start to prophesying his career as an international player "was already [at nineteen] past," Wood said he must disagree.

BOARD STARTS SEARCH FOR NEW IOWA GRID COACH

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Consideration of a new University of Iowa head football coach to succeed Burton A. Ingwersen probably will be started this week by a committee of three members of the athletic board empowered to open negotiations with applicants for the position.

The athletic board committee is composed of Dr. E. H. Kauer, athletic director; Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, and Prof. Rudolf Kuever. They are expected to report to the board at its meeting Friday, and may possibly have recommendations for a successor to Ingwersen at that time. No applications have been received.

It is believed that Frank Wickhorst, former Hawkeye line coach now assistant to Bill Ingram at the University of California, will be approached. It is deemed improbable, however, that the former Navy star will be interested in the Iowa job. Wickhorst is now receiving a salary about equal to that which the head football coaching position here has paid.

When a Blackbird Isn't a Blackbird, It's a Starling

BY BOB BECKER.

It appears as if Chicagoland were going to play host to several flocks of startlings this winter because a few days ago we saw two small flocks of these European birds about 40 miles west of the loop. The starling [originally introduced into the east] has been moving westward for years. It looks something like a blackbird with a long thin bill and a short "droopy" tail, dark, metallic green. Its feathers are flecked or spotted with brownish cream buff.

We were driving along a country road between Wheaton and Barrington when we saw the first group of five starlings. The birds were not far from the highway, a short distance south of Cloverdale. Bird fans in Chicagoland should keep watch this winter for roving flocks of these birds which may be passed up as blackbirds by the casual observer. Although the starling is being condemned as a pest and a nuisance in the east, especially in the city of Washington, here in the middle west it hasn't gained much of a foothold.

A hike through the woods and fields at this time of the year shows that the "melancholy days" have come for the bird fans, because only a few species of feathered residents are holding the fort during the winter days. The birds that are around should be provided with outdoor feeding stations, and already conservation organizations have sent out the call to sportsmen and outdoor fans to get started on their programs.

Bird students who haven't tried the combination sport and conservation activity of winter bird feeding will find many suggestions in The Tribune's handbook on birds, entitled "Birds and Birdhouses" which is on sale at the public service office at 1 South Dearborn street. The price is 25 cents; 28 cents by mail. Orders should be sent direct to the public service office.

In this handbook will be found complete feeding charts telling which foods to put out for the winter birds. The book contains information on how to attract such birds as chickadees, the Jays and other feathered residents around the home, and also a number of practical tips on how to build food shelters or feeding stations for game birds.

Although most of our winter birds can find enough to eat during the early part of the winter [November and December] the bird authorities recommend the establishment of winter feeding stations fairly early in the season so that when bitter weather and heavy snow arrive the quail, pheasants, and other valuable game birds know where they can get a meal.

ODD FELLOWS OFFER 8 BOUTS TO AID NEEDY

Tomorrow night's benefit program of the Odd Fellows at Ashland auditorium, Van Buren street and Ashland boulevard, will bring together 16 amateurs with reputations for dangerous rights and lefts.

Ralph Tobar, Mexican champion, and Joey Kleko head the card. Others are Larry Strong and Al Schiarto, Tony Dellessie and Virgil Beni, Jackie Schwartz and Bob Grosbek, Steve Pajdo and Ruben Meyers, Willie Block and Ted Norcup, John Konopasek and Frank Jackson, Bruno Folts, and Cliff Dennette.

The advance sale of tickets indicates a sellout for the first boxing event staged by the Odd Fellows to raise funds for their service bureau, an unemployment relief organization. As a special offer to women fans, tickets are being offered them for 50 cents. All other tickets are priced at $1, with none reserved.

EXPECT BUSH TO SIGN AS MILLER MANAGER TODAY

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 14.—[AP]—Donie Bush, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, is expected to become manager and part owner of the Minneapolis American association club as the result of his decision not to purchase the Toledo club.

Mike Kelley, manager and principal owner of the Minneapolis team, said he expects to complete negotiations with Bush tomorrow. Kelley said he had a definite understanding with Bush to take over the Millers' management if the Toledo deal did not go through.

Kelley will be president of the Minneapolis club and look after the business affairs, while Bush will run the team on the field.

North Central Five Faces Armour Tonight

The North Central college basketball team will play Armour Tech tonight at Naperville. North Central won its first game from the American College of Physical Education, 27 to 11. Armour also has defeated the American college, as well as the two other teams which it has met.

St. Mel Beats Austin Prep Five, 28 to 21

St. Mel High school, Catholic league heavyweight basketball champion, defeated Austin, 28 to 21, in a practice game on the Austin court yesterday.

Cain, with three baskets and two free throws, led the victors. St. Mel led at the half, 16 to 14. The St. Mel lights handed the Austin ponies their first defeat in five games, 21 to 17, in a preliminary contest. Heavyweight lineup:

BOWEN AND FIVE OTHERS ENTER STAGG TOURNEY

Six more high school teams accepted invitations yesterday from Coach A. A. Stagg to enter the University of Chicago's Christmas week basketball tournament. They were Bowen, Elgin, Hyde Park, Austin, Lane and St. Charles and leave only six of the 32 places open.

The entry of Bowen, one of the strongest teams in the city league, brings all of the finalists in last year's meet into the second annual competition. Lindblom, which defeated the south siders for the Stagg championship last year, is already entered, as are Tilden and Morgan Park, which finished third and fourth respectively.

The tournament will open the new University of Chicago field house on Dec. 28, and will continue through Jan. 2. Previous entries were Lake View, Dundee, Marshall, Proviso, Bloom, Englewood, Crane, Thornton, New Trier, Senn, York, Parker, Lindblom, Tilden, Normal [Ill.]; Englewood, Calumet, Morgan Park, Hinsdale and Riverside.

Rose, U. S. Amateur Sprint Cyclist, Dies of Pneumonia

Rose was the national amateur bicycling sprint champion for 1931, and held the world's amateur record for the half mile. He made this record in 53 2-5 seconds on May 24.

His trainer, Joseph McManus, said he was a possible candidate for the Olympic games next year.

De Paul Society of St. Mark's Holds Boxing Card Tonight

Five amateur boxing bouts will be held in the charity program to be conducted under the auspices of the St. Vincent de Paul society of St. Mark's, 1048 North Campbell avenue, tonight. Earl Mastro will referee the matches.

athletic council and Wisconsin's representative on the Big Ten committee, favored Thistlethwaite's retention. While President Frank has made no comment on the proposed reorganization of the department of athletics and physical education, he attended the council meetings last week for the first time since becoming president of the university.

Frank Calls Move Surprise.

"Mr. Little's resignation," President Frank said yesterday, "is a complete surprise. I did not know that he contemplated retirement. The letter of resignation will be acted on, of course, by the athletic council."

While no announcements can be expected concerning the council's action, it is a possibility that Little's resignation will not be accepted. If it is, however, there are several men on the present staff who may be elevated to the directorship. One of these is Glenn Thistlethwaite. Tom Jones, who was athletic director when Little came to Wisconsin in 1925, might be appointed. For the last seven years Jones has coached the track teams and taught in the department.

There were several yesterday who advocated selection of Dr. Walter Meanwell, head basketball coach, as director of athletics.

Little accepted the directorship at Wisconsin in the spring of 1925. During his first two years he also acted as head coach of the football team, winning from Purdue, Iowa and Chicago, losing to Michigan and tieing Minnesota in his first season. In 1926 he scored wins over Indiana, Iowa and Chicago, tieing Purdue and losing to Michigan and Minnesota.

Fought for Field House.

His outstanding achievement as director is generally considered to be his successful campaign to build the Wisconsin field house. When former Gov. Zimmerman vetoed the appropriation to build after it had passed both houses, Director Little refused to admit defeat and developed the plan under which the field house was built by the Wisconsin Building corporation, a holding company created by law for the purpose.

The field house cost nearly $500,000, of which approximately one third already has been paid from the receipts of football. The balance is being paid at the rate of $25,000 a year from athletic receipts and the program will be concluded in 1950.

Little has also been highly successful in selling the university and its athletics to the people and especially the high school youth of Wisconsin. In his first sixteen months as director he made over 300 addresses to schools, service clubs and civic organizations in Wisconsin.

Little is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan. After completing his college course he coached at the University of Cincinnati, then transferring to Miami. From here he went to the University of Michigan as assistant to Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics. He also was head coach of football. Little declined several offers to coach elsewhere, but when he was named athletic director at Wisconsin he accepted.

Named Thistlethwaite Coach.

After two years' coaching at Wisconsin, Little named Thistlethwaite head football coach. At the time, Thistlethwaite had completed five years at Northwestern and he was urged to remain with an increase of salary. The University of Texas also sought Thistlethwaite as football coach.

While no definite reasons are advanced for Little's resignation, it is believed recent criticism prompted his move.

McQuade's Suit to Regain Giants' Job Reaches Trial

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The suit brought by former Magistrate Francis X. McQuade, who was ousted as treasurer of the New York Giants on May 2, 1923, to compel Charles A. Stoneham, principal owner, and John J. McGraw, manager, to reinstate him with back pay at the rate of $10,000 a year, reached the trial stage in the Supreme court today.

KAMPFER MEETS JACK WASHBURN ON FRONTON MAT

Hans Kampfer, newest of the German wrestlers, will make his second start in Chicago on Friday night at the Rainbo fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, in one of the five matches on Promoter Doc Krone's all heavyweight wrestling card.

Kampfer will meet Jack Washburn. Hans has been doing most of his wrestling in St. Louis since invading America.

Krone already has lined up his main attraction and semi-windup. The feature finds Jim McKillen engaging in his first finish match for several months, his foe being Frank Bronowics. They will go two falls out of three to a finish.

NO FREEZE-UP WORRIES

you're safe with radiator GLYCERINE

A $200 freeze-up repair bill! And his weeks of worry and fretting and running out for more anti-freeze did him no good!

He could have so easily avoided it all, too. If he had insisted on G.P.A. Radiator Glycerine before the first freezing weather he wouldn't have had an anxious moment all winter! G.P.A. doesn't play you false; it doesn't evaporate and leave your car unprotected. One filling lasts all winter. That means it's really economical!

Insist on genuine G.P.A. Have it put in your car early—the sooner, the better! Tested and approved by Contest Board, American Automobile Assn. Produced only by members of Glycerine Producers' Assn.

DRAWS BARRED IN STADIUM MAT SHOW TONIGHT

George Takes On Zbyszko in Windup.

A new brand of wrestling will be offered fans this evening at Chicago Stadium when five heavyweight bouts, featured by a two-out-of-three fall match between Dan George and Karol Zybszko, are run off. There will be no draws. If there be no falls, the referee must name the winner.

Zbyszko's Second Chance.

The state athletic commission yesterday passed a rule barring draws. The commission, in passing the rule, pointed out that the fans pay to see a definite result. The boys who formerly groaned and grunted until the clock said they were through, now will have to go in and shoot or else have a black mark added to their record.

Zbyszko tonight gets his second chance within a month against one of the top flight performers. In his last appearance he scored a fall over Gus Sonnenberg, but later was barred from the ring and injured and the decision went to Sonnenberg.

Karol has no special hold, although his pets are wristlocks and leg holds. George's specialty is the body slam.

Lutze Faces Martin.

In the one fall matches Nick Lutze takes on Bull Martin and Count Zaryaoff, a skillful performer, mixes with Jack Wagner. Joe Makowicz and Frank Judson, a pair of Polish stars, meet in another match. Lou Macaluso, former Colgate football star, and Sailor Arnold, the ex-Marine, meet in the fifth bout.

MATCH PETROLLE, TOWNSEND.

A POLICEMAN'S LOT IN BRONX IS QUITE A LOT!

One Plain Clothes Man Banks $103,000.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—"Plain clothes men only get the crumbs," an ex-policeman in the Bronx told the Hofstadter legislative committee in a private examination some time ago when they asked him about the opportunities for speakeasy graft. He denied that he even got any crumbs himself.

This afternoon at a public hearing Counsel Samuel Seabury showed that he had banked $103,000 since 1931, and that $35,300 was banked in cash during the two and a half years he was on duty in the Bronx.

The ex-patrolman was Dennie Wright, a partner of Patrolman Richard Prendergast who testified last week about the way some speakeasies in the Eighth division in the Bronx were protected under the orders of superior officers.

Started with $400.

Wright, who left the force in 1929, was inclined to deny testimony he gave at private hearings, claiming that Associate Counsel Irving Cooper "put the words in his mouth."

Mr. Seabury showed that in 1926, the year before he was assigned to plain clothes duty in the Bronx, Wright banked $400 in cash. In 1927, his first year in the Eighth division, his cash deposits jumped to $10,700. In 1928 he banked $8,900 in cash, and in 1929 he banked a total of $14,000, of which $5,700 was in cash.

A Mysterious Group.

That league grew out of the old Liquor Dealers' association and Frederick testified last week that policemen were instructed to "lay off" of Liberty league members' speakeasies, and not to damage the places if they were forced by complaints to make raids.

Schultz denied that the Liberty league was anything but a social organization, or that its blue card—a receipt for dues, he said—conferred protection on the place. He denied giving money to Lieut. Albert J. Stroh, who was in charge of plain clothes men in the Eighth division, or to Wright.

Mr. Seabury moved today against Mayor James J. Walker's missing business agent, Russell T. Sherwood. He filed affidavits in Supreme court showing that Sherwood had been legally served by publication with an order directing him to show cause why his property should not be seized for failure to answer a subpoena.

CORONER NAMES DR. J. W. HALL AS CRIMINOLOGIST

Dr. James Whitney Hall, alienist and Democratic leader, was appointed criminologist on the coroner's staff yesterday by Coroner Frank J. Walsh. Dr. Hall was chief of the defense alienists in the Loeb-Leopold case and has taken part in many sanitary hearings. He will serve as one of the "dollar a year" experts of the coroner's staff. Coroner Walsh said Dr. Hall would be called by the office when questions arose where the evidence of an alienist would help investigations. Dr. Hall is a former president of the Iroquois club, a Democratic organization.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: He Sees

NEW SUIT FILED OVER ESTATE OF JACOB MAYER

Benjamin A. Mayer, 5426 Harper avenue, and his brother, I. L. Mayer of San Francisco, yesterday filed an amended bill for an accounting and petition for an injunction against their stepmother, Mrs. Augusta Mayer, 5496 Hyde Park boulevard. They charged that she was dissipating the $500,000 estate of their father, Jacob Mayer, former head of Belding Brothers, silk manufacturers, who died on May, 1929.

The action was started with the consent of Circuit Judge Joseph Burke, who refused to countenance an earlier bill, because it asked for an injunction against the Hyde Park Safe Deposit company and the Central Republic bank. In the new petition the brothers ask that the safe deposit company and the bank be ordered to hold under court jurisdiction the property of Mrs. Mayer.

Besides Mrs. Mayer the defendants named are her children by a former marriage, Ben Winston and Mrs. Maud Heilbrunn; her son-in-law, Simon Heilbrunn; and her granddaughter, Adele Heilbrunn, to whom she has made extravagant gifts, according to the charges.

The bill alleges that Mrs. Mayer was given a life trust in the estate and ordered under the will to live on the income without disturbing the principal. The bill was filed by Attorney G. Lysle Smith.

TIES SELF AND 2 CHILDREN IN CAR, DRIVES INTO SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, C. Z., Dec. 14.—With his left leg strapped to a foot pedal of his automobile and his right leg roped to his daughter, Jacqueline, 6 years old, and with his son, Charles, 8, tied in the back seat, Charles A. Roach drove full speed off a pier here Thursday night into 45 feet of water. Roach was an canal sanitary inspector, a former soldier, and later a canal policeman.

Recently he had had trouble with his second wife, who is now in Gorgas hospital suffering a nervous breakdown. On Thursday Roach called upon his divorced first wife here, and then took his children for a ride. He was not seen alive since that time.

Yesterday Charles' body was discovered floating in the Balboa basin and authorities immediately began to search for the other two. Divers found the motor car this morning 25 feet from the pier. Its top was sunk to a level with the mud. It is believed the son struggled when his father tied him in the back seat and succeeded in fighting his way out after the car reached the bottom.

Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell, [Moffett Photo.]

MRS. TREADWELL EDUCATOR, DEAD; RITES TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell, 12012 Harvard avenue, a school principal in Chicago since 1905 and one of the city's best known educators, will be held in the auditorium of the Scanlan school, 11725 Perry avenue, tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Treadwell died suddenly Saturday night of a heart attack in Hammond as she was on her way to Chicago after visiting relatives in Indiana. She was 62 years old.

Mrs. Treadwell was born in Williamstown, N. Y., and educated in the Oswego High school and the Oswego Normal school. She was married to the late Dr. Charles H. Treadwell in 1897. In 1889 she began teaching in grade schools. She became a principal in 1905 and served continuously since that time. She was principal of the Gompers school at the time of her death.

Mrs. Treadwell interested herself in woman's suffrage. She was president of the Chicago League of Women Voters for two years, president of the Political Equity league for eight years, and president of the Illinois Woman's Legislative congress.

She was the co-author of the Free and Treadwell Reading Literature Series in seven volumes. Mrs. Treadwell is survived by a son, Charles H. Treadwell, a teacher in the Tilden Technical High school.

Dr. Lebon, French Expert on Psychology of Crowds, Dies

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Gustave Lebon, widely known sociologist and philosopher, died during the night in Marne-la-Coquette, near Paris. He was 91. He was director of the Library of Scientific Philosophy and was internationally known for his works on the psychology of crowds.

William T. Farwell, veteran Chicago real estate dealer, died late Sunday at his home, 3540 Lake Park avenue. He was 92 years old and had been active in business until a year ago. Death was due to infirmities of age.

Mr. Farwell was born in New York, but came west when he was 17 years old. He first went to Texas, and one of his reminiscences of late years was a dinner he once had with Sam Houston, Indian fighter and first governor of the Lone Star state. In 1850 he established a real estate office in St. Paul, Minn., coming to Chicago in 1852.

His only formula for longevity was "common sense." When he was 90 he said that he ate meat and drank coffee only once a day. He was an opponent of prohibition and used tobacco.

Mr. Farwell is survived by his widow and by two sons, William T. Jr., and Harry A. Farwell. Funeral services will be conducted at 5302 Lake Park avenue at 2 p. m. today.

GEN. STANBERY, CINCINNATI RAIL OFFICIAL, IS DEAD

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Sanford B. Stanbery, 60, brigadier general during the world war and a trustee of the Southern Railway system, died here tonight after an illness of several months. Gen Stanbery, past 45 when America entered the war, was ineligible for an officers' training school, so he enlisted as a private in the Ohio National Guard.

One month after his enlistment in the world war he was commissioned a colonel by Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio and transferred to Montgomery, Ala., as commanding officer of the 145th infantry. He went overseas with the 37th division.

He was promoted to brigadier general on Oct. 1, 1918, commanded a brigade of the 75th division in the Argonne offensive and was awarded the distinguished service medal for gallantry in action.

DEBT BURDEN IN U. S. PLACED AT $300 PER HEAD

Taxes in Sharp Gain Through Years.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The ordinary American who bought more than he could pay for during the boom decade following the war has traveled the hard road of repayment. To his credit it may be said that he has greatly reduced his debts.

But the American people only now are really beginning to realize that they also undertook a vast collective debt during the same years and that its extravagance also must be paid for. Extravagance in public expenditures and in government are one of the overhanging burdens that must be removed before prosperity can return.

Let's take a look at this debt burden and realize that there is no panacea that will relieve the country of it except work and frugality. Then we will be less likely to delude ourselves that some miraculous remedy will be found.

10 Billion in Taxes.

Taxes of all kinds this year will run around 10 billion dollars from the earnings of the American people. And what these earnings will be remains to be computed, but it is likely that the tax takings will run between 9 and 10 per cent of total income. This is the penalty for collective spending in the past and increasing governmental costs.

Let's see how this tax burden has increased. Back in 1890, the total of all taxes, federal and local, was only $375,000,000, or $13.84 per capita. By 1913, or twenty-three years later, taxes had risen to $3,187,000,000, or $32.66 per capita. Naturally the war and its subsequent debt caused a big increase in taxes, which rose to $6,558,000,000 in 1921, which was $61.68 per capita. The taxes were reduced a trifle from 1923 to 1926. But in 1927 they again rose to above $8,000,000,000, and in 1930 they got up to $9,782,00,000 to $80.00 per capita.

Take 12½ Per Cent.

The 1928 taxes took about 12½ per cent of the national income, which was estimated around 80 billion dollars. They also meant that an average tax of 6 6-10 per cent was levied on the assessed valuation of all property in the country subject to general property taxes. The valuation was more than 155 billion dollars.

And this was about the same toll that was exacted in 1930 and this year, except that in the last two years national income has declined considerably and therefore taxes have taken a larger proportion of it.

Debts of 12 Billion.

In 1922 the state and municipalities had debts of about 12 billion dollars and these have been increased considerably in the last two years. It is probable that these debts now exceed 16 billions dollars. In addition, the United States government has a gross debt of around 18 billion dollars. Therefore, the American people have a collective debt of close to 34 billion dollars. Of course, our government debt has an "offset" of around 21½ billion dollars in the form of war debts from our European allies of the war. But who knows if or when these will be paid?

As it now stands, our people owe about $300 per capita in the form of public debts on which they must pay interest and sinking funds, which probably call for around three billion dollars a year. The rest of the tax bill is for running expenses. Is it any wonder that Americans are finding life onerous? But that is the penalty for past spending. Isn't it time to realize that the reduction of this debt and reduction of both service charge on debt and current governmental expenses are necessary before real prosperity can be restored?

Holds There Are More Radio Stations than Necessary

BY SCRUTATOR.

Imagine a piece of ribbon with the figure 10 at one end and the figure 60,000 at the other and you begin to form an idea of what the radio engineer has in mind when he speaks of the radio spectrum. The numbers refer to kilocycles.

This ribbon is divided into many segments of varying sizes by federal authority and each is allocated for a particular use. The segment extending from 550 to 1,500 kilocycles on the ribbon is reserved for radio broadcasting of the type with which the ordinary owner of a receiving set is familiar.

The radio broadcast band is divided into ninety channels each covering ten kilocycles, in addition to a few channels allocated to Canadian stations.

Hundreds of Stations.

A number of these are "cleared channels" reserved for the use of certain large stations which operate in them without interference. Into the others are dumped hundreds of stations which are prevented from drowning each only by their spacing geographically, by their low power and by the limited time each is allowed on the air.

Radio engineers say that improvement of sending and receiving instruments eventually will make it possible to increase the number of available broadcast channels, but that they probably cannot be more than doubled.

That being the case something other than scientific improvement of instruments must be resorted to in relieving the overcrowded condition in radio. For the people as a whole there are many more stations now operating than are needed by listeners.

Possibly Dozen Needed.

The number of transmitting stations really necessary is indeterminate. Perhaps a dozen good ones would suffice—four on New York time and a like number each on Chicago and Pacific coast time. Then for minor uses there would be seventy-eight remaining channels available.

About seventy-five per cent of the value in broadcasting lies in music. Good music is much more easily obtained in the big centers than in small communities. Dramatic and spoken entertainment which forms twenty of the remaining twenty-five per cent is seldom obtainable outside the metropolitan centers, leaving five per cent unaccounted for.

In the beginning of radio the curiosity motive was supreme. There was constant twisting of the dial to get weak squawks from this or that distant point. People wanted to get and mark down as many stations as possible.

Wants Only Good Stations.

That attitude has gradually changed. Now the listener wants to be able to get only very few excellent stations.

There still remains in radio a vastly greater demand to be heard than there are listeners just as there are many more auditoriums and lecture rooms than there is a demand for. Still speakers have to go to the soap box to gratify their vanity. A large number of stations are operated at a loss or at public expense.

The cost of broadcasting, however, is so great and so fast in general that when the nuisance and racketeering value of such stations are exhausted as it soon will be—stations will be drugs on the market and the radio commission will become a registrar's office.

RADIO-KEITH TANGLE IS COMPLICATED BY ANOTHER LAW ACTION

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 14. — (AP) — Troubles of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation were complicated today with the entry in the Circuit court here of a suit, asking that the corporation be restrained from putting into effect a refinancing plan voted Saturday at a special meeting of stockholders.

The action was entered by J. Cookman Boyd, Baltimore stockholder, who alleged approval of the proposal was illegal through the casting of what he contended was illegal proxies. The corporation was given until Jan. 4 to show cause why the injunction should not be entered.

Today's was the second suit entered by Boyd against the company. On Dec. 2 he filed action seeking to have a receiver appointed, alleging mismanagement and waste by officials had endangered assets of the firm. No answer has been filed by the corporation, which has until Dec. 22 to show cause why a receiver should not be named.

Warner Bros. Values Stock.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 14. — (AP) — The stockholders of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., in annual meeting today approved the proposal for the establishment of a $5 stated value for the corporation's common stock. Approval of this proposal gives the corporation a surplus of about sixty million dollars, compared to the present earned surplus of about $225,000.

COURT ACTS IN TRANSAMERICA CORP. DISPUTE

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A temporary restraining order prohibiting the use of bank and corporation personnel equipment and premises by officers of Transamerica corporation in alleged attempts to induce stockholders to revoke stock proxies given A. P. Giannini, founder of the bank, was issued by the Superior court here today.

The action marks the first court procedure in the financial struggle between A. P. Giannini, founder of the corporation, and Elisha Walker of New York, chairman of the board, for financial control.

The order was obtained on petitions of six stockholders in the Bank of America and Transamerica, represented by Attorney Theodore Roche. The petition sets forth that the Walker forces have been using the personnel and equipment of the bank and corporation to attempt to induce stockholders to revoke the proxies they have given Giannini and associated Transamerica Stockholders, Inc., which has formed the chief opposition to Walker. It further states the Walker forces have asked that such proxies be remade in support of the eastern interests which now control Transamerica.

Charges that officials of the bank and corporation have threatened with discharge any employé joining the stockholders corporation were embodied in the petition.

NEW RAILWAY CREDIT CORPORATION TAKES OUT PAPERS IN EAST

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—Articles of incorporation for the new railroad credit corporation were filed today at Wilmington, Del., according to an announcement by the Association of Railway Executives. The corporation was set up by the class one roads of the country to administer pooled funds growing out of increased rates recently allowed by the Interstate commerce commission in its decision on the roads' petition for a blanket increase of 15 per cent in freight rates. The funds will be loaned to financially weak roads by the credit corporation.

The articles of incorporation were filed by E. G. Buckland, chairman of the board of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who has been elected president of the credit corporation.

The board of directors of the corporation in addition to Mr. Buckland includes L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central system, and H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad company.

WITHDRAWALS FORCE BANK IN BOSTON TO CLOSE

Boston, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The board of directors of the Federal National bank of Boston in a statement tonight said that the bank and its subsidiaries would not open tomorrow. The bank closed a half hour early today and the directors began a conference early in the evening. One of the bank's subsidiaries to close is the Middlesex National bank of Lowell.

Daniel C. Mullonery, president of the bank, said: "Because of extraordinary heavy withdrawals, the directors of the Federal National bank of Boston in order to conserve the interests of depositors have voted to ask the comptroller of currency to take charge of the bank."

Another Bank Closes.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The board of directors of the Bancroft Trust company tonight announced that because of its connections with the Federal National bank of Boston it would not open its doors tomorrow. This action was taken to protect depositors, the statment said.

Japanese Gold Action So Far Has Little Effect Here

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Dec. 14.—The immediate effect here of the suspension of the gold standard in Japan was small today. The exchange value of the yen dropped 1½ to 2 cents, bringing it down to .4063, against a par value of .4985. Japanese government 5½ per cent bonds declined 2¼ points and the 6½s went off 4 points.

Only slight changes occurred in the trading in cotton futures, although Japan is a substantial buyer of American cotton. It is believed Japanese buyers have discounted the change in the value of the yen by heavy purchases of cotton this season, estimates running from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 bales.

Will Ship Gold.

Reports from Tokio that the Japanese government had prohibited the shipment to the United States of 30,000,000 yen in gold by the Yokohama specie bank and would indemnify the bank for a loss of $2,000,000 were denied at the offices of the bank in New York. The bank was informed that the shipment would be made tomorrow.

Bankers here do not fear American trade with Japan will be seriously affected by the gold embargo, nor will it affect payments of interest or principal on about $300,000,000 Japanese securities underwritten in the United States. Juichi Tsushima, Japanese financial commissioner, pointed out today that the bonds are all payable in dollars.

Expect Trade to Go On.

At the offices of the commission belief was expressed that the volume of trade between Japan and the United States would continue virtually unchanged, although there would be price differences. Last year Japan sold to the United States goods to the value of 506,112,145 yen (about $251,000,000) and bought from us 442,881,809 in goods, showing an export surplus. Total exports and imports were 949,993,757 yen (about $472,500,000).

Up to the end of August this year Japan had exported to the United States goods worth 283,381,247 yen and imported from the United States 341,239,127.

Pound Sterling Rallies.

The pound sterling rallied 4 cents, with sterling cables quoted at $3.44. Improvement in tone was attributed to the statement of the British chancellor of the exchequer that the government is confident of its ability to balance the British budget. Secretary Mellon's statement urging war debt revision also helped the pound. Transactions were light.

London Stocks Advance on Statement by Mellon

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon's statement created a better feeling on the stock exchange, but gilt edge securities lost a portion of their early gains with the late easing of sterling. However, sterling as well as gilt edge shares closed higher on balance. Japanese bonds were marked down 2 to 4 points on the abandonment of the gold standard.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Dec. 14.—The stock market staggered on to still lower ground under its growing load of care and nervous anxiety today. United States Steel common broke to a fresh depth of 41⅝ and the preferred fell below par for the first time since 1908. Public utility shares, which have been putting up the most stubborn fight of any group of the list appeared to have given up utterly and the averages retreated well beyond their "prepared positions" of last October, with American Telephone selling the lowest since 1923 and Consolidated Gas at its worst in more than four years.

Railroad shares were once more among the heaviest issues on the board, taking little cheer from reports that the railroad executives and carrier unions were on the verge of an agreement for a 10 per cent wage cut. Pivotal issues went down in a heap and thin markets were in evidence in many inactive stocks.

Genuine Liquidation.

Not the least dispiriting feature of the day was the general knowledge that the great bulk of the selling represented genuine liquidation instead of professional operations for bear account as in earlier days of the current decline.

This was made all too evident, first by the unusually heavy offerings in

Small and Large Users

Power companies are able to sell electricity at low prices to small users because they sell it at still lower prices to large users. By selling to the factory at less than the factory could make its own power (the distribution problems being simple for large users but complex for small users), the power company is able to produce electricity in large volume. It is also able to work its generating, transmitting and distributing facilities more constantly, and consequently more efficiently. The resulting economies make the price of electricity less for all users, including the householder. The rates for electricity are determined by the use: the greater the use, the lower the rate.

BUENA TERRACE HOTEL IS GIVEN TO BONDHOLDERS

Former Transfers Title Without Cost.

BY AL CHASE.

Ownership of title to three properties in Harry G. Zimmerman yesterday disclosed further steps in reorganization of all three. The largest and most important of the trio is the six story fireproof Buena Terrace hotel at 4246 Sheridan road, title to which was conveyed by quitclaim deed by the Chicago Title and Trust company to Mr. Zimmerman, who represents the bondholders' protective committee.

M. E. GREENEBAUM

According to E. L. Anderson, secretary of the committee, only about 60 per cent of the bondholders have deposited their bonds, so that the original plan to reorganize without having to have a foreclosure has had to be abandoned and foreclosure proceedings have been instituted. When the title has been secured through bidding in the property certificates of beneficial interest will be issued to these bondholders who have deposited their bonds.

Bondholders Had a Chance.

"The bondholders had a chance to help us avoid a foreclosure if they had deposited their bonds," said Mr. Anderson. "Now we'll have to go through with it. Meanwhile the owner, who had agreed o go along with us and help avoid a foreclosure, has given the bondholders title to the property without cost. When we get title the property will be modernized. At present, owing to its obsolete equipment, the building is only about 50 or 60 per cent occupied."

The building was erected a few years ago on a 132x136 site and contains 118 furnished apartments; fifty-three three, sixty-two two, and one suite of one room. The original Greenebaum Sons Investment company bond issue was for $675,000, dated April 15, 1926. This has been reduced to $634,000, now outstanding.

Abel Davis is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee. The other members are: B. M. Winston, Eugene V. R. Thayer, John P. Olsen, Howard Loeb, Murray Wolbach, and M. E. Greenebaum.

Receiver to Be Appointed.

Title to the two story dyeing and cleaning establishment at 4030-40 Elston avenue, lot 125x125, was conveyed by the Skilgman-Peisert company to Mr. Zimmerman, representing the bondholders' committee. The original bond issue was for $100,000, now reduced to $92,000, and was underwritten by Lackner, Butz & Co. The company failed to make a prepayment of $2,000 on Aug. 10, 1930, though the interest was paid. A bill of foreclosure was filed on Dec. 12 and a motion for receiver came up for a hearing yesterday.

Anna and Benjamin Barnett conveyed by quitclaim deed title to the store and apartment building at the northwest corner of Damen and Leland avenues, lot 5442115, to Mr. Zimmerman. This was a Lackner, Butz & Co. issue, of $230,000 originally, but now reduced to $67,500. The Chicago Title and Trust company was appointed a receiver more than a year ago.

"If we get all of the bondholders to deposit their bonds, and we now have most of them, we'll be able to dismiss the entire foreclosure proceedings. We now have control of the title and all the junior liens," said Walter C. Palmer, secretary of the committee. Holman D. Pettibone is chairman. The members are: Joseph K. Brittain, E. M. Winston, Bentley G. McCloud, and David Shanahan. This committee also is looking after the interests of the bondholders of the Elston avenue property already mentioned.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Fresh eggs were in fair demand and generally steady. Receipts, 2,550 cases. Buying prices ranged from ½ to ¾ higher, with receipts of 9,010 cases. Live poultry opened firm, but while there was a fair demand for fowls, offerings were liberal. Prices were steady. Potatoes were about steady. Receipts, 156 cars with 280 cars on track.

CHICAGO STOCK VALUES SHRINK IN BUSY TRADING

U. S. Gypsum Dips Sharply on Heavy Volume.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stock values on the Chicago exchange continued to shrink yesterday with the trend interrupted for only brief intervals during the first hour and near the close of the period. When the frantic gesticulating of traders was halted by the final gong stocks of all descriptions were crying for buyers at prices below last week's best quotations. Activity continued at a brisk pace with transactions reaching 140,000 shares.

Feature of the day because it represented surrender to the prevailing mood of one of the last of the high grade investment issues was the sharp decline in U. S. Gypsum. Following at the doorsteps of the Swift stocks, Gypsum fell 4½ points to 15 on a heavy volume of trade. Street gossip had that the selling came from interests close to the company and reminded of the liquidation of a bank loan. Trade in the issue approached 8,000 shares—a heavy turnover for an issue.

Install Shares Drop.

Valiant support was given the Insull stocks but it was not sufficient to prevent these stocks from selling to new low prices. Middle West sold off 6% and Insull Utility common went as low as 7 and other issues lost proportionately. Active bidding in the final minutes of trading by the sponsoring groups lifted quotations slightly.

Market action of the Swift issues indicated that the selling storm in which they were caught last week was over. Swift & Co. was actively traded in but the price held firm. Swift International was less active and was equally firm. Yesterday's performance bore out the report that last week's heavy selling represented necessitous liquidation by a large holder of Swift stock.

Bonds Sell at Par.

It is understood that the liquidation of the account has been completed. Swift & Co.'s first mortgage 5 per cent bonds due in 1944 were quoted at par yesterday, off ¼ from the previous

WHEAT STRONG DESPITE DROP IN STOCK MART

Rally at Finish Boosts Prices a Little.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders have apparently made up their mind that wheat around 56c per bu. is a good property to own regardless of the action of the stock market. While the latter plunged downward, wheat yesterday again showed strength and after a fractional decline at one time in sympathy with securities the close was on a good rally, with net gains of ⅛@⅜c. December finished at 54¼c; March, 55⅝c; May, 57 to 57⅛c, and July, 55⅝ to 55¾c.

From the high figure of Nov. 9 to the close of yesterday December wheat declined 15⅜c, while U. S. Steel was off 13 points during the same period. The trade regarded this showing as evidence that the grain market is relatively little influenced by the action of stocks and that wheat was well deflated. There are many traders who would feel more confident regarding the future were the foreign demand for American hard winters to increase materially.

Wet Harvest in Argentine.

A wet harvest is now certain in Argentine, showers to heavy rains occurring in that country over the week end, and private cables indicated the quality of the new wheat crop had been lowered and that the movement of grain in volume would not get under way until sometime in January. This has imparted a firm undertone to the Buenos Aires market of late, with the close yesterday at net gains of ⅝@⅞c, the December being 41¼c.

Price fluctuations in wheat yesterday were extremely erratic, May selling within a range of 1⅜c, touching 57¼c early, only to break to 55⅝c later. On the decline there was fair support from commission houses which absorbed the surplus in the pit and the rally was easily attained. Liverpool closed equal to ⅝@⅞c per bu. higher in the face of a slow demand for parcels. December in the English market closed at equal to 81½c per bu, figured on $4.44 for sterling, the strength in the latter more than offsetting a decline of ⅝d in quotations.

Foreign demand for cash wheat was relatively slow, with sales of 500,000 bu. Manitobas in all positions. Winnipeg finished unchanged to ⅛c higher, with the December at 59⅜c in Canadian funds, and 47⅜c on a gold basis, the discount of Canadian money being around 19 per cent.

Visible Supply Decreases.

The visible supply of domestic wheat is decreasing rather rapidly, the reduction the past week being 4,145,000 bu. or exactly the same as the previous week, with the total now 218,869,000 bu. against 189,620,000 bu. last year.

Statistics were generally construed as bullish, supplies of wheat on ocean passage decreasing 4,016,000 bu. for the week. Shipments are down to 20,736,000 bu., or about two weeks requirements of importing countries and compare with 37,504,000 bu. last year.

While trade in corn was largely of a local character the market showed a tendency to resist pressure. The action of wheat had some effect as did a tendency to resist pressure. The action of wheat had some effect as did the very small primary receipts of 532,000 bu. against 1,916,000 bu. last year, and a report from Peoria that the Commercial Solvents company would start up its plant after having been idle for some months. It has started to buy cash corn in the latter market for the first time in about a year.

Corn closed ⅛@¼c higher, with December, 34⅝c; May, 38⅝c and July, 41⅜ to 41¾c. An increase of only 400,000 bu. in the domestic visible supply during the past week against 2,687,000 bu. last year attracted attention, although total stocks are now 16,664,000 bu. against 9,883,000 bu. a year ago. Indianapolis was reported to have cutbid Chicago in parts of Indiana for cash corn for the first time in weeks, and the trade regarded this as indicating a falling off in receipts of the local market.

Oats Have Narrow Range.

Oats prices held within a range of ⅝@¾c and closed ⅛c higher to ¼c lower, trade being mainly of a local character, December finished at 23⅜c; May, 35⅛c, and July, 24¾c. Shipping demand was slow.

Action of wheat was the main factor in rye, the latter closing ⅛@⅜c higher. December finished at 40c; May, 44⅝c, and July, 44¼c. Commission houses were fair buyers while locals sold.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed steady today at 5 to 15 points net advance on sales of 21,500 barrels, equal to 3,150 barrels. Steadiness to certain outside interests were supporting factors, with a little trade demand noted for both May and July. Crude oil was heavily steady at 5¼@5¾c in the southeast and the valley and 5¾c in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 5.75c, Dec. 5.90c, March 6.40c, May 6.50c, July 6.61c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract with closing prices as follows: Spot 5.70c, Dec. 5.85c, March 6.35c, May 6.40c, July 6.50c, August 6.60c.

TURPENTINE AND ROSIN.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed weak; sales 3,400 bales. December $1.63@1.50; March, $1.50; May, $1.58; from market quotations [sixty day basis] on December last were extra S $2.50. Canton double extra A 14-16s $1.90. Japanese crack double extra $2.45.

LARD TRADE LIGHT

Lard trade was on a small scale. The market was easy, but no sales were only 3 loads. Receipts on December land were 15,000 lbs. with practically no trading. Liverpool was firm and the trade regarded the week's receipts of 7,345,000 lbs. as light. Exports were 7,285,000 lbs. last year. Trading in bellies was light, with prices nominal. Imports of pork were 1,581,000 lbs. compared with 3,657,000 lbs. last year. Hog prices were steady, with receipts heavy. Cash demand slightly less than a week ago, but materially more than last year. Export sales: 0.

SELLING POUNDS WALL ST. LIST TO FRESH LOWS

Public Utilities Forced to Give Ground.

leading stocks, which are invariable called upon to absorb the greater share of selling in a market weakening from its own weight, and secondly, the large number of outstanding leaders, such as American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Gas, General Electric, United Improvement and the like, to reach new lows for the two year decline.

While the day's news haul was not exactly calculated to inspire any wild display of bullish enthusiasm it was no worse than the average mill run of that which has been droning over the wires for weeks and months. Japan's departure from the gold standard was probably the worst item of the lot. This came as no surprise, however, and in the last analysis probably contributed little to the "all gone" feeling that has pervaded the speculative community for so long.

Steel News Poor.

The news from the steel trade over the week-end was likewise far from hopeful, the magazine Steel predicting that operations will fall below 25 per cent capacity, the low rate that prevailed at the end of last year, but a long series of pessimistic reports from the fields of activity in this major industry has long since case hardened Wall street hides to the worst from this direction.

Congress, of course, is still a care and the situation is not brightened to any extent by the knowledge that it will be a long time before the boys can bring themselves to shut up shop and go home.

At that, however, there is some spunk left in the old market. It showed it in the early trading today when a burst of covering sent prices bobbing for gains of 1 to 4 points in many departments of the list. The spurt was short lived, however, lasting just long enough to dissipate the technical strength of the market and ease the ways for renewal of the heavy liquidation. Except for a brief halt in the middle of the afternoon the selling continued in heavy volume on through to the close and final figures generally were around the worst of the day.

Receipts of cattle at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 40,000; sheep, 14,000.

Hog prices were held to a fully 10c basis again yesterday against large supplies, both the top and average being unchanged at $4.25 and $4.15, respectively. Neither prices has changed since the middle of last week, and the range was never narrower in the history of the yards. The hog market has been severely tested by almost record supplies for this time of year several times lately, and it is the general opinion of the trade that it has reached firmer ground and will respond readily to any marked abatement in the movement such as followed the break last week.

More hogs sold at $4.15 yesterday than at any other one price, although a big share of the best grades reached $4.20 and larger houses put up some droves as low as $4.10. Demand was spent, and the aggregate total of 39,000 dwindled to 5,000 before the close. A wider range of prices is expected soon. It is seasonal for light weights to outsell heavy hogs around the first of the year, though the wider spread usually comes through a decline in the market for weighty stock. This year traders look for an advance in light weights to bring the wider range, citing the extremely low level of current quotations and also the seasonal liquidation of light weight hogs this summer and fall to substantiate their theory.

Better Tone in Futures.

There was less inclination to sell in the hog futures market yesterday, and a better tone was noticeable, particularly in May contracts. The latter were offered at $5.00 and bid $5.50. Such hogs were offered at $5.75, January bids were made at $4.50 and December bids at $4.10, with offers in the latter month at $4.75.

Cattle feeders and producers dropped the last shred of strength in the cattle market yesterday when they dumped 21,000 head at Chicago and flooded all other leading market points with immense supplies of unfinished stock. The trade had been handling moderate supplies, and the abnormally large receipts came as a surprise. The market has been balancing on the brink of a steep drop for some time and the trade is sending out warnings to hold back until after the holidays to avoid further liquidation of prices.

Offerings Are Heavy.

Yesterday's offerings at Chicago were above any corresponding day since 1926 and selling was rather draggy when indications pointed to one of the biggest holdovers in years at the city's trade. Some sellers were willing to accept approximately 50 per cent of their offerings. The condition of the trade at the close was depressing, and the only remedy lies in extremely light supplies.

The liquidation by the country is going to result in a serious accumulation of beef in the cooler and packers are determined to hold down initial cash bids because of the restricted demand for beef around the holidays. Only a handful of beef steers sold up to $10.50@11.00, while $5.00@8.00 represented the biggest end of the supply. Prices for butcher stock was somewhat irregular, with no reliable outlet for cows or heifers. Calves slumped 50c. A few sharply lower bids were made for stockers and feeders, but enough sold to establish a basis of quotations.

Lambs Break, Too.

Tuesday's sheep receipts were the largest for this time of year and buyers met the market down 15@25c, but considerable opposition because of the broad eastern demand for lambs during the last week. Shipping and for slaughter have been out of the year. The peak price of $6.75 was a new low for the last 10 years, but was paid for a number of lambs on shipping account.

Choice wethers paid up to $5.65 and ewes sold readily at $5.50. Aged sheep were steady, but finished 25c lower and feeder ewes late were being shaded on the market. Yearlings showed little sympathy with the break in slaughter lambs. Feeder lambs were in good demand at $4.50@4.75.
